Introduction

1. This addendum to the report of the Special Rapporteur on extrajudicial, summary, or arbitrary executions describes 65 country situations and gives an account of actions undertaken by the Special Rapporteur from 2 December 2002 to 1 December 2003. It also contains in summary form the replies received from Governments to her communications, as well as observations of the Special Rapporteur where considered appropriate.
2. Owing to restrictions on the length of documents, the Special Rapporteur has been obliged to reduce details of communications sent and received. As a result, requests from Governments to publish their replies in their totality could not be acceded to.

SUMMARY OF CASES TRANSMITTED AND REPLIES RECEIVED

Algeria

Communication reçue

3. Dans une lettre datée du 4 décembre 2002, le Gouvernement algérien a répondu à un appel urgent conjoint envoyé par la Rapporteuse spéciale le 12 septembre 2002, conjointement avec la Représentante spéciale du Secrétaire général sur les défenseurs des droits de l'homme et le Rapporteur spécial sur l'indépendance des juges et des avocats, concernant le cas de Ahmed Ali Khelili. D'après le gouvernement, M. Khelili n'aurait pas cru bon de saisir la justice afin de porter à sa connaissance les faits allégués, l'empêchant ainsi de procéder à une enquête et de vérifier si les allégations étaient fondées ou non. D'après le gouvernement, selon la législation algérienne, un personne qui s'estime être victime d'agissements contraires à la loi a la faculté de déposer une plainte soit devant le Procureur de la République, soit directement par la voie de plainte avec constitution de partie civile, devant le Doyen des juges d'instruction, ce que M. Khelili n'aurait pas fait.

Angola

Communications sent

4. On 4 June 2003, the Special Rapporteur, jointly with the Special Rapporteur on torture, sent a communication to the Government of Angola regarding the following individual cases relating to allegations of torture and other forms of ill-treatment in Cabinda Province:
5. Vaba, a young man from Mbamanga village, by the Chiloango River, was reportedly detained by soldiers from the Angolan Armed Forces (FAA) on 27 August 2002. Vaba was allegedly accused of spying for the Front for the Liberation of Cabinda Enclave (FLEC) and was reportedly beaten, tied to a stone and thrown into the river.

6. João Rodrigues Lourenço, a 53-year-old church worker, was reportedly brutally beaten on 22 November 2002 in Cochiloango, municipal district of Cacongo, by members of the military police, who were allegedly searching for information on the guerrilla movements in the area. His relatives reportedly found him dead three days later in a forest close to their village. The incident allegedly took place after FLEC guerillas ambushed an FAA vehicle.

7. On 23 July 2003, the Special Rapporteur, jointly with the Special Rapporteur on torture and the Special Rapporteur on violence against women, sent a communication to the Government of Angola in connection with the case of Amélia Teco Luemba, also known as Alete, a 16-year-old woman from Cata-Chivava village, Necuto commune who was reportedly shot dead by an FAA soldier on 20 October 2002 as she was allegedly trying to escape being raped. Soldiers allegedly entered her house and took off her clothes, but she managed to escape half-naked outside, where she was reportedly killed.

Argentina

Llamamientos urgentes

8. El 25 de febrero de 2003, la Relatora Especial, junto con el Relator Especial sobre la promoción y protección del derecho a la libertad de opinión y de expresión, envió un llamamiento urgente en relación con la situación de la periodista Carla Britos, propietaria y directora del periódico mensual La Tapa en Guernica, provincia de Buenos Aires. Según las informaciones recibidas, la Sra. Britos continuaría siendo víctima de una serie de amenazas de muerte y actos de intimidación. La más reciente aconteció al atardecer del 14 de febrero de 2003, cuando Carla Britos habría sido violentamente abordada cerca de su casa por tres individuos no identificados que habrían amenazado con matar a ella y a su familia. Asimismo se informó de que Carla Britos habría denunciado las amenazas de muerte ante la Fiscalía de La Plata, provincia de Buenos Aires. Tales amenazas estarían relacionadas con artículos sobre casos de corrupción publicados en La Tapa. El periódico habría informado sobre casos de corrupción en el municipio de Presidente Perón en los que estaba implicado el ex intendente, actualmente miembro de alta graduación del Servicio de Inteligencia del Estado (SIDE).

9. El 18 de agosto de 2003 la Relatora Especial, junto con el Relator Especial sobre la promoción y protección del derecho a la libertad de opinión y de expresión, envió un llamamiento urgente en relación con Carla Britos. De acuerdo con las informaciones recibidas, la Sra. Britos continuaría siendo víctima de actos de intimidación. Durante la medianoche del 13 de julio de 2003, mientras dormían, Carla Britos y su familia habrían oído un ruido en el exterior de la casa. Más tarde, sobre las tres de la madrugada, Carla Britos, su esposo y sus cuatros hijos se habrían despertado a consecuencia del humo que invadía sus dormitorios ya que la parte trasera de su casa de madera estaba ardiendo. Habrían conseguido apagar el fuego y alertaron a los policías, quienes permanecerían estacionados a unos 20 metros de la casa. Asimismo, se informó de que Carla Britos habría denunciado las amenazas de muerte ante la Fiscalía de La Plata, provincia de Buenos Aires. Existiría preocupación de que este ataque, al igual que los anteriores, guarde relación con la publicación en La Tapa de artículos sobre casos de corrupción en el municipio de Presidente Perón en los que estaría implicado un ex intendente, actualmente miembro de alta graduación del SIDE.

10. El 24 de octubre de 2003, la Relatora Especial, junto con el Relator Especial sobre la promoción y protección del derecho a la libertad de opinión y de expresión, envió un llamamiento urgente en relación con Carla Britos. De acuerdo con las informaciones recibidas, el 5 de octubre de 2003, la Sra. Britos habría sido forzada a ingresar a un vehículo por un hombre, quien presuntamente le habría apuntado con una pistola en la espalda. La Sra. Britos habría sido conducida al interior del mencionado vehículo junto con otros dos hombres, quienes la habrían amenazado advirtiéndole: “en Guernica manda Rodríguez y se hace lo que Oscar Rodríguez dice[...]. cuándo lo van a entender...”. Pocos instantes después, al momento de ser liberada, le habrían advertido: “bájate, pero la próxima vez no volvés a casa”. Asimismo se alega que, aparte de las medidas de protección policial con las que contaría la Sra. Britos, las autoridades no habrían ejercido acciones en contra de los responsables de tales amenazas.

11. El 6 de noviembre de 2003, la Relatora Especial, junto con el Relator Especial sobre la cuestión de la tortura y la Representante Especial del Secretario General sobre la situación de los defensores de los derechos humanos, envió un llamamiento urgente sobre la situación de María Dolores Gómez, defensora oficial en el Departamento judicial de San Isidro, provincia de Buenos Aires. Se informa de que el Relator Especial sobre la cuestión de la tortura y la Representante Especial del Secretario General sobre la situación de los defensores de los derechos humanos ya enviaron otra carta de fecha 11 de septiembre de 2002, también en relación con María Dolores Gómez, a la cual el Gobierno argentino contestó el 4 de octubre de 2002. Según las informaciones recibidas, María Dolores Gómez seguiría recibiendo amenazas de muerte las cuales guardarían relación con sus denuncias sobre casos de corrupción, tortura y malos tratos en los centros penitenciarios y comisarías de policía en la provincia de Buenos Aires. El 26 de octubre de 2003 el Juzgado de San Isidro habría sido evacuado tras una amenaza de bomba efectuada a través de una llamada anónima. En dicha llamada, se habría hecho mención a María Dolores Gómez y a Fernando Maroto, otro juez que habría sido igualmente amenazado por denuncias de abusos contra personas privadas de libertad. De acuerdo con la información recibida, las autoridades penitenciarias habrían atribuido la llamada telefónica a un preso que también habría denunciado varias veces violaciones de derechos humanos de detenidos. También se informó de que en repetidas ocasiones algunos presos habrían declarado ser obligados, bajo chantaje, a proferir amenazas contra María Dolores Gómez. La Comisión Interamericana de Derechos Humanos (CIDH) habría solicitado al Gobierno argentino medidas cautelares para proteger la vida y la integridad de María Dolores Gómez. Dicha solicitud de medidas cautelares se habría extendido hasta julio de 2003. Sin embargo, se alega que, a pesar de haberse tomado medidas de seguridad, no se han llevado a cabo investigaciones adecuadas, lo cual dificultaría acabar con las agresiones.

Comunicación enviada

12. El 29 de septiembre de 2003, la Relatora Especial, junto con el Relator Especial sobre la cuestión de la tortura, envió una carta de alegación en relación con el caso de Héctor Gustavo Agüero, quien habría fallecido el 19 de junio de 2002 en la Unidad Sanitaria 22 del complejo penitenciario de Olmos, provincia de Buenos Aires. Según las informaciones, Héctor Gustavo Agüero fue detenido el mes de febrero de 2002 en la comisaría de Malvinas Argentinas de Tortuguitas, acusado de robo. A pesar de que habría sido declarado inimputable por la esquizofrenia que padecía, habría sido alojado en la comisaría en espera de un cupo en el hospital neuropsiquiátrico Melchor Romero. Después de 40 días de alojamiento en la comisaría, habría sido destinado al complejo de Olmos. Héctor Gustavo Agüero fue posteriormente transferido al hospital neuropsiquiátrico Melchor Romero, donde se alega que padeció malos tratos. Asimismo se informó de que el juez Quintana habría rechazado una acción de hábeas corpus interpuesta a favor de Héctor Gustavo Agüero porque habría considerado óptimo su estado. El juez Quintana habría sido reemplazado por el juez Sorondo, quien habría ordenado el traslado de Héctor a la Unidad Penitenciaria 22 de Olmos. Allí habrían señalado que “hacía cuatro días que no tomaba agua” y que “una sobredosis lo había dejado semimuerto”. Héctor Gustavo Agüero habría fallecido al día siguiente habiéndose afirmado como causa de su muerte una sobredosis de medicamentos suministrados en el hospital neuropsiquiátrico Melchor Romero.

Respuestas del Gobierno

13. Mediante comunicación del 5 de agosto de 2003, el Gobierno de la Argentina proporcionó información suplementaria a su nota de fecha 4 de agosto de 2003 en relación con el llamamiento urgente que la Relatora Especial, junto con el Relator Especial sobre la promoción y protección del derecho a la libertad de opinión y expresión, envió el 18 de agosto de 2003 relativo a la situación de Carla Britos. Según el Gobierno, las amenazas denunciadas estarían siendo objeto de dos investigaciones penales preparatorias, una de ellas respecto de las presuntas amenazas telefónicas realizadas durante los primeros días del mes de junio de 2002; la segunda vinculada con supuestas amenazas proferidas el mes de febrero de 2003, hechos que a su vez, fueron objeto del llamamiento urgente que la Relatora Especial, junto con el Relator Especial sobre la promoción y protección del derecho a la libertad de opinión y expresión, envió el 25 febrero de 2003. Al respecto, el Gobierno informó de que no ha sido posible identificar o individualizar a ningún sospechoso o responsable de tales amenazas y que la custodia policial respecto de la Sra. Britos y su familia continúa vigente tal como lo expresó mediante comunicación del 11 de marzo de 2003.

14. Con relación al llamamiento urgente que la Relatora Especial, junto con el Relator Especial sobre la promoción y protección del derecho a la libertad de opinión y expresión, envió el 18 de agosto de 2003 respecto al presunto atentado en contra de la Sra. Britos, ocurrido el 13 de junio de 2003, el Gobierno de la Argentina informó de que, de acuerdo con el sistema informático de la Fiscalía General de la Plata, no se habría tenido referencia de ningún hecho de incendio que hubiera afectado a la Sra. Britos. Posteriormente, mediante comunicación de 6 de agosto de 2003, el Gobierno de la Argentina proporcionó información adicional relativa a la solicitud de pericia efectuada al cuerpo de bomberos de la provincia de Buenos Aires. Finalmente, mediante comunicación de 18 de agosto de 2003, el Gobierno informó de que se habría tratado de un principio de incendio de combustión incompleta el cual solo habría ocasionado daños leves. Con relación a la investigación de tales hechos, se informó de que, de acuerdo con los testimonios, no se logró evidenciar la existencia de una acción deliberada como origen del incendio.

15. Mediante comunicación del 9 de enero de 2003, el Gobierno de la Argentina proporcionó información en relación con el llamamiento urgente que la Relatora Especial envió el 4 de noviembre de 2002 en relación con las amenazas sufridas por Gustavo Melmann, su esposa Laura Melmann, hijos y otros familiares, Yesica Mariela Alvarengo, Carlota del Valle Soria, Haydee Susana Lima, así como miembros del poder judicial que participan en el juicio adelantado por el asesinato de Natalia Melmann. Según el Gobierno, de acuerdo con el informe de la unidad funcional de conflictos familiares y sociales, se han adelantado las investigaciones penales preliminares por el delito de amenazas contra las personas mencionadas. De acuerdo con dicho informe, de las diez investigaciones que se adelantan, seis se encontrarían en etapa de instrucción sin dictado de auto de meritos; dos habrían sido desestimadas y una habría sido acumulada por conexidad. Solo dentro de la causa que por el delito de amenazas y lesiones leves contra Gustavo Melmann se habría formulado citación al presunto responsable.

16. Mediante comunicación del 17 de diciembre de 2002, el Gobierno de la Argentina proporcionó información en relación con el llamamiento urgente que la Relatora Especial, junto con la Representante Especial del Secretario General sobre la situación de los defensores de los derechos humanos, envió el 24 de septiembre de 2002 en relación con el caso de Estela Carlotto. Según el Gobierno, se adelanta una investigación penal, la cual se encontraría en etapa de instrucción. Asimismo informó sobre la activación de los mecanismos de protección de conformidad con los procedimientos establecidos en la normativa internacional relativa a la defensa y promoción de los derechos humanos.

