202 members of the Islamic Consultancy Assembly (Majlis), in a letter to President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad announced their standards for giving confidence vote to the to-be-proposed ministers of the tenth government.

202 members of the Islamic Consultancy Assembly (Majlis), in a letter to President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad announced their standards for giving confidence vote to the to-be-proposed ministers of the tenth government.

Jassem Saeedi, a member of the Majlis' presiding committee read the letter prior the end of Majlis' public session on Tuesday.

Re-congratulating President Ahmadinejad for his victory in the presidential elections, the MPs stressed in the letter: "Your colleagues in the cabinet who will be presented soon, beside practical commitment to Islam, the constitution and Velayat Faqeeh, should have the ability, capacity, experience and sufficient expertise in order to help you accomplish the missions and endeavor for raising the qualitative and quantitative level and fulfill the long- and medium-term programs of the Islamic Republic of Iran's system and their everyday and current duties."

"By setting the recommendations of the Islamic Revolution Leader as example, Majlis believes that in case of existence of the announced conditions in the presented ministers, it will have the maximum cooperation in giving the confidence vote to them," the letter read.