17. Mediante comunicación de 17 de diciembre de 2002, el Gobierno de la Argentina proporcionó información suplementaria en relación con el llamamiento urgente que la Relatora Especial, junto con la Representante Especial del Secretario General sobre la situación de los defensores de los derechos humanos, envió el 3 de octubre de 2002 en relación con los incidentes de violencia que tuvieron lugar en Avellaneda el 26 de julio. Según el Gobierno, se continúa con el análisis de los testimonios y de los elementos de prueba. En tal sentido no se descarta la posibilidad de vincular a nuevos efectivos policiales a la investigación. Con relación a las amenazas telefónicas en contra del abogado Claudio Pandolfi, el Gobierno informó de que, dada la gravedad de las acusaciones sobre el hecho de que las amenazas provenían del conmutador de una de las dependencias del Ministerio de Seguridad, el fiscal encargado del caso habría solicitado el listado completo de las llamadas efectuadas desde dicho Ministerio, el cual, luego de ser analizado, habría permitido establecer que ninguna llamada habría sido efectuada desde las referidas dependencias. También se informó de que, ante las intimidaciones y amenazas contra uno de los testigos, el fiscal habría incluido dentro del programa de protección tanto al testigo como a su familia.

18. Mediante comunicación del 15 de noviembre de 2003, el Gobierno de la Argentina proporcionó información en relación con la carta de alegación que la Relatora Especial, junto con el Relator Especial sobre la cuestión de la tortura, envió el 29 de septiembre de 2003 en relación con el caso de Héctor Gustavo Agüero, quien habría fallecido el 19 de junio de 2002 en la Unidad Sanitaria 22 del complejo penitenciario de Olmos, provincia de Buenos Aires. Según el Gobierno, el servicio penitenciario de la provincia de Buenos Aires habría iniciado una investigación administrativa en la que a su vez habrían intervenido el Ministerio de Justicia y Seguridad, el poder judicial de la provincia de Buenos Aires y la comisaría 4 de Malvinas. Asimismo, el Gobierno informó de que se habría ordenado la autopsia al cadáver con el fin de establecer los motivos clínicos del fallecimiento.

Azerbaijan

Urgent appeal

19. On 2 May 2003, the Special Rapporteur, jointly with the Special Representative of the Secretary-General on human rights defenders, transmitted an urgent appeal to the Government of Azerbaijan regarding the situations of the following persons.

20. Eldar Zeynalov, Chief of the Human Rights Center of Azerbaijan (HRCA), and Leyla Yunus, Director of the Institute of Peace and Democracy, were reportedly the victims of a series of attacks resulting from an alleged defamation campaign. Fears were expressed that their lives could be in danger. On 22 April 2003, a former Baku City public official and current member of the leadership of the Musavat Party allegedly accused the two men on the television channel "ANS" of being "enemies of the people". Mr. Zeynalov's private home phone number was allegedly given and the audience asked to "take action". The following day, a group of 30 men, including members of AXCP-3 and the Organization for the Liberation of Karabakh (QAT), allegedly attacked the HRCA office and issued a written statement demanding that criminal proceedings be opened against Mr. Zeynalov on charges of "treason to the Motherland". It was further reported that on 24 April 2003, a bigger group, including members of Musavat and QAT, returned to the organization's office where they allegedly burnt a photograph of Mr. Zeylanov and threw chemicals around the premises. The police, reportedly present during these incidents, allegedly failed to take any action. On 25 April 2003, the HRCA premises were allegedly attacked once more, again in the presence of the police, by members of the ruling New Azerbaijan Party (YAP), who accused Mr. Zeynalov of being Armenian and demanded that he be exiled. On 28 April, the office of the Institute of Peace and Democracy and Mehdi Mehdiyev, Director of the Human Rights Resource Centre, who had spoken out against the previous incidents, were allegedly attacked. It was reported that, on 29 April 2003, security guards who had been hired by HRCA on 25 of April to protect the organization's premises allegedly failed to show up, explaining later that they had been "strongly advised" to terminate this service by the Ministry of the Interior and the Ministry of National Security. It was alleged that this wave of attacks, which occurred during the pre-electoral period, might have been part of a campaign to discredit Mr. Zeynalov's human rights work and that of his organization by accusing him of being an ethnic Armenian origin and working against the interests of Azerbaijan.

Communication sent

21. On 4 June 2003, the Special Rapporteur, jointly with the Special Rapporteur on torture, sent a communication to the Government of Azerbaijan in connection with the case of Mailk Gulami oglu Ailyev, a 35-year-old resident of Baku who was reportedly subjected to ill-treatment by a prosecutor (whose name is known to the Special Rapporteur) and other officers at the 19th Nasimi District police station on 28 May 2003. He was reportedly tortured in order to make him confess to a crime he claimed he had not committed. As a result of this treatment, his lungs were allegedly severely damaged, reportedly leading to his death on 12 January 2003, while imprisoned at labour reformatory No. 3.

Communication received

22. On 16 September 2003, the Government of Azerbaijan responded to the letter regarding the case of Mailk Gulami oglu Ailyev. The Government reported that there had been an investigation by the Procurator-General's Office of the Republic of Azerbaijan in connection with that matter. On 28 May 1998, following an argument, Mr. Alyev committed premeditated murder, shooting dead Faik Agarz ogli Allakhverdiev. On 28 May 1998, the Nasimi District Procurator's Office, Baku, initiated criminal proceedings for offences under articles 95 and 220 of the Criminal Code of the Republic of Azerbaijan. On 5 September 1998, Mr. Alyev was arrested, charged and remanded in custody. During a search, he was found to be in possession of opium for which he was sentenced to 11 years' imprisonment. The Government explained that Mr. Alyev died on 12 January 2003 after he fell ill from pulmonary tuberculosis while serving his sentence in a strict-regime colony in the Azizbekov district of Baku. The Government finally stated that neither during the preliminary investigation nor in court was any complaint received from Mr. Alyev concerning the use against him of illegal methods of questioning and no evidence of such use was found during the attempt at verification made by the State.

Bangladesh

Urgent appeals

23. On 21 January 2003, the Special Rapporteur, jointly with the Special Rapporteur on torture, sent an urgent appeal to the Government of Bangladesh concerning an "indemnity ordinance" for army personnel involved in a crackdown on crime in the country, a situation that had been the object of an urgent appeal on 30 October 2002. The Special Rapporteurs expressed concern that if the ordinance were to be approved by the Parliament on 26 January 2003, no soldier would be investigated or brought to justice for the deaths and alleged torture which were reported to have taken place during the crackdown. Indeed, the Joint Drive Indemnity Ordinance 2003, issued on 9 January 2003, gave immunity from prosecution to armed forces and government officials for their involvement in "any casualty, damage to life and property, violation of rights, physical or mental damage” between 16 October and 9 January 2002. The crackdown on crime, known as “Operation Clean Heart”, started on 17 October 2002 in response to growing domestic and international concern about increasing lawlessness in Bangladesh. At least 40 people were reported to have died after arrest between 17 October and 9 January – the period covered by the ordinance.

24. On 4 June 2003, the Special Rapporteur sent an urgent appeal to the Government of Bangladesh with regard to the alleged governmental intentions to deploy paramilitary forces to combat a crime wave that had allegedly taken place during the preceding several months. In this context, the Dhaka police chief, Ashraful Huda, reportedly said that police had been directed to shoot on sight, in self-defence, or to protect the security of others. It was further alleged that the Cabinet Committee on Law and Order had proposed the establishment of a Rapid Action Battalion, which would include members of the armed forces, the police, and members of the Bangladesh Rifles and Ansars, as part of the Government’s anti-crime initiative. Fears were expressed that this new force would be granted excessive authority, which could lead to widespread abuse of power.

Communications received

25. By letter dated 28 January 2003, the Government responded to a joint urgent appeal sent with the Special Rapporteur on torture on 30 October 2002 concerning Operation Clean Heart. The Government reported that the purpose of the drive was to recover illegal arms, stop extortion, apprehend known criminals and bring back a sense of security in public life. According to the Government, the Operation had been successful in improving the law and order situation and the incidence of violence and extortion has decreased considerably. All members of the law enforcement agencies involved in the Operation were under strict instructions not to harass innocent people. The Government further affirmed that the apprehension of a large number of persons belonging to the ruling political party also gave credence to the neutral and apolitical nature of the Operation. The withdrawal of armed forces had begun on 12 February 2003. Following the withdrawal of the army, rapid action teams with specially trained police personnel were formed in Dhaka and similar teams would be established in other cities.

26. By letter dated 24 July 2003, the Government responded to the urgent appeal sent by the Special Rapporteur on 4 June 2003. The Government reiterated that the purpose of Operation Clean Heart was to recover illegal arms, stop extortion, apprehend known criminals and bring back a sense of security in public life. The anti-crime drive should be seen in the context of the very real need felt in Bangladesh to improve the law and order situation, and to create conditions conducive to growth and development in an environment marked by peace, safety and security. The Government stated that the Operation had concluded on 9 January 2003 and had had considerable success in reducing violence and criminal activities and in restoring law and order and internal security in the country. The Operation had been conducted with absolute transparency and Bangladesh had a free press, a vibrant civil society and a strong opposition in the Parliament, factors that in themselves guaranteed accountability for the Government’s actions. The Rapid Action Battalion had been formed with specially trained police personnel under the existing Armed Police Battalions Ordinance, 1979 and was guided strictly by the Code of Criminal Procedure. Finally, the Government reported that it had taken a number of initiatives for the promotion, protection and effective enjoyment of human rights by all citizens, including steps towards the establishment of a national human rights commission. It had also repealed the Public Safety (Special Provisions) Act, 2000 and took other steps which were described in an annex to the Government's reply.

Belgium

Communication envoyée

27. Le 29 juillet 2003, la Rapporteuse spéciale conjointement avec le Rapporteur Spécial sur la torture et le Rapporteur spécial sur les droits de l'homme des migrants, a envoyé au gouvernement belge une communication concernant le cas de Xhevdet Ferri, un immigrant clandestin et demandeur d'asile d'origine albanaise, qui serait décédé dans une cellule d'isolement du Centre de Détention de Steenokkerzeel le 12 octobre 2000. Une enquête pénale et administrative auraient été ouvertes immédiatement après son décès. L'autopsie réalisée le 14 octobre 2000 n'aurait cependant pas éclairci les causes de sa mort.

Communication reçue

28. Le 6 Novembre 2003, le Gouvernement belge a répondu à la communication envoyée conjointement par la Rapporteuse Spéciale, le Rapporteur Spécial sur la torture et le Rapporteur spécial sur les droits de l'homme des migrants le 29 Juillet 2003. Selon le Gouvernement, Xhevdet Ferri a été découvert le 5 Octobre 2000 à Ostende alors qu'il se trouvait de manière illégale dans une remorque sur le point d'être embarquée. Il n'a pas introduit de demande d'asile et a été interné le même jour dans un Centre fermé pour illégaux en attendant d'être expulsé du Royaume. Le rapatriement vers son pays d'origine, l'Albanie, était apparemment prévu pour le 13 Octobre 2000. Transféré la veille au Centre de rapatriement 127 bis à Steenokkerzeel, il a tenté de s'évader le soir même. Il a été toutefois repris par la police alors qu'il gisait sur le sol et placé dans une cellule d'isolement. Selon le gouvernement, le personnel de sécurité du Centre a considéré que l'attitude de l'intéressé s'assimilait à une opposition passive suite à un défaut de communication. Apparemment, aucun élément n'aurait permis à ce personnel de conclure à une blessure de l'intéressé. Peu après, Ferri était pris d'un malaise et une ambulance a été immédiatement appelée. Une équipe du service mobile d'urgence sur les lieux et des efforts a tenté de le ranimer, en vain. Une enquête concernant les faits a été immédiatement ouverte par la police et le parquet. Selon le gouvernement, aucune plainte n'a été portée à la connaissance de l'Office des étrangers et une autopsie a été effectuée. Une enquête pénale est par ailleurs en cours. Selon les renseignements fournis par le gouvernement belge, certains agents de sécurité du Centre de rapatriement 127 bis et certains membres des services de police fédéraux ont fait l'objet d'un dossier à charge auprès du Tribunal de Première instance de Bruxelles. La chambre du Conseil devait rendre prochainement son ordonnance concernant le renvoi éventuel en correctionnelle.

Bolivia

Llamamientos urgentes

29. El 2 de abril de 2003 la Relatora Especial junto con la Representante Especial del Secretario General sobre la situación de los defensores de los derechos humanos, el Relator Especial sobre la independencia de magistrados y abogados y el Relator Especial sobre la situación de los derechos humanos y las libertades fundamentales de los indígenas, envió un llamamiento urgente en relación con Cliver Rocha, responsable de la Unidad Regional del Centro de Estudios Jurídicos e Investigación Social (CEJIS) en Riberalta y asesor de la Central Indígena de la Región Amazónica de Bolivia (CIRABO). Según la información recibida, en la tarde del 13 de marzo de 2003 el Sr. Rocha habría sido agredido en las puertas del Juzgado Agrario de Riberalta, cuando se retiraba de una audiencia pública en la que la familia Ribert Rejas disputaba las tierras de la comunidad La Esperanza, del pueblo indígena Tacana. El abogado Cliver Rocha habría sido perseguido a la salida del juzgado, golpeado en reiteradas oportunidades en la parte posterior de la cabeza y amenazado de muerte. Se teme que las amenazas y el hostigamiento en contra del Sr. Rocha y varios miembros del CEJIS y otros abogados podrían estar relacionados con el asesoramiento jurídico a los pueblos indígenas en los procesos de titulación de los territorios indígenas ancestrales. A pesar de las denuncias que habrían sido interpuestas ante de las autoridades competentes, no se tendría información sobre las medidas tomadas por las autoridades para sancionar a los responsables de estos actos.

30. El 7 de mayo de 2003, la Relatora Especial, junto con la Representante Especial del Secretario General sobre la situación de los defensores de los derechos humanos, envió un llamamiento urgente en relación con la situación de Cliver Rocha. Según la información recibida, el 23 de abril de 2003 Cliver Rocha habría sido golpeado por dos individuos no identificados que le habrían seguido en una motocicleta cuando salió de su despacho. Mientras le golpeaban, los agresores le habrían repetido que abandonara la zona. Se teme que las amenazas y agresiones recibidas por Cliver Rocha y otros abogados del CEJIS que representan a las comunidades indígenas de los departamentos de Beni y Santa Cruz están relacionadas con sus actividades de asesoramiento jurídico a los indígenas. A pesar de las denuncias públicas de estas y otras agresiones sufridas por los abogados del CEJIS no se tiene conocimiento de la existencia de ninguna investigación sobre estas agresiones.

31. El 15 de octubre de 2003, la Relatora Especial, junto con el Relator Especial sobre la promoción y protección del derecho a la libertad de opinión y expresión, el Relator Especial sobre la cuestión de la tortura, la Representante Especial del Secretario General sobre la situación de los defensores de los derechos humanos y el Relator Especial sobre la situación de los derechos humanos y las libertades fundamentales de los indígenas, envió un llamamiento urgente en relación con informaciones según las cuales al menos 50 personas, tres de ellas soldados, habrían fallecido y centenares habrían resultado heridas durante el despliegue de acciones combinadas de la policía y el ejército con el fin de neutralizar manifestaciones y romper bloqueos impuestos por manifestantes en distintas partes del país desde el 20 de septiembre de 2003. En particular, 14 personas habrían muerto en la ciudad de La Paz el 13 de octubre. En el desarrollo de dichas operaciones, las fuerzas militares y policiales habrían hecho uso excesivo de la fuerza, con la supuesta utilización de armas de guerra y de grueso calibre, con el fin de repeler a los manifestantes. Se alega igualmente que varios manifestantes habrían sido detenidos. Asimismo, los Relatores Especiales habrían expresado su preocupación en torno a la posibilidad de que nuevos enfrentamientos puedan aumentar el número de víctimas entre la población civil en desarrollo de las movilizaciones populares que habrían de continuar hacia la ciudad de La Paz.

33. El 3 de septiembre de 2003, la Relatora Especial envió una carta de alegación en relación con las presuntas actuaciones ejercidas por parte de la policía y el ejército del departamento de Cochabamba, quienes habrían reprimido de manera violenta y desproporcionada las manifestaciones realizadas del 13 al 15 de enero de 2003 por parte de diferentes sectores de la sociedad (jubilados, cultivadores de coca, campesinos y estudiantes). En tal sentido, se ha informado de que en las regiones de Aguirre, Parotani, Chimore y Colomi varias personas habrían muerto y docenas de personas habrían sido heridas como consecuencia del uso de municiones vivas contra los manifestantes, entre los fallecidos se encontrarían: Rómulo Gonzales Terán, de 18 años, quien habría fallecido en la zona identificada como Cayarrani, Colomi, el 13 de enero, como consecuencia de una herida de bala en el tórax; Félix Ibarra, quien habría fallecido en la localidad de Aguirre, el 14 de enero, a consecuencia de un impacto de bala en el abdomen inferior; Willy Hinojosa, de 23 años, que habría fallecido en la localidad de Sinahota, el 14 de enero, a causa de un disparo de proyectil de arma de fuego en abdomen; Victor Hinojosa, de 35 años, que habría fallecido entre las localidades de Llavini y Parotani, el 14 de enero, a consecuencia de un disparo de arma de fuego. Respuesta del Gobierno

34. Mediante comunicación del 24 de septiembre de 2003, el Gobierno de Bolivia proporcionó información en relación con los llamamientos urgentes que la Relatora Especial, junto con la Representante Especial del Secretario General sobre la situación de los defensores de los derechos humanos, el Relator Especial sobre la independencia de magistrados y abogados y el Relator Especial sobre la situación de los derechos humanos y libertades fundamentales de los indígenas, enviaron el 2 de abril de 2003 y el 7 de mayo de 2003, en relación con las amenazas y agresiones contra el abogado Cliver Rocha. Según el Gobierno, de acuerdo con los informes de la policía provincial del Beni, una vez recibida la denuncia se habría dado traslado de su contenido al ministerio público. Asimismo informó de que extrañamente, el cuadernillo de la investigación (denuncia, declaración y certificado médico) no habría retornado a la policía provincial del Beni, razón por la cual se habría hecho necesario obtener nuevamente una declaración informativa policial con el fin de dar trámite a la investigación. Para tal fin, se habría citado al demandante para obtener una nueva declaración. Dicha petición no habría obtenido respuesta, hecho ante el cual se habría procedido al envío de las actuaciones al ministerio público, quien a su vez habría ampliado el plazo de término de la investigación por 10 días, después de los cuales, pese a la insistencia del encargado del caso, Cliver Rocha no habría proporcionado información argumentando como motivo principal una reacción negativa por parte de los indígenas a quien él patrocina.

Brazil

Urgent appeals

35. On 13 February 2003, the Special Rapporteur, jointly with the Special Representative of the Secretary-General on human rights defenders, sent an urgent appeal to the Government of Brazil regarding the case of indigenous leader Marcos Luidson de Araújo, his mother and other members of the Xucuru indigenous community, after Marcos Luidson de Araújo was injured in an attack which left two other indigenous men dead. On 7 February, Mr. de Araújo, Adenilson Barbosa da Silva, Joseílton José dos Santos and a fourth person were allegedly traveling by truck in the municipality of Pesqueira in Pernambuco State, when several unidentified gunmen opened fire on the truck. Mr. da Silva and Mr. dos Santos were reportedly killed, Mr. de Araújo was injured and the fourth passenger was unhurt. The attack was allegedly instigated by local landowners in the context of a dispute over land rights with the Xucuru community. In addition, Mr. de Araújo's father, Francisco de Assis Araújo, a previous leader of the Xucuru, was reportedly killed by gunmen on 20 May 1998. The attack was allegedly planned by local landowners, perhaps with the assistance of a small dissident group from the Xucuru community who had threatened Marcos Luidson de Araújo in the past. He and his mother reportedly received numerous death threats over the previous three years, largely believed to be from local landowners. In October 2002 the Organization of American States (OAS) reportedly called on the Brazilian authorities to protect Marcos Luidson de Araújo and his mother. According to the information received, no protection had been provided for the family.

36. On 25 June 2003, the Special Rapporteur, jointly with the Special Rapporteur on torture, sent an urgent appeal regarding the safety of a minor known as FC, as well as Fabio Junior Gonzaga da Silva and Josivan Antonio dos Santos following the alleged abduction, torture and attempted killing of FC by military police on 5 April 2003. On that date, FC and his friend Fabio Junior were allegedly stopped in the street by two military policemen in the town of Gurupi, Tocantins State, who accused FC of having taken part in a robbery in December 2002. FC was reportedly taken to a wooded area on the edge of the town where police allegedly tortured him for several hours, reportedly to find out who had taken part in the robbery. On 3 May, FC was on his way to work when he was allegedly again abducted by three military policemen who reportedly told Josivan Antonio, who was with him, to go away. They drove FC towards the town of Natividade. Ten kilometres past Natividade, they stopped the car and took him to a wooded area where he was reportedly severely beaten on his back and head, which caused him to faint. He reportedly spent four days in hospital, in the state capital of Palmas. He reportedly filed a complaint against the police who had tortured him, with Josivan Antonio and Fabio Junior both testifying as eyewitnesses. As a result, five military policemen were reportedly arrested. Fears were expressed, however, that the lives of the three were at risk, especially since military policemen linked to those arrested were seen near FC's house acting in a suspicious manner.

On 29 September 2003, the Special Rapporteur, jointly with the Special Rapporteur on torture, sent a communication regarding the case of Denilson Bueno de Toledo, aged 19, residing in Peruibe, Sao Paulo, who was reportedly arrested at the Texaco petrol station in Peruibe by civil policemen on 30 April 2003. He allegedly tried to avoid an identity check by police officers who had entered a restaurant in search of a murder suspect. Despite the fact that he was not reportedly the person the police were looking for, he was allegedly arrested and handcuffed, kicked all over his body after having been immobilized, and allegedly lost consciousness and died before he could receive any medical treatment. An autopsy reportedly established that he had suffered three fractured ribs and that he had previously had a heart attack. An investigation into his death was reportedly launched.

Communication received

39. On 24 November 2003, the Government of Bulgaria responded regarding the case of Mehmed Mumun, also known as Milotin Mironov. According to the Government, on 9 January 2001, officers from the Sofia Directorate of the Ministry of the Interior and the 6th police station carried out a specialized police operation to find and detain the perpetrators of a number of burglaries committed within their jurisdiction. In the course of an ID check in the Pavlovo Hotel, a patron refused to present the relevant documents and tried to hide. After he was found by the officers, he resisted arrest and had to be forcibly handcuffed. Soon after, he showed signs of bad health: his handcuffs were removed but he fainted in the restaurant and died shortly afterwards. The Sofia Directorate of the Ministry of the Interior investigated the incident. An autopsy was also carried out, which indicated that he had died of a heart attack. A driver's licence in the name of Milotin Mironov was found on the body of the deceased. A criminal case was initiated in connection with his death against two officers from the 6th police station for a criminal offence under article 124, paragraph 1, of the Penal Code in connection with article 20 of the Penal Code (murder due to negligence). On 5 March 2002, the Sofia Military Court issued acquitted the two officers. The Government stated that, following an appeal against the verdict, the case was returned for a hearing by a different panel. At the time of the communication, the penal procedure was still allegedly pending.

During the proceedings at first and second instance, the rights of the defendants to appeal were fully safeguarded and their lawyers acted in accordance with the law.

69. According to the Government, death sentences serve as a form of punishment but its ultimate worldwide abolition will be the inevitable consequence of historical development. However, the developments leading to the ultimate abolition of capital punishment must proceed in pace with the respective stages in the development of a society; each country should decide whether to retain or abolish the death sentence on the basis of its own actual circumstances and the aspirations of its people. The Government explained that while China still retained the death sentence as a punishment, the legal requirements for its application are extremely strict and in judicial practice, extreme care is taken in determining whether it is appropriate. Finally, it was brought to the Special Rapporteur's attention that Chinese law provides that criminals sentenced to may "receive a death sentence with a two-year reprieve", i.e. a criminal under sentence of death may have his sentence commuted to life imprisonment if he does not commit new intentional crimes within the period of the two-year reprieve. Furthermore, if the criminal had rendered outstanding service, he could have his sentence reduced to 15-20 years of imprisonment. This system had greatly limited the use of the death penalty. Reportedly, 99 per cent of criminals condemned to death had their sentences reduced to life or fixed-term imprisonment. Finally, the Government pointed out that in China, no person could be detained, arrested or placed in custody, or sentenced to death on religious grounds.

70. On 12 November 2003, the Government responded to a joint communication sent by the Special Rapporteur and the Special Rapporteur on torture on 4 June 2003, providing information on the following cases.

71. Shen Deming was detained by the public security authorities in August 2001 for disturbing public order and on suspicion of breaking the law, but was later released because of a psychological impairment. On 8 September 2001, he had a renewed attack of psychosis and committed suicide by jumping from an upper storey. The claim that he died in detention has absolutely no basis in fact.

72. Xing Xiujin died at home on 18 November 2002 of asthma and heart disease. The Government reported that the claim that she died as a result of forcible detention and torture by the public security authorities was not in accordance with the facts.

73. Shi Hongjie was detained by the public security authorities in accordance with the law on 29 October 2001 on suspicion of lawbreaking. On 21 November 2001, he quarrelled with other suspected criminals in the same jail and was beaten unconscious. Efforts made at the hospital to save him were fruitless and he died the following day. The law enforcement authorities dealt as the law requires with those who beat Mr. Shi up and the jail personnel responsible were also punished. The claim that Mr. Shi was beaten to death by public security personnel is not in accordance with the facts.

74. He Huajiang was assigned to three years' re-education through labour (from 16 September 2002 to 15 September 2005) for taking part in Falun Gong activities and disrupting public order. He was sent to the Daqing re-education through labour facility on 23 December 2002. On the same evening, the guards on duty had to take him to the municipal hospital for treatment where he was diagnosed with acute heart disease. Efforts to save him were fruitless and he died that same night. The claims that his body bore scars due to torture and that he was taken away and cremated were sheer fabrication.

75. The Government further reported that there was no means of inquiring into the other cases mentioned in the communication since they insufficient details were supplied or the place of detention was not specified.

76. The Government finally wished to restate its position of principle as regards Falun Gong. According to the Government, Falun Gong is not a religion; it is an anti-social, anti-scientific, anti-humanitarian sect whose violent tendencies are becoming steadily more apparent. The Falun Gong leader, Li Hongzhi, proclaims that the world is coming to an end and that the sick should not take medicine. He also urges practitioners to "resist the inflexibility of life" and "find spiritual perfection". A number of Falun Gong adherents have become deluded by the heretical sect, disown their relatives and descend into moral degeneracy; incomplete figures indicate that, to date, practising Falun Gong has led over 1,700 people to their deaths. The Falun Gong organization has repeatedly damaged and destroyed television broadcasting facilities, attempted to derail trains and so forth. In pursuit of political ends, it has also on numerous occasions attacked satellite transmission equipment, disrupted the routine broadcasting of television programmes and normal use of satellite transmitters, and threatened the safety of radio facilities. At a crucial time during the first half of the year, while the Chinese Government was taking energetic measures to combat atypical pneumonia and striving to protect citizens' lives and health, from outside the country Li Hongzhi issued a jing wen (classic text) encouraging Falun Gong practitioners to engage in disruptive activities and proclaiming "this may increase gong and ward off SARS, otherwise it may be cleared away by Heaven". At this urging, it was alleged that Falun Gong practitioners did stage many disruptive activities, going as far as to try to spread the virus throughout the country. The Government also stated that sects are a common evil in today's world and that they do not only exist in developing countries, but also represent a danger in developed ones. According to the Government, all countries regard the question of domestic cults as a serious one and are taking stern steps to contain and oppose them, and the action taken by the Chinese Government, in accordance with the law, against the criminal activities of the Falun Gong and its leaders is similar to that taken by any other country. The Government believes that initially, the vast majority of Falun Gong practitioners are unaware of the true nature of Li Hongzhi and the Falun Gong and they, too, become victims. The Government's consistent attitude towards such people is one of kindly assistance and patient persuasion while affording ample guarantees of their various rights. After kindly, patient persuasion, the great majority of the deluded victims shake off the psychological control of Falun Gong and resume normal lives. The law enforcement authorities naturally hold to account the small number of criminals who make use of the cult to harm people's lives, illegally amass wealth, steal State secrets and severely disrupt public order within society. In the course of trying such cases, they pay the utmost attention to guaranteeing the lawful rights of the individuals concerned. According to the Government, Li Hongzhi and his Falun Gong cult, together with a few others outside China with ulterior motives, noisily proclaim that the Chinese Government illegally detains Falun Gong members and tortures or persecutes them to death, but they are simply sowing public confusion and befuddling world opinion.

De acuerdo con los informes recibidos, Nora Cecilia Velásquez habría sido retenida por fuerzas paramilitares durante tres días, desde el 21 de julio. Durante ese tiempo habría sido víctima de torturas o malos tratos físicos y psicológicos. Se alega que Nora Cecilia Velásquez fue repetidamente interrogada sobre los líderes de ANMUCIC, en especial, sobre Leonora Castaño. Se alega también que Blanca Nubia Díaz, activista de ANMUCIC en el departamento de La Guajira, habría sido desplazada a la fuerza a Bogotá, el 1.º de agosto. Allí habría sido retenida durante dos horas por fuerzas paramilitares e interrogada sobre los líderes de ANMUCIC. Se le habría enseñado una "lista negra" de personas amenazadas de muerte donde aparecerían los nombres de líderes de ANMUCIC, entre ellos, el de Leonora Castaño. Respuestas del Gobierno

96. En esta sección figuran las repuestas del Gobierno de Colombia a las comunicaciones transmitidas por la Relatora Especial.

97. Mediante comunicación del 25 de febrero de 2003, el Gobierno de Colombia proporcionó información en relación con el llamamiento urgente que la Relatora Especial, junto con el Relator Especial sobre la promoción y protección del derecho a la libertad de opinión y de expresión, había enviado el 21 de junio de 2002 en relación con el atentado contra Luis Enrique Imbachi, presidente del Sindicato de Trabajadores de las Empresas Municipales de Cali (SINTRAEMCALI), ocurrido el 16 de junio de 2002. Según el Gobierno, de acuerdo con los testimonios de los escoltas asignados por el DAS, se habría tratado de un intento de hurto de la camioneta en la que el Sr. Imbachi se movilizaba por un sector altamente delincencial. Asimismo, informó de que una patrulla de reacción se habría desplazado al lugar sin que hubiese sido posible ubicar las motos que habrían intentado el ilícito. El Gobierno informó también de que el Sr. Imbachi contaría con un esquema de seguridad compuesto de una camioneta, dos guardaespaldas con armas automáticas, tres chalecos antibalas y una radio de comunicaciones. Finalmente se informó de que el Sr. Imbachi no habría denunciado los hechos ante la fiscalía.

98. Mediante comunicación del 25 de febrero de 2003, el Gobierno de Colombia proporcionó información relativa al llamamiento urgente que la Relatora Especial había enviado el 9 de septiembre de 2002 en relación con el presunto atentado contra SINTRAEMCALI. Según el Gobierno, de acuerdo con las investigaciones preliminares, el artefacto explosivo habría sido instalado y activado en la parte interior de la edificación ocasionando daños materiales. Asimismo, señala que la explosión se produjo en una instalación de las Empresas Municipales de Cali, en donde funciona el centro operativo de acueducto Navarro y no contra sedes de SINTRAEMCALI. El Gobierno también informó de que la fiscalía adelanta la investigación correspondiente por el delito de terrorismo y de que los miembros del sindicato contarían con medidas cautelares otorgadas por la Comisión Interamericana de Derechos Humanos desde junio de 2001. Con relación a la situación de peligro de Alexander López Amaya, el Gobierno informó de que el esquema de protección otorgado desde septiembre de 1999 habría sido complementado a través del programa de protección a líderes sindicales del Ministerio del Interior y que en la actualidad contaría con cuatro escoltas, cinco armas automáticas, cinco chalecos blindados, una radio de comunicación y tres camionetas de doble tracción, una de ellas blindada.

La investigación por parte de la fiscalía se inició de manera oficiosa y se encuentra en etapa previa. Asimismo informó de que durante el trámite de la investigación se habrían recibido testimonios de personas que estuvieron en el lugar de los hechos o que fueron enteradas de lo sucedido. Côte d'Ivoire

Communications envoyées

137. Le 17 septembre 2003, la Rapporteuse Spéciale, conjointement avec le Rapporteur Spécial sur la torture, a envoyé une communication au Gouvernement

de la Côte d'Ivoire concernant des information reçues selon lesquelles une soixantaine de gendarmes accompagnés d'une cinquantaine de leurs enfants et de quelques autres civils auraient été arrêtés dans leur caserne à Bouaké par des éléments armés du Mouvement patriotique de Côte d'Ivoire (MPCI) le 6 octobre 2002. Ces personnes auraient été conduites à la prison du camp militaire du troisième bataillon d'infanterie où, pendant la soirée, des éléments armés du MPCI seraient entrés à plusieurs reprises dans la prison et y auraient tiré en rafales, tuant et blessant des dizaines de détenus. Il semblerait que les assaillants auraient fait, pour justifier leurs actes, explicitement référence au massacre de Yopougon du 26 octobre 2000, à la suite duquel une Commission d'enquête de l'ONU avait été nommée. Les survivants seraient restés deux jours avec les blessés et les cadavres en décomposition sans recevoir de nourriture. Selon les informations communiquées, certains survivants auraient été contraints de transporter les cadavres et de les enterrer dans des fosses collectives et une dizaine d'entre eux auraient été tués sur les lieux mêmes du charnier après qu'ils eurent enterré leurs camarades.

138. Le 23 octobre 2003, la Rapporteuse Spéciale, conjointement avec le Rapporteur Spécial sur la promotion et la protection du droit à la liberté d'opinion et d'expression, a envoyé une communication au gouvernement de la Côte d'Ivoire concernant le cas de Jean Hélène, journaliste auprès de la station de Radio France Internationale (RFI) et correspondant de RFI en Côte d'Ivoire qui aurait été abattu le 21 octobre 2003. Il semblerait qu'il se trouvait près de la Direction générale de la police nationale (DGPN), afin d'interviewer des opposants politiques qui venaient d'être libérés après quelques jours de détention, lorsqu'un policier en faction devant la DGPN se serait approché de lui et lui aurait tiré une balle dans la tête. Il semblerait que ce dernier ait été arrêté et placé en détention.

Selon l'information reçue, deux enfants soldats, Jean Louis Basey et Diavanga Nkuyu, condamnés à mort et incarcérés à Kinshasa depuis 2000, auraient été libérés le 10 mai 2003. Cette libération aurait eu lieu suite à l'amnistie présidentielle du 14 avril 2003 relatif à l'Accord global et inclusif signé à Prétoria. En revanche, aucune nouvelle information n'aurait été reçue par les Rapporteurs concernant les autres enfants soldats condamnés, Mbumba Ilunga, Mwati Kabwe, Banga Djuna et Nanasi Kisala qui par conséquent continuaient de courir le risque d'être exécutés.

Ecuador

Llamamiento urgente

141. El 5 de noviembre de 2003 la Relatora Especial, junto con el Relator Especial sobre la cuestión de la tortura, envió al Gobierno del Ecuador un llamamiento urgente en relación con Wilmer Lucio León Murillo, quien habría sido detenido junto con otras tres personas el 21 de julio de 2003, por agentes de la policía cuando se desplazaban en coche por la ciudad de Quevedo. Según las informaciones, habrían sido detenidos sin ninguna orden, bajo sospecha de pertenecer a un conocido grupo armado. Estas personas habrían sido introducidas en un vehículo de la policía y conducidos con la cabeza cubierta a un paradero desconocido a las afueras de Quevedo. Allí, Wilmer Lucio León habría sido torturado y maltratado. Horas más tarde habría sido conducido a una comisaría de policía y seguidamente puesto en libertad por decisión del procurador quien habría declarado que no existían pruebas contra él y que su detención había sido ilegal. El 24 de julio, Wilmer Lucio León Murillo habría presentado denuncia por tortura y malos tratos a los que habría sido sometido durante su detención, hecho que habría dado lugar a una investigación contra los agentes implicados. Desde entonces, Wilmer Lucio León Murillo habría recibido, en varias ocasiones, amenazas de muerte. El 26 de octubre, uno de los agentes investigados habría avisado a un amigo de la víctima de que "le matarían y que nadie sabría nada". A la luz de estas amenazas, se han expresado temores por la vida y la integridad física de Wilmer Lucio León Murillo.

Egypt

Communication sent

142. On 4 June 2003, the Special Rapporteur, jointly with the Special Rapporteur on torture, sent a communication to the Government of Egypt in connection with the following individual cases.

143. Hussain Mohamed Mursi was reportedly found dead in Al Ramel police station in April 2001. He was allegedly arrested on 25 April 2001 by the Verdict Implementation Unit and kept in detention, although the prosecution authorities reportedly had ordered his release. According to the information received, he was beaten by police officers to compel him to confess to his involvement in a number of crimes.

144. Nader Fath Alsyed was reportedly beaten and stabbed to death by a police assistant at the Nasr City police station, Cairo, on 29 April 2001. According to the information received, he was assaulted by police guards after he allegedly refused to stand steady on a brick and threatened guards with a piece of sharp metal. A forensic report allegedly described injuries on his face, forehead, neck, chest, shoulder and back and wounds and cuts on his left thigh, but also allegedly indicated that the main cause of death was a stab wound on his thigh.

145. Medhat Gaber Tadros was reportedly arrested for robbery on 23 or 24 April 2001 by the intelligence division at Embaba police station. He was allegedly beaten and subjected to electric shocks and other forms of ill-treatment which reportedly caused his death. According to the information received, two police officers were charged with torture and the case referred to a criminal court on 12 May 2002.

146. Ahmed Taha Hussein was reportedly arrested on 29 October 2001 and taken to Qwesna police station. His house was allegedly searched without warrant and his brother was arrested on the same day. They were both kept for some hours in a police vehicle before they were reportedly released. However, on the following day an officer of the Qwesna police station reportedly informed Mr. Hussein's family of his death, but they were not allowed to attend his burial. On 13 January 2002, the victim's family lawyer filed a report with the prosecutor general stating the family's suspicions as to the reasons for his death, and lodged a second report with the Menufiya attorney general requesting an autopsy. A first forensic report was allegedly vague: it reportedly stated that there was signs of congestion in his scalp and white foam in his trachea, that his heart was in good condition and that there was an accumulation of dark urine in his bladder, and that there were no traces of poison or drugs. According to this report, his death was caused by a dormant illness difficult to determine by forensic medicine. The attorney general reportedly filed the report in March 2002. However, the victim's family and a local human rights organization submitted a complaint to the prosecutor general and the Minister of the Interior against the decision to file the report and the procedures taken by the police officers against the victim and his family.

Communication received

147. On 3 October 2003, the Government of Egypt transmitted its response in connection with the following individual cases which were the object of allegations sent by the Special Rapporteur on 2 September 2002.

148. With regard to allegations concerning the death of Sayid Qanawi Salim Ali as a result of torture at El-Imbaba police station, the Government stated that, on 7 March 2000, while being served with a warrant, Ali tried to escape but fell from a great height. He was reportedly injured and taken to hospital for treatment, where he died. The facts surrounding the death were allegedly contained in Imbaba precinct administrative report No. 947/2000. The Department of Public Prosecutions reportedly undertook an investigation and the case was re-registered with a criminal registration number. At the time of the communication, the Department was still working on the investigation and had not yet taken a decision on the matter. The Government submitted that there was no evidence to show that the man had been beaten as the allegations claimed.

149. Concerning the case of Mohammed Samir Abu al-Wifa, who reportedly died while in detention at Al-Qubba Park police station, the Government reported that he was on a register of criminals known for their tendency to impose their will on others. He was arrested in 2001 in order to put a stop to his dangerous criminal activities. His release was ordered on 8 January 2001. On 12 January 2001, formalities relating to his release were being carried out at Al-Qubba Park police station when he began to complain of shortness of breath. He died shortly afterwards. This was confirmed by some of his fellow prisoners in the same cell and the details of the incident were allegedly set forth in administrative report No. 399/2001. The Department of Public Prosecutions undertook an investigation after the family of the deceased accused the head of the investigation unit at the station of having beaten him and caused his death. The medical report on the examination of the deceased was signed by a forensic doctor on 1 November 2001 and the Department of Public Prosecutions ruled out foul play and discontinued the case. The Government submitted that there was no evidence to show that the man was beaten as the allegations claimed.

150. Finally, with regard to allegations relating to Ahmad Hasan Ahmad, who was reportedly beaten to death while in custody at the Qalyubiya State Intelligence Headquarters, the Government mentioned that Mr. Ahmad was a registered criminal with 11 previous convictions for a variety of crimes. On 28 February 2000, the Department of Public Prosecutions issued a warrant for his arrest. He was allegedly caught in flagrante delicto and found to be in possession of drugs and a knife. The Department decided to remand him in custody pending further investigations. On 2 March 2000, his fellow inmates reportedly stated that he was taken seriously ill and had gone into a coma. He was transferred to hospital for emergency treatment, where he died. According to the Government's response, the autopsy carried out by a forensic doctor indicated that the death was caused by swallowing a certain kind of insecticide. There were no signs of beating or torture on the body. The Department decided to file the case as a suicide. The Government reported that there was no evidence to show that the man was beaten as the allegations claimed.

153. El 4 de junio de 2003, la Relatora Especial junto con el Relator Especial sobre la cuestión de la tortura enviaron una carta de alegación en relación con la muerte de Juan Asumu Sima, de 80 años de edad, quien habría fallecido el 31 de agosto de 2002 en la cárcel de Black Beach, Malabo, presuntamente como consecuencia del trato al que habría sido sometido mientras estaba en detención en espera de juicio. Según las informaciones, Juan Asumu Sima habría sido arrestado en Bata o Mongomo entre mitad de marzo y mitad de abril de 2002. Tras su juicio, en el que habría sido sentenciado a seis años y ocho meses de cárcel por complicidad en el intento de golpe de Estado, habría sido transferido de Bata a Malabo. Durante el juicio, habría presentado numerosas lesiones y habría necesitado la ayuda de otros imputados para mantenerse de pie. La asistencia médica que habría solicitado durante el juicio le habría sido denegada. En la cárcel de Black Beach, Juan Asumu Sima habría sido mantenido en condiciones de hacinamiento e insalubridad, en las que, al igual los otros detenidos, habría tenido un acceso muy limitado a la comida y al agua y no habría recibido medicación para las heridas causadas por anteriores malos tratos.

Dozens of persons were also reportedly injured, some severely, by security forces which used excessive and indiscriminate force to break up demonstrations organized by the Gambian Students Union on 10 and 11 April 2000 in Banjul, Brikama and other towns. These demonstrations were allegedly held in protest against the death of Ebrima Barry, a student allegedly tortured to death by members of the Brikama Fire Service, and the rape of a 13-year-old schoolgirl by a police officer. Although a Governmental Commission of Inquiry allegedly confirmed that security forces officers were responsible for the casualties, government officials reportedly stated on 6 January 2001 that in the spirit of reconciliation, no one would be prosecuted. On the other hand, it was reported that officers suspected of the death of Ebrima Barry were arrested.

Guatemala

Llamamientos urgentes

156. El 15 de agosto de 2003, la Relatora Especial, junto con la Representante Especial del Secretario General sobre la situación de los defensores de los derechos humanos, envió un llamamiento urgente en relación con la situación de peligro en que se encontraría Mario Estuardo Garrido Batres, coordinador del proyecto reconciliación del Programa de Naciones Unidas para el Desarrollo y director de la Asociación para el Desarrollo Integral de las Víctimas de la Violencia en las Verapaces (ADIVINA), como consecuencia de una serie de amenazas de muerte que vendrían siendo dirigidas en su contra. Según informaciones, el 5 de agosto del 2003 a las 14.40., Mario Garrido habría recibido unas llamadas telefónicas anónimas amenazándole de muerte y diciéndole: “estás pendiente ya sabemos donde estás, estás ubicado, te vamos a matar, con mis amigos del SIC [Servicio de Investigación Criminal] y del estado mayor presidencial”. Las llamadas serían producto de una estrategia sistemática de intimidaciones y amenazas en contra de los activistas de derechos humanos que desarrollan sus actividades de asistencia legal a las víctimas en el municipio de Rabinal. Estas actividades involucrarían los trámites de denuncias de cementerios clandestinos frente al ministerio público, así como la coordinación de exhumaciones con la Fundación de Antropología Forense de Guatemala (FAFG). De acuerdo con las informaciones, el hecho habría sido denunciado ante la Auxiliatura Departamental del Procurador de los Derechos Humanos de Baja Verapaz y el ministerio público.

157. El 19 de agosto de 2003, la Relatora Especial, junto con la Representante Especial del Secretario General sobre la situación de los defensores de los derechos humanos, envió un llamamiento urgente en relación con la FAFG y sus miembros, en particular, Jessika Marisela Osorio Galindo, secretaria de la dirección de arqueología forense, quien habría recibido amenazas de muerte e intimidaciones. Asimismo se informó que el 13 de julio, aproximadamente a las 14.15, mientras Jessika Osorio conducía un vehículo en compañía de su hermano Oscar Estuardo Osorio Galindo, fue amenazada por un hombre conduciendo un pick-up color rojo quien la habría seguido hasta su casa en donde también la habría insultado. Según la información recibida, sería la segunda vez que Jessika Osorio es objeto de hostigamiento. Hechos similares habrían ocurrido el 27 de junio. Otros miembros de la organización también habrían sido amenazados e intimidados, en particular Omar Bertoni Girón, antropólogo forense de la institución quien habría recibido un escrito anónimo el 13 de junio. El 1.º de mayo, el domicilio de Leonel Estuardo Paiz Diez habría sido vigilado por un desconocido. Finalmente el 29 de abril, Fredy Peccerelli, director ejecutivo de la FAFG, se habría percatado de un impacto de proyectil de arma de fuego en el portón de su residencia. Se teme que los ataques más recientes tengan relación con la actividad de derechos humanos de la FAFG, en particular su trabajo de excavación de los cementerios clandestinos que datan de los años 1982 y 1983, durante la presidencia del General Ríos Montt.

Finalmente informó de que en la actualidad solo dos antropólogos contarían con seguridad personal.

Asimismo informó que el ministerio público continúa con las investigaciones que permitan lograr la captura de los responsables.

166. Según el Gobierno, los hechos del 12 de noviembre de 2002 habrían sido originados por la desaparición y posterior homicidio de la menor Dora Liliana Och Ché. En tal sentido señaló que se habría tratado de una manifestación en el parque central del municipio del Estor, mediante la cual los vecinos del lugar habrían solicitado la presencia de Jorge Mocúa Caal, a quien habrían acusado de encubrir al presunto asesino de la menor asesinada. Asimismo, informó que Jorge Mocúa Caal y su familia son objeto de medidas de seguridad perimetral. En cuanto a la investigación penal, el Gobierno

Guinea-Bissau

Appel urgent

172. Le 20 mars 2003, la Rapporteuse Spéciale, conjointement avec le Rapporteur Spécial sur la torture, a envoyé un appel urgent au gouvernement de Guinée-Bissau concernant la situation des officiers militaires suivants.

173. Lieutenant Serifo Baldé, Major Almane Alam Camará, Arafam Mané, Fode Mandjam, Queita Mané et Mamadú Turé, qui auraient été détenus dans les camps militaires de Mansoa et de Cumeréau au secret et sans inculpation depuis leur arrestation en novembre et décembre 2002. D'autres officiers dont les noms n'ont pas été rendus publics auraient également été détenus car ils auraient été soupçonnés d'avoir tenté de renverser le Gouvernement du Président Kumbalalá. De plus, Mussá Cassamá, un ancien Lieutenant proche du défunt Général Ansumane Mané, serait décédé en détention le 9 ou 10 mars 2003, son corps portant des signes apparents de tortures violentes. Aucune autopsie n'aurait néanmoins été pratiquée. Par ailleurs, des informations inquiétantes ont été reçues concernant l'état de santé de Serifo Baldé qui était dans le coma à l'hôpital de la base aérienne militaire. Au vue de leur détention au secret et de la mort en détention dans des circonstances suspectes de Mussá Cassamá, des craintes ont été exprimées quant au fait que les personnes mentionnées ci-dessus auraient continué à être soumises à des tortures et autres mauvais traitements et n'auraient pas bénéficié des soins médicaux appropriés.

Guyana

Communication sent

174. On 20 October 2003, the Special Rapporteur sent a communication to the Government of Guyana in connection with the case of Yohance Douglas, a 17-year-old who was reportedly shot dead on 1 March 2003 when a police patrol intercepted the vehicle in which he and four other young men were travelling, in the vicinity of Sheriff and Duncan Streets, Georgetown. The police allegedly opened fire on the youths and discharged a number of rounds in an indiscriminate manner, which reportedly resulted in the death of Douglas and injuries to others, and notably inflicting a grievous bodily injury to Ronson Grey, 18, who was reportedly shot in the jaw and consequently underwent an emergency operation.

Haiti

Appels urgents

175. Le 8 janvier 2003, la Rapporteuse Spéciale, conjointement avec le Rapporteur Spécial sur la promotion et la protection du droit à la liberté d'opinion et d'expression ainsi que la Représentante Spéciale du Secrétaire-Général sur les défenseurs des droits de l'homme, a envoyé un appel urgent au gouvernement haïtien concernant la situation de Michèle Montas, journaliste radio de renom. D'après les informations reçues, le 25 décembre 2002, deux hommes armés auraient tenté en vain de forcer l'entrée de son domicile à Port-au-Prince, tuant lors de l'attaque l'un de ses gardes du corps, Maxime Sèide. Tout porte à croire que cette attaque pourrait avoir un lien avec l'assassinat de Jean Dominique en avril 2000, journaliste et époux de Michèle Montas. Cette dernière aurait d'ailleurs multiplié les démarches pour que les responsables du meurtre de son mari soient identifiés et traduits en justice en dépit des nombreuses menaces de mort dont elle aurait fait l'objet depuis lors. D'autres journalistes auraient reçu des menaces similaires, notamment après avoir enquêté sur des meurtres supposément commis par des forces de police.

176. Le 14 février 2003, la Rapporteuse Spéciale, conjointement avec le Rapporteur Spécial sur l'indépendance des juges et des avocats, a envoyé un appel urgent au gouvernement d'Haïti relatif à Pierre Josiard Agnant, juge d'instruction et président de l'Association Nationale des Magistrats Haïtiens (ANAMAH). Selon l'information reçue, celui-ci aurait été arrêté au sein même du ministère de la justice le 10 février 2003, sur ordre du Ministre de la Justice, Calixte Delatour, qui lui aurait reproché d'avoir 'libéré trop vite Salim Barthrony', un individu accusé d'être impliqué dans un trafic illicite de stupéfiants, alors que l'accusation n'aurait semble-t-il pas pu fournir de preuves suffisantes pouvant conduire à un jugement de condamnation de ce dernier. Le juge Agnant aurait été immédiatement mis en disponibilité et placé en résidence surveillée à Santo.

177. Le 17 février 2003, la Rapporteuse Spéciale, conjointement avec la Représentante spéciale du Secrétaire Général sur les défenseurs des droits de l'homme, a envoyé un appel urgent au gouvernement haïtien relatif à Marie Yolène Gilles, coordinatrice du programme d'observation des droits de l'homme au sein de la Coalition Nationale pour les droits des haïtiens. Selon l'information reçue, M. Gilles aurait fait l'objet de menaces téléphoniques lui ordonnant de ne plus s'impliquer dans l'affaire 'Carrefour' relative au meurtre de trois hommes prétendument assassinés par des membres de la Police Nationale Haïtienne. Ces menaces sont survenues après le meurtre du policier Aspiller Constant, témoin clef dans l'affaire 'Carrefour'.

178. Le 18 février 2003, la Rapporteuse Spéciale a envoyé un appel urgent conjointement avec le Rapporteur Spécial sur la promotion et la protection du droit à la liberté d'opinion et d'expression concernant la situation de Jean-Numa Goudu, journaliste de Radio Métropole et rédacteur de Haïti Press Network. Selon l'information reçue, pendant la nuit du 14 février 2003 des inconnus auraient essayé de mettre le feu à son domicile en incendiant le véhicule stationné dans le garage. Le feu aurait été circonscrit grâce à l'intervention de voisins. Goudu aurait affirmé que la nuit du 14 février il ne se trouvait pas à la maison craignant pour sa vie suite aux menaces qu'il aurait reçues depuis quelque temps et en particulier pendant la journée du 14 février.

179. Le 8 mai 2003, la Rapporteuse Spéciale, conjointement avec le Rapporteur Spécial sur la promotion et la protection du droit à la liberté d'opinion et d'expression a envoyé un appel urgent relatif à la situation de Lilianne Pierre-Paul, journaliste, directrice de la programmation et présentatrice d'une émission d'information sur Radio Kiskeya. Le 30 avril 2003, elle aurait reçu à la rédaction de Radio Kiskeya un courrier contenant une cartouche de calibre 12 mm et une lettre exigeant, sous peine de mort, qu'elle lise chaque jour à l'antenne, jusqu'au 6 mai, une déclaration en faveur de la restitution par la France à Haïti de 21,7 milliards de dollars. La lettre aurait également menacé de s'en prendre aux ressortissants français. Au bas de la lettre auraient figuré les noms des organisations populaires 'Domi Nan Bwa', 'Cercueil', 'Bale Wouze', 'B'uf', 'Pilate' et 'Tête-ciel'. D'après les informations reçues, les trois premières seraient proches de Fanmi Lavalas, le parti du Président. De même, 'Domi Nan Bwa' aurait revendiqué en décembre 2001, l'assassinat à Petit-Goâve de Brignol Lindor, journaliste à la radio Echo 2000, après qu'il avait reçu des membres de l'opposition dans son émission. Lilianne Pierre-Paul aurait déjà été victime de menaces. En janvier 2001, Paul Raymond et René Civil, deux responsables d'organisations populaires proches de Jean-Bertrand Aristide, auraient appelé à la tuer, l'accusant de faire partie d'une liste attribuée à l'opposition sur laquelle figurait, selon eux, des noms de personnalités souhaitant former un gouvernement parallèle. Radio Kiskeya aurait également reçu des menaces à plusieurs reprises.

Communication envoyée

180. Le 30 septembre 2003, la Rapporteuse Spéciale, conjointement avec le Rapporteur Spécial sur la torture, a envoyé une allégation en relation avec des renseignements reçus selon lesquels plusieurs détenus du Pénitencier National, et en particulier Max Ambroise, auraient été passés à tabac par des gardiens le 15 novembre 2001. Il aurait reçu un coup de bâton à la tête qui aurait provoqué sa mort. Ce décès aurait immédiatement provoqué une émeute parmi les prisonniers, à laquelle les gardiens auraient répondu en utilisant des gaz lacrymogènes, des armes à feu et des coups de bâtons. Plusieurs détenus auraient été blessés et au moins cinq d'entre eux seraient décédés lors de cet incident. Lors d'une conférence de presse, le directeur de l'Administration pénitentiaire nationale (APENA) aurait affirmé qu'Ambroise aurait giflé un gardien et que des dispositions avaient été prises pour le placer en isolement. Cependant, comme il aurait eu des difficultés pour respirer, il aurait été conduit à l'infirmerie. Le croyant mort, les autres détenus auraient initié une émeute au cours de laquelle ils auraient essayé de s'évader. C'est alors que des agents pénitentiaires, des unités anti-émeutes, des agents de la Compagnie d'intervention et de maintien de l'ordre (CIMO) et de la Swat-Team seraient intervenus. Des tirs de gaz lacrymogènes et des coups de feu auraient suivi, au cours desquels Ambroise serait mort asphyxié. Les Rapporteurs spéciaux ont également été informés que bien qu'initialement prévu pour 800 personnes, le pénitencier national aurait accueilli plus de 2000 détenus, la plupart en détention préventive.

Communications reçues

181. Par une lettre datée du 10 Janvier 2003, le Gouvernement haïtien a répondu à l'appel urgent envoyé par la Rapporteuse Spéciale le 8 Janvier 2003. Selon le Gouvernement, des personnalités du Gouvernement se sont rendues sur les lieux du drame immédiatement après qu'il se soit produit. La Direction Centrale de la Police Judiciaire aurait ouvert une enquête en vue d'appréhender les criminels pour les traduire en Justice. Le gouvernement a indiqué qu'au stade de l'enquête, il était prématuré d'établir un quelconque lien entre cette attaque et l'assassinat de Jean Dominique en avril 2000 et que toutes les pistes devaient être exploitées.

182. Dans le cas de Michèle Montas, le gouvernement a tenu à assurer que celle-ci continuait à exercer normalement sa profession et que le Gouvernement haïtien avait pris de nombreuses mesures pour protéger et garantir sa sécurité, parmi lesquelles le renforcement de la sécurité autour de la Station de Radio Haïti Inter.

183. Dans une lettre envoyée à la Rapporteuse Spéciale le 23 mai 2003, le Gouvernement de Haïti a répondu à la communication envoyée par la Rapporteuse Spéciale le 8 Mai 2003 concernant la situation de Lilianne Pierre-Paul. Selon le gouvernement, le 5 mai 2003, le Directeur général de la Police Nationale d'Haïti, Jean-Claude Jean-Baptiste, s'est rendu à la station de radio. Suite à cette visite, une équipe aurait été chargée de renforcer la sécurité de la journaliste et de celle de la radio. Le gouvernement a ajouté qu'une enquête judiciaire était ouverte, ces agissements constituant des faits prévus et punis par le code pénal haïtien en ses articles 250 et seq aux fins d'identifier et sanctionner les auteurs. La Direction centrale de la police judiciaire (DCPJ) aurait ainsi auditionné deux citoyens et convoqué trois autres. Le Parquet du Tribunal Civil de Première instance de Port-au-Prince en aurait été informé.

Honduras

Llamamientos urgentes

184. El 22 de mayo de 2003, la Relatora Especial, junto con el Relator Especial sobre la cuestión de la tortura y la Representante Especial del Secretario General sobre la situación de los defensores de los derechos humanos, envió un llamamiento urgente en relación con la situación de los miembros del Centro de Prevención, Tratamiento y Rehabilitación de las Víctimas de la Tortura y sus Familiares (CPTRT), una organización de derechos humanos que, además de llevar a cabo actividades de asistencia a las víctimas de tortura, investigaría y daría apoyo a investigaciones relacionadas con violaciones de los derechos humanos por parte de agentes de la policía. En particular, el CPTRT habría apoyado a María Luisa Borjas, antigua jefa de la Unidad de asuntos internos de la policía nacional, quien habría denunciado, en septiembre de 2002, la participación de miembros del Ministerio de Seguridad y de la policía nacional en la supuesta ejecución extrajudicial de al menos 20 jóvenes. Tras hacer públicas estas denuncias, María Luisa Borjas habría recibido amenazas de muerte por teléfono, su correo habría sido interceptado y, unos meses más tarde, habría sido destituida de su cargo. El CPTRT también estaría investigando las muertes que habrían ocurrido durante un motín en el centro penitenciario El Porvenir, departamento de La Ceiba, el 5 de abril de 2003. Se alega que en el curso de este incidente, supuestamente provocado por agentes de policía y guardianes de la prisión, unos 69 presos habrían fallecido. El 12 de mayo de 2003 por la mañana, las oficinas del CPTRT ubicadas en el barrio San Rafael de Tegucigalpa habrían sido saqueadas y documentos confidenciales y archivos informáticos habrían sido escudriñados. Los intrusos habrían dejado un par de zapatos encima de una mesa, acto que en Honduras, podría ser interpretado como una amenaza de muerte. Según la vicedirectora del CPTRT, el saqueo de las oficinas está relacionado con las actividades del centro y tendría por objetivo la búsqueda de información confidencial y la intimidación de sus miembros.

185. El 26 de mayo de 2003 la Relatora Especial, junto con la Representante Especial del Secretario General sobre la situación de los defensores de los derechos humanos, envió un llamamiento urgente en relación con la situación de peligro en la que se encontrarían el sacerdote José Andrés Tamayo, así como los dirigentes comunitarios Gilberto Flores y Orlando Nájera. Según informaciones, el sacerdote José Andrés Tamayo habría sido amenazado de muerte a causa de su activismo en favor de la protección del medio ambiente en el departamento de Olancho, en el norte de Honduras. Según indican los informes, José Andrés Tamayo, sacerdote del municipio de Salamá, departamento de Olancho, habría recibido advertencias para que abandone el país antes de finales de mayo. Asimismo se alega que en cuatro ocasiones distintas el 5 y 6 de mayo, el alcalde de Salamá habría declarado “el problema ambiental en Olancho solamente se va a resolver mandando a matar al padre Tamayo”. Según informaciones un grupo de hombres poderosos implicados en el negocio maderero estarían instigando las amenazas y advertencias contra el sacerdote. También se informó de que los dirigentes comunitarios Gilberto Flores y Orlando Nájera, quienes hacen campaña contra la construcción de una presa hidroeléctrica en el departamento de Olancho, habrían sido intimidados por policías y autoridades locales. Según los informes, algunos policías habrían realizado recientemente disparos al aire ante la casa de Orlando Nájera en la comunidad de Ocotal, municipio de Gualaco.

186. El 29 de julio de 2003, la Relatora Especial, junto con la Representante Especial del Secretario General sobre la situación de los defensores de los derechos humanos, envió un llamamiento urgente en relación con la situación de los activistas medioambientales Gilberto Flores, dirigente comunitario, y el sacerdote Osmin Flores, reconocido por sus esfuerzos para proteger el entorno natural en el departamento de Olancho. Según informaciones, ellos al igual que otros activistas medioambientales que trabajan en el mismo departamento habrían recibido amenazas de muerte. El caso de Gilberto Flores fue considerado por la Relatora Especial sobre ejecuciones extrajudiciales, sumarias o arbitrarias y la Representante Especial del Secretario General sobre la situación de los defensores de los derechos humanos en un llamamiento urgente con fecha de 26 de mayo de 2003, en el cual se indicaba que habría sido intimidado por agentes de policía y autoridades locales en relación con su campaña contra la continuación de una presa hidroeléctrica en el departamento de Olancho. Según informaciones, el 20 de junio de 2003, el Ministerio de Seguridad habría retirado a Gilberto Flores la protección policial recomendada por la Comisión Interamericana de Derechos Humanos desde mayo de 2003. El 14 de julio, un grupo de hombres armados, quienes se encontraban en el interior de un vehículo desprovisto de matrícula y con vidrios polarizados, habrían apuntado sus armas contra Gilberto Flores cuando éste entraba en las oficinas de la Pastoral Social del municipio de Juticalpa. Se alega que la presencia de un menor les habría hecho desistir de la acción en aquel momento. Sin embargo, durante los dos días que siguieron al incidente, el mismo vehículo y otro de características similares habrían sido aparcados enfrente de las mismas oficinas. Por su parte, Osmin Flores habría sido víctima de varias amenazas. El 18 de julio, habría sido objeto de vigilancia por parte de un grupo de hombres armados quienes habrían aparcado su vehículo enfrente de su residencia. Al reportar los hechos, la policía habría argumentado que aunque el vehículo tenía un aspecto sospechoso no se podía detener a los ocupantes puesto que no habían hecho nada ilegal. De acuerdo con las informaciones recibidas, los nombres de Gilberto y Osmin Flores figurarían en una lista de personas amenazadas de muerte al parecer elaborada por propietarios de diversos aserraderos de la región. En esta lista figuraba también Carlos Arturo Reyes, un activista que trabajaba para la Pastoral Social en defensa del medio ambiente, que habría sido asesinado el 18 de junio en su residencia en el municipio de Rosario.

187. El 2 de septiembre de 2003, la Relatora Especial envió un llamamiento urgente en relación con la situación de Elkyn Suárez Mejía, miembro de la Comunidad Gay Sampedrana, quien habría recibido amenazas de muerte en las que le habrían advertido de no declarar como testigo dentro del proceso contra dos policías acusados del homicidio de Erick David Yáñez, cometido el 15 de julio de 2003 en la población de San Pedro Sula en el norte de Honduras. De acuerdo con las informaciones recibidas, Elkyn Suárez Mejía habría presenciado el homicidio de Erick David Yáñez quien habría sido agredido por dos policías en el transcurso de una discusión, en medio de la cual, uno de ellos le habría disparado con su arma reglamentaria. Se informa también que después del inicio de las investigaciones llevadas a cabo por la fiscalía general, los dos policías habrían sido detenidos y acusados, uno por homicidio y otro por complicidad. Sin embargo, uno de los detenidos habría escapado a mediados del mes de agosto, hecho que a su vez hace temer por la seguridad de Elkyn Suárez Mejía. Finalmente se informó que el Tribunal de San Pedro Sula habría informado sobre el retiro de la protección policial asignada por la fiscalía general a Elkin Suárez.

188. El 8 de octubre de 2003, la Relatora Especial, junto con el Relator Especial sobre la cuestión de la tortura, la Representante Especial del Secretario General sobre la situación de los defensores de los derechos humanos, el Relator Especial sobre la situación de los derechos humanos y la libertades fundamentales de los indígenas y el Relator Especial sobre la independencia de magistrados y abogados, envió un llamamiento urgente en relación con la situación de Marcelino Miranda y Leonardo Miranda, dirigentes indígenas del Consejo Cívico de Organizaciones Populares e Indígenas de Honduras (COPINH). Según informaciones recibidas, el 8 de febrero de 2003 los hermanos Miranda habrían sido detenidos por agentes armados de la policía acusados de los delitos de usurpación de tierras, lesiones y homicidio. Marcelino Miranda habría sido acusado separadamente de los delitos de hurto de ganado mayor y daños mientras que Leonardo Miranda habría sido acusado de “atentado contra el Estado de Honduras”. Posteriormente varios de los cargos habrían sido retirados. Sin embargo ambos permanecerían recluidos en la prisión de Gracias, departamento de Lempira, bajo cargos de lesiones y asesinato. Allí presuntamente habrían sido torturados. Asimismo se informó que el 2 de junio de 2003, miembros del Departamento de asuntos internos de la policía habrían amenazado de muerte a Marcelino y Leonardo Miranda con el fin de que estos reconocieran los cargos en su contra. En relación con la situación de peligro respecto de Marcelino Martínez Espinal, abogado de los hermanos Miranda, se informó que el 22 de julio, personas no identificadas habrían adelantado averiguaciones respecto del abogado que incluirían detalles sobre su vehículo. El 18 de septiembre, el abogado Martínez Espinal habría reportado que un vehículo Toyota rojo le habría seguido en momentos en que se dirigía a efectuar una visita a los hermanos Miranda en la prisión de Gracias.

Comunicación enviada

189. Mediante carta de alegación enviada al Gobierno de Honduras el 29 de julio de 2003, la Relatora Especial, junto con el Relator Especial sobre la cuestión de la tortura, se refirió al caso de Hugo Ramón Sosa y Olban Salinas, quienes presuntamente habrían sido interceptados el 7 de febrero de 2003 por soldados del elemento elite del ejército cuando se dirigían a su residencia en la comunidad de Dos Caminos, provincia de Villanueva, y conducidos hacia un lugar desconocido, presuntamente a la base militar local. Según las informaciones, al día siguiente, los cuerpos de los dos jóvenes habrían sido encontrados con señales de tortura en el sitio denominado Calle de Tierra en Cerro Cascabel.

Respuestas del Gobierno

190. Mediante comunicaciones de 3 de febrero y 28 de octubre de 2003, el Gobierno de Honduras proporcionó información en relación con el llamamiento urgente que la Relatora Especial, junto con la Representante Especial del Secretario General sobre la situación de los defensores de los derechos humanos, había enviado el 29 de julio de 2003 en relación con la situación de los activistas medioambientales Gilberto Flores y el sacerdote Osmin Flores, en el departamento de Olancho. Según el Gobierno, con base en las recomendaciones producidas durante las reuniones entre los representantes de los activistas y el Gobierno se habrían ofrecido medidas de seguridad personal para los dirigentes ambientalistas de acuerdo con una lista que ellos mismos proporcionarían. También informó que se habría conformado una comisión evaluadora sobre la situación forestal en Olancho.

191. Mediante comunicación del 27 de octubre de 2003, el Gobierno de Honduras proporcionó información en relación con la carta de alegación que la Relatora Especial había enviado el 2 de septiembre de 2003, concerniente a la situación de Elkyn Suárez Mejía. Según el Gobierno, la Dirección de investigación criminal de San Pedro Sula habría realizado las averiguaciones dentro del caso de la muerte de Eric David Yáñez, habiendo logrado identificar como responsables a los policías Jairo Mejía Castillo y Carlos Iván Contreras. Asimismo informó que el 20 de agosto de 2003 se habría ordenado tomar el testimonio de Elkyn Suárez, con el fin de incluirlo como prueba anticipada dentro del mencionado proceso. El Gobierno también informó de que debido a la fuga de uno de los imputados, en la audiencia inicial del juicio solo habría comparecido Jairo Mejía Castillo.

192. Mediante comunicación del 28 de octubre de 2003, el Gobierno de Honduras proporcionó información en relación con la carta de alegación que la Relatora Especial, junto con el Relator Especial sobre la cuestión de la tortura, había enviado en relación con el homicidio de Hugo Ramón Sosa y Olban Salinas. Según el Gobierno, la Dirección General de Investigación Criminal (DGIC) habría proporcionado información relativa al hallazgo de los cadáveres en la colonia Melgar, Dos Caminos, municipio de Villanueva, departamento de Cortes. Asimismo se informó de que, de acuerdo con la autopsia, los cuerpos habrían presentado heridas en el tórax producidas por arma de fuego. Con relación a la investigación, la unidad de investigación de muertes de menores habría iniciado de oficio la investigación. Hasta el momento no habría sido posible dar paso a la etapa judicial por cuanto no se cuenta con los medios de prueba que permitan la identificación o individualización de los autores, los cuales resultan necesarios para tal fin.

India

Urgent appeals

193. On 10 March 2003, the Special Rapporteur, jointly with the Special Rapporteur on violence against women, sent an urgent appeal to the Government of India in connection with the case of Abdul Rehman Dar, his daughters Shazada and Shameema, and other members of their family. In October 2002, Shazada and Shameema were allegedly returning to their home in Dangarpura village, Budgam district, when they were abducted by a group of men reportedly recognized as “renegades” (ex-members of armed opposition groups who now work with the security forces). Shameema was reportedly returned to her family after three days but the “renegades” visited the family home and threatened to shoot her father if he sought assistance from the police to secure the release of Shazada, who was reportedly held captive for three months and forced to live as the wife of one of the “renegades”, a 40-year-old man who was already married. She was held in his house and continually watched. In mid-February 2003, she reportedly escaped and returned home. On the night of 23 February the “renegade” who had held her captive allegedly came to the family home with two other men. All three were armed. They threatened to burn down the house, abduct the two girls again and harm Mr. Dar unless Shazada returned to them. Mr. Dar persuaded the men to let him have time to consider their demand, and they left. Mr. Dar and the two daughters immediately left their home and went to stay with friends; his wife and three younger children remained to look after the family’s land and cattle. It was reported that the family’s lawyer filed a petition in the Jammu and Kashmir High Court on 28 February 2003 seeking protection for the family, but that no hearing date had yet been set at the time the appeal was sent.

194. On 9 July 2003, the Special Rapporteur sent an urgent appeal to the Government of India regarding the case of Zahira Sheikh and her mother, Sehruneesa Sheikh, who allegedly testified against individuals accused of taking part in communal violence in Gujarat in February/March 2002 and who reportedly received death threats as a result. According to the information received, following an attack on a train in Godhra, Gujarat, on 27 February 2002 in which 59 Hindus were killed, the Muslim community was allegedly subjected to brutality and violence. More than 2,000 people were reportedly killed. It was also alleged that 14 people were killed at the Best Bakery in Baroda on 1 March 2003, some of whom were burned to death. According to reports, witnesses subsequently testified to the police, the National Human Rights Commission and human rights organizations that a mob of about 500 people attacked the bakery. Zahira and Sehruneesa Sheikh were allegedly forced to lie to the court when they said that they could not identify the assailants of the Best Bakery. They were allegedly harassed into retracting their statements and received death threats from powerful local individuals. According to the information received, almost half of the witnesses in the case retracted their statements during June 2003. Fears were expressed that similar threats could be made against other witnesses in other trials that were pending in Gujarat concerning communal violence. These witnesses did not reportedly benefit from any protection, despite the reported calls by the National Human Rights Commission that such protection be provided.

195. On 5 August 2003, the Special Rapporteur and the Special Rapporteur on torture sent a joint urgent appeal to the Government of India regarding the situation of Ninthoujam Bobby, also known as Dhanajit, a 30-year-old resident of Imphal West District, Manipur, and former member of the United National Liberation Front (UNLF), an armed group demanding the independence of Manipur. His whereabouts were reportedly unknown since he was allegedly arrested without a warrant on 30 July 2003 by members of the 17th Battalion of the Assam Rifles stationed at Chingamathak, Singjamei, Imphal. In view of his alleged incommunicado detention at an undisclosed location, and allegations according to which he was beaten at the time of his arrest, fears were expressed that he was subjected to torture, other forms of ill-treatment, or to summary or extrajudicial execution.

196. On 11 August 2003, the Special Rapporteur and the Special Rapporteur on torture sent a joint urgent appeal to the Government of India regarding the situation of Ashem Inaoba Singh, Oinam Dilip Singh and Ningthoujam Mangoljao, alias Sanjeev, Chief of the Department of Communication and Publicity of the Revolutionary Peoples Front (RPF), who were reportedly arrested on 6 July 2003 by a team of Manipur Police commandos from the Lamphel area of Imphal city. After their arrest, Mr. Mangoljao was reportedly separated from the two other men. Inaoba and Dilip Singh were reportedly taken into police custody at Manipur Police Commando Barracks in Imphal. They were allegedly released on 7 July 2003 on personal release bond. They were reportedly told by the police that Mr. Mangoljao escaped from police custody. On 8 July 2003, the dead body of Mr. Mangoljao, reportedly bearing extensive bruises and wounds, was allegedly retrieved from the Nambul River near Irom Meijrao, about 10 km from the place of arrest. On 20 August 2003, they allegedly requested police protection from the secretary and director general of police of Gujarat and the police commissioner of Ahmedabad, but there had reportedly been no reply to that request at the time of the communication. According to information received, they also filed an application for protection with the Supreme Court of India on 1 September 2003.

On 9 July 2003, the Special Rapporteur, jointly with the Special Rapporteur on the right to freedom of opinion and expression, the Special Rapporteur on torture, the Chairman-Rapporteur of the Working Group on Arbitrary Detention and the Special Rapporteur on the independence of judges and lawyers, sent an urgent appeal concerning information received regarding Gustaf Ayomi, John Hilipok, Welmus Asso and Elias Asso who were arrested on 7 July 2003 during a pro-independence demonstration in the town of Wamena, Jayawijaya District, Papua Province, by members of the police. The demonstration reportedly took place outside the local parliament building at which the Morning Star flag, symbol of support for Papuan independence, was raised. A police patrol arrived and tried to break up the demonstration. The police stated that they opened fire after the demonstrators attacked them. Iyut Heselo was allegedly killed during this incident. Welmus and Elias Asso were reportedly shot and taken to the local hospital. According to the information received, Gustaf Ayomi and John Hilipok were taken to the Wamena police camp where they were reportedly denied access to lawyers, and their families were too frightened to visit them. In view of the incommunicado nature of their detention, fears were expressed that they may be at risk of torture or ill-treatment and that their lives could be in danger.

Communications sent

212. On 4 June 2003, the Special Rapporteur and the Special Rapporteur on torture jointly sent allegations to the Government of Indonesia regarding the following individual cases.

213. M. Hamzah A. Jalil reportedly died as a result of the treatment he was subjected to by a detachment of the 100th Medan Air Defence on 2 January 1999 after he allegedly participated in a demonstration at the North Aceh Regency Office. According to the information received, he was hit with a rifle butt, repeatedly kicked, and stabbed with a traditional knife known as a rencong. His body reportedly bore signs of bruises.

214. Muktar Pawang Id, a 26-year-old man from Lhokseumawe, was reportedly arrested on 3 January 1999 and taken to the Komite Nasional Permuda Indonesia (KNPI, the Indonesian National Youth Council) by a detachment of the 100th Medan Air Defence and police from the Mobile Brigade (Brimob) of North Aceh Police Headquarters. He was allegedly accused of being a member of the Gerakan Aceh Merdeka (GAM, the Free Aceh Movement) and to have participated in a rally at the North Aceh Regency Office. According to the information received, he was kicked and beaten to death.

215. On 29 July 2003, the Special Rapporteur sent an allegation to the Government of Indonesia regarding the following cases.

216. Luther Hendrik Albert was reportedly shot dead and his companion, Elizabeth Margaret, was reportedly shot in the knee after troops opened fire in the West Aceh. It was reported that the couple was travelling on tourist visad but had not registered with police.

217. On 21 May 2003, Indonesian soldiers reportedly dragged a group of men and boys out of their huts in the village of Mapa Mamplam. The soldiers allegedly lined the victims up and shot each one dead. Among those killed were three boys, aged 11, 13 and 14. The military immediately rejected this reports and established a team composed of two soldiers and two Indonesian journalists to verify the allegation. After the investigation, the military reportedly claimed that all the villagers, including the three boys, were spies for the Free Aceh Movement. The Special Rapporteur wished to draw the attention of the Government to the fact that even if that were true, this assumption did not justify the summary executions of the villagers.

218. On 21 May 2003, the Indonesian military was also reportedly responsible for the summary executions of 10 civilians in Bieureun district: two in Pata Mamplam, two in Pulo Raboe and six in Cot Raboe, including two 12-year-old boys.

219. On 23 May 2003, Tgk Radhi, from Synyeu village, Indrapuri subdistrict, was reportedly arrested by Indonesian army troops in Pasar Lama Indrapuri and taken to an unknown destination. His body was reportedly found on 25 May 2003 in Indrapuri.

Communication received

221. On 7 August 2003, the Government of Indonesia sent its response to joint communication jointly sent on 9 July 2003 concerning the injuring and fatal shooting of several people at a pro-independence gathering in Wamena, Papua. According to the Government, at approximately 3 a.m. on 7 July 2003, Jayawijaya police were informed that a number of people had gathered inside the compound of the regency's legislative council, located at Jl. Yos Sudarso, Wamena, and were attempting to hoist separatist flags. It was reported that two police units were promptly dispatched to the area where they interrupted a ceremony involving several men armed with traditional weapons who were raising three New Melanesian flags to mark what they called the "New Melanesian" anniversary. The Government indicated that a number of other individuals were posted as lookouts and were gathered approximately 500 m away from the flagpoles.

222. According to the Government, efforts by the police to persuade the demonstrators to disperse failed and the latter instead gathered around the flagpoles in a show of defiance. Several policemen approached the group in order to persuade them to lower their flags peacefully. The Government further indicated that, after negotiating with the men, identified as Welmus Asso, Gustaf Ayomi, Hery Asso, Jean Hesegen and Yut Heselo, for about an hour, the latter became increasingly aggressive and eventually attacked their interlocutors using arrows and machetes, and forcing the police to fire three warning shots. In the ensuing melee, Yut Heselo, a 30-year-old man, was fatally wounded, while Hery and Wilhelmus Asso were injured and evacuated to a hospital in Wamena for treatment.

223. According to the Government, the Papuan police did not arrest the two persons named Elias Asso and John Hilipok mentioned in the Special Rapporteurs' communication, and it also denied that the number of detainees quoted in the letter was accurate. The Government maintained that, according to police records, the five men taken into custody in the wake of the incident were Hery and Wilhelmus Asso, Gustaf Ayomi, Jean Hesegen and Mayus Togostli, all from Wamena. They were questioned by the police regarding their involvement in the case and subsequently charged with violating articles 106 and 110 (offences against the State), as well as article 212 (attacking the security forces) of the Penal Code and Law 12/1951 (possession of firearms and sharp weapons). The Government argued that the detainees were not held incommunicado and that they were accompanied by a lawyer throughout the investigation process. It was also stated that, during their detention, none of the men suffered any form of torture or cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment.

224. The Government further indicated that on its behalf, the Coordinator Minister for Political and Security Affairs, Susilo Bambang Yudhoyono, ordered a thorough investigation in order to shed light on the incident. In this respect, the separatists in custody informed investigators that the flags were raised following an order issued by Matias Wenda, a leader of the rebel Free Papua Movement (OPM), in an attempt to foster dissent and incite people to violence. The Government underlined that, while accepting the right of the people to protest peacefully and to voice dissent, it cannot tolerate armed resistance, especially directed against government officials and employees. The Government ordered the security forces to act firmly against anyone breaking the law. It also repeatedly made it clear that secessionist activity such as flag-raising ceremonies would not be tolerated and that any offender would be dealt with firmly by the police, in accordance with the law. Finally, the Government reported that police intervention is fully justified in such cases and that the Jayawijaya police had acted according to procedure in the case.

On 19 May 2003, the Special Rapporteur and the Special Rapporteur on torture sent a joint urgent appeal to the Government of the Islamic Republic of Iran in connection with information received regarding summary executions that allegedly occurred and were at risk of occurring after a riot started on 9 February 2003 in a prison in Esfahan. Two prisoners were reportedly killed and 10 others seriously injured during the riot. The rioters were demanding the release of those who were arrested on drug offences and kept in solitary confinement. Since that time a number of prisoners were reportedly executed although they had not been sentenced to the death penalty. Seyed Mahmoud Mirsafian, who was reportedly sentenced to 15 years of imprisonment and a fine for a drug-related offence, was allegedly executed on 4 May 2003. Officials reportedly informed his family that his brother, Seyed Atta Naser Mirsafian, who was in jail for the same offence, would be executed in the following days. Fears were expressed that he and other prisoners would be summarily executed in these circumstances.

226. On 26 May 2003, the Special Rapporteur sent an urgent appeal to the Government of Iran regarding the situation of Mohammad Esmaeelzadeh, 35, who was reportedly facing imminent execution after his death sentence was allegedly upheld by the Supreme Court on 2 March 1999. Mr. Esmaeelzadeh is reported to be an activist and supporter of the Kurdish Democratic Party of Iran and was arrested in Shaherviran, a city near Mahabad in the north-west of the country, on 8 August 1996. He was severely wounded at the time of his arrested and his left leg had to be amputated after he was denied medication and surgery. It is alleged that he was tortured and ill-treated during detention in Mahabad prison. Reports indicate that he was sentenced to death on various charges, including “armed struggle against the Islamic regime”, “membership of a proscribed party”, “participating in the killing of three local collaborators”, as well as “setting road construction machines on fire” and other security provisions, by Branch 1 of the Islamic Revolutionary Court, located in Mahabad. On 30 September 2003, the Special Rapporteur, jointly with the Special Rapporteur on violence against women, sent an urgent appeal to the Government of Iran regarding the situation of Afsaneh Nouroozi, who was at imminent risk of execution after a death sentence against her was reportedly upheld by the Supreme Court in August 2003. The Supreme Leader of Iran, Ayatollah Sayed Ali Khamenei, was reportedly the only authority able to grant her clemency at that stage. She was arrested in 1997 after she killed the Head of Police Intelligence in Kish, southern Iran. She allegedly acted in self-defence in order to protect herself from being raped after the high-ranking official entered her hotel room while her husband was away. At her trial, her lawyer cited article 61 of the Islamic Criminal Law which states: "If whilst defending one's life, honour, chastity, property or freedom against any immediate or imminent aggression, one makes an action which is an offence, provided that all of the following conditions are met, one will not be prosecuted and punished: (a) the defense is proportionate to the danger or aggression; (b) the action is not excessive; (c) calling the governmental forces is not possible immediately, or calling them is not effective in repelling the aggression or danger." According to reports, she was sentenced to death for the crime and held in Bandar Abbas prison in southern Iran, which is reportedly known for its poor conditions. In August 2003, her husband, Mostafa Jihangiri, complained under Article 90, a parliamentary commission where citizens' complaints and grievances are examined, in regard to the conditions in which she was detained.

The 54-year-old journalist, who had both Canadian and Iranian nationality, was reportedly arrested on 23 June 2003 while taking photos on the northern outskirts of Tehran on her way to Turkmenistan for a journalistic assignment. Her relatives affirmed that she was beaten into a coma by her interrogators. It is reported that her family unsuccessfully urged the Government to have a foreign doctor examine her. Moreover, they described her arrest as arbitrary and underlined the lack of suitable medical attention. On the other hand, Iranian officials allegedly said that Ms. Kazemi began to feel ill while under interrogation on 26 June 2003, and was immediately taken to Baghiatollah Azam hospital where she suffered a stroke. It was underlined that President Khatami personally ordered an investigation to determine the reasons for her sudden death and who was responsible.

230. Mohsen Rostami, a 32-year-old man from the Narmak district of Tehran, was reportedly arrested in Irandshar and detained at an unknown location and allegedly died on 17 November 2002, shortly after his release. It was believed that he had been tortured and administered a lethal injection by agents of the Iranian Ministry of Intelligence and Security (MOIS), who reportedly accused him of attempting to leave the country to join the opposition Peoples' Mojahedin Organization. An autopsy report from the coroner's office allegedly confirmed that the cause of death was a poisonous injection that resulted in fatal damage to the liver. His family was reportedly threatened by the MOIS in order to prevent them from speaking publicly about the case.

231. Habibulla Tanhaiyan, aged 41, was reportedly arrested on 11 December 2002 in Sanandaj. He had previously been arrested four times and charged with cooperating with the Democratic Party of Iranian Kurdistan. He was allegedly subjected to severe ill-treatment during these detentions. He was reportedly executed on 15 December 2002. His corpse, which bore signs of torture, was handed over to his family four days later.

232. On 20 October 2003, the Special Rapporteur sent a communication to the Government of Iran in connection with the case of Mohammed Saadat Fath, Nader Ebrahimi, Ali Farsameh and Davoud Jafari, four Iranian prisoners who were allegedly hanged in public at the same time in different locations in the city of Arak, in western Iran, on 30 January 2003. There were allegations of flawed legal procedures, including lack of transparency during the trial and appeals. As one of the prisoners was reportedly executed in front of the university's main entrance, it was also reported that these executions were carried out in order to frighten Arak University students who had allegedly been staging frequent demonstrations in the preceding months.

Communication received

233. On 23 October 2003, the Government of Iran transmitted its response to the joint urgent appeal of 30 September 2003 concerning the situation of Afsaneh Nouroozi. The Government stated that her death sentence was issued and later upheld by the Supreme Court but that the Head of the Judiciary ordered that the implementation of the sentence be postponed for further consideration of the case.

235. Sa'adi Suleiman Ibrahim al-'Ubaydi was reportedly shot dead on 14 May 2003. On that morning, two United States armed vehicles allegedly crashed through the stone perimeter wall surrounding his home, located behind the courthouse in Ramadi, and reportedly drove right up to the door of the house. It was reported that there was no use of firearms by Iraqis during the demonstration but that the demonstrators were throwing stones.

237. Mohammad al-Kubaisi, a 12-year-old boy, was allegedly shot by United States forces in the Hay al-Jihad area of Baghdad on 26 June 2003. He was reportedly in charge of carrying the bedding up to the roof where his family slept during the summer. From 9:30 p.m. dozens of United States troops were carrying out search operations in the houses and, at around 10.30 p.m., Mohammad reportedly stopped on the stairs up to the roof to watch the soldiers. One soldier saw him from the house opposite and opened fire at him. According to information received, about 20 United States soldiers entered the house after the shooting in order to search it. They allegedly kicked Mohammad's mother aside as she held her son who was bleeding and did not offer medical treatment. Some neighbours reportedly tried to drive Mohammad to the hospital but they were stopped by soldiers who ordered them to go home since the curfew had started. Meanwhile, Mohammad al-Kubaisi bled to death.

238. Merdan Muhammad 'Ali, aged 74, was injured and his wife killed on 1 July 2003 when United States troops allegedly opened fire on his car in Jama' Kirkuk. When he was at a distance of about 50 m from the vehicles, he reportedly heard gunshots coming from behind his car. He allegedly stopped the car, heard shouting, and decided to take a left turn to get away from the apparent danger when soldiers reportedly opened fire on the car. According to information received, he was not aware of any warning shots having been fired. His right knee was allegedly fractured by a bullet while his wife was shot dead, hit by several bullets. Reports indicate that Merdan was visited by a United States military representative while in hospital and that the official allegedly apologized but made no reference to the possibility of an investigation.

239. Radi Nu'ma was reportedly arrested by the United Kingdom Royal Military Police on 8 May 2003 and died in custody that same day. On 10 May 2003, United Kingdom soldiers reportedly delivered a written note to the family's house stating that Mr. Nu'ma had suffered a heart attack while he was being questioned. He was taken to the military hospital, and the family should contact the hospital for further information. Allegedly unaware that he was dead, the family was told by the hospital that no person of that name was admitted, but they subsequently discovered his body in the morgue. The Royal Military Police reportedly delivered an unidentified corpse to the hospital on the evening of 8 May 2003, telling staff that the cause of death was a heart attack but failing to provide other information, such as the name of the deceased. It was later reported that the Royal Military Police Special Investigations Branch visited the hospital. According to information received, the Royal Military Police launched an investigation into this case as the family of the deceased claim that Mr. Nu'ma died from ill-treatment and torture while in custody.

On 26 March 2003, former KCHR employees, accompanied by unknown men in uniforms, allegedly entered the KCHR office and tried to take some computers and data. The Government, however, affirmed that the Office of the Procurator-General carried out an independent investigation and found out that there was no threat to her life or health. On 30 July 2003, the Special Rapporteur and the Special Rapporteur on torture sent an appeal to the Government of the Libyan Arab Jamahiriya in connection with the situation of seven Eritrean nationals, Zacharias Michael Belay, Misghina Siyoum, Mesfin, Rezene, Yonas, Michael and Abel, who were allegedly detained in Libya and were reported to be at imminent risk of being forcibly returned to Eritrea where they could face torture, secret and incommunicado detention, as well as possible extrajudicial execution. The men were reportedly military conscripts aged in their 20s who had deserted from the army because of the alleged indefinite extension of their military service. They reportedly escaped to the Sudan in 2002 and travelled to Libya, hoping to reach a country of asylum in Europe. On 11 August 2002, they were allegedly arrested by the Libyan authorities as they were attempting to cross the Mediterranean Sea. They were reportedly convicted of illegal entry and sentenced to three months' imprisonment. According to the information received, the punishment for deserters in Eritrea could be death, although it was also alleged that deserters were often detained and tortured, then forced to resume their military service. Ragupathy reportedly had had a prosthetic heart valve installed some years before, which was said to require an anticoagulant known as waffarin. It was alleged that due to the operation he had an eight-inch scar on his neck and chest. On 20 July 2002, he reportedly started complaining to police officers of chest pains and inability to sleep. His condition allegedly worsened, and he was not able to eat for three days and started vomiting. The Special Rapporteurs were informed that his repeated requests for medical attention were denied until 26 July 2002, when he was eventually taken to a clinic. Although he was given some medication, his condition reportedly deteriorated and he was taken by the police to Putrajaya hospital the next day. He was reportedly declared dead on 28 July 2002. According to the information received, the officer in charge of the Sepang district police denied any negligence on the part of the police.

290. M. Uthayamaran, aged 33, was reportedly arrested on 26 August 2002 and subsequently detained for 77 days in several police stations in Kuala Lumpur, Kuantan, Temerloh, Rawang, Ipoh and Kajang, where he allegedly died. According to a post-mortem report, the cause of his death was a heart-related disease. However, his wife reportedly lodged a complaint alleging that he had had no cardiovascular problems.

291. Vivashanu Pillai, aged 24, was reportedly found dead in a rubbish container in the Klang River, near Bangsar, on 4 August 2002. He was reportedly arrested by police on 1 August 2002 and detained at the Dang Wangi police station from where, according to the police, he allegedly escaped on the following day. Although his corpse was decomposed and bloated, a fellow detainee reportedly identified it due to a bruise on the right buttock and injuries on his wrists. While in detention he was allegedly beaten with cables while handcuffed. Concerns were expressed that he may have died in police custody before his body was thrown in the river. According to the information received, in September 2002, the Deputy Home Minister informed the Parliament that police investigations had revealed that the police were not responsible for any criminal behaviour.

Communication received

292. On 27 November 2003, the Government of Malaysia responded to the communication sent by the Special Rapporteur and the Special Rapporteur on torture on 30 July 2003 concerning the deaths of the following individuals while in police custody.

293. M. Ragupathy, arrested on robbery charges, reportedly complained of breathing difficulties on 26 July 2002 while in a police lock-up. He was taken to the government clinic in Sepang, where he was given treatment and medication before returning to the lock-up. He again complained of breathing difficulties the next day and was again taken to the clinic. The clinic referred him to the Putrajaya Hospital where he was admitted into the Intensive Care Unit and pronounced dead at 2.45 a.m. on 28 July 2002. According to the Government, the autopsy revealed that he had died of congestive heart failure and a stenosed mitral valve.

294. M. Uthayamaran was taken from the Kajang lock-up to the Kajang Hospital when he complained of chest pains on 10 November 2002. The Government reported that he was admitted to the emergency ward and pronounced dead, and that the cause of death was ischaemic heart disease.

295. Vivashanu Pillai had originally been remanded at Dang Wangi police station. On 2 August 2003, he managed to escape during a transfer to the Tun H.S. Lee police station and could not be found. The Government informed the Special Rapporteurs that the deceased was subsequently found in a dumpster in Bangsar and was identified by his parents and close relatives. The autopsy could not identify the cause of death.

296. The Government finally reported that in each of the three cases, and in any case involving death of prisoners or in police lock-ups, the police officer in charge would need to submit a formal report of the case. This report would then form the basis for the ensuing investigation into the deaths to determine if foul play had occurred, in which case the perpetrators would be punished to the full extent of the law. The Government of Malaysia informed the Special Rapporteur that it took a seriously view of the issue of deaths in custody and took the necessary steps to ensure that such occurrences were not commonplace. According to the Government, these deaths were not the result of any kind of physical torture or bodily harm caused by the authorities during detention. They were isolated cases and immediate medical attention was rendered whenever possible.

El 29 de diciembre de 2002, según los informes, dos desconocidos en un automóvil habrían tomado fotografías de la casa donde viven los hijos del periodista. Además, el 9 de enero de 2003, Ángel Mario Ksheratto habría sido detenido por agentes de la Procuraduría General de Justicia del Estado (PGJE) a consecuencia de una denuncia por difamación presentada por un alto cargo del comité de construcción de escuelas de Chiapas en relación con los artículos publicados en agosto. Asimismo, la PGJE habría indicado que estaba investigando un robo de automóvil con agravantes presuntamente cometido por Ángel Mario Ksheratto. El periodista habría sido liberado condicionalmente en espera de ser juzgado por el cargo de difamación. Aunque un tribunal federal habría ordenado temporalmente que las autoridades estatales no lo detengan, Ángel Mario Ksheratto seguiría bajo investigación en espera de procesamiento. Se teme que estos cargos tengan una motivación política.

298. El 14 de febrero de 2003 la Relatora Especial, junto con el Relator Especial sobre la cuestión de la tortura, la Representante Especial del Secretario General sobre la situación de los defensores de los derechos humanos y el Relator Especial sobre la independencia de magistrados y abogados, envió un llamamiento urgente en relación con la situación de inseguridad en la que se encontrarían Blanca Guadalupe López, Víctor Javier García y su esposa Miriam García, quienes habrían sido víctimas de una serie de amenazas y actos de intimidación. El 9 de noviembre de 2001 Víctor Javier García y Gustavo González Meza, esposo de Blanca Guadalupe, fueron detenidos por un grupo de personas enmascaradas no identificadas en Ciudad Juárez, Estado de Chihuahua. Según informes, habrían sido torturados hasta que confesaron el asesinato de ocho mujeres jóvenes en Ciudad Juárez. El 12 de noviembre de 2001, Gustavo González Meza y Víctor Javier García habrían sido acusados del asesinato y la violación de ocho mujeres. Desde que Gustavo González Meza y Víctor Javier García fueron detenidos, sus familiares habrían reivindicado reiteradamente su inocencia y habrían interpuesto una denuncia ante las autoridades del Estado por su detención y tortura, por tal motivo serían víctimas de una serie de amenazas. También se informó de que el 2 de febrero de 2002, Miriam García habría recibido un llamado anónimo diciéndole que “moriría si seguía diciendo lo que pensaba”. Asimismo, el 7 de febrero de 2003, dos personas habrían entrado por la fuerza a su casa cuando ella se disponía a asistir a una conferencia organizada por organizaciones no gubernamentales locales para protestar por las muertes y los secuestros de mujeres jóvenes en Ciudad Juárez y Chihuahua. Según los informes, hombres le habrían amenazado diciéndole: «Si te presentas al evento de la tarde, te mueres, porque eres tú o tu esposo, así que ya sabes». Por otro lado, se informa que las residencias de los familiares de los detenidos estarían vigiladas por desconocidos. En cuanto a Mario Escobedo Anaya, abogado de Gustavo González Meza, se informó que habría muerto por disparos a manos de la Policía Judicial del Estado. Según los informes oficiales, la policía habría actuado en defensa propia porque el abogado habría disparado primero. Según informes, esta versión se contradice con la de testigos que afirman que Mario Escobedo Anaya no disparó a la policía. Dichos acontecimientos se habrían producido a pesar de que la Comisión Interamericana de Derechos Humanos (CIDH) dictó medidas de protección para Miriam García, Blanca Guadalupe, y el abogado Sergio Dante en septiembre de 2002. Asimismo se informó que el 8 de febrero de 2003, uno de los detenidos, Gustavo González Meza, habría sido hallado muerto en su celda en la prisión de máxima seguridad de Chihuahua. Según los responsables de la prisión, murió como resultado de un coágulo sanguíneo tras haber sido operado de una hernia. Sin embargo, aún no se conocerían los resultados de la autopsia, y existiría preocupación de que su muerte haya sido resultado de las torturas a las que fue sometido tras su detención en 2001. Según informes, se teme por la seguridad del otro detenido, Víctor Javier García, puesto que habría recibido amenazas de muerte en prisión.

299. El 24 de julio de 2003, la Relatora Especial, junto con el Relator Especial sobre la independencia de magistrados y abogados, envió un llamamiento urgente respecto a la situación de peligro en la cual se encontrarían David Meza y Jesús Argueta. De acuerdo con las informaciones recibidas, tras ser detenido David Meza, habría sido torturado y obligado a firmar una confesión en la que se reconocía autor del asesinato de Neyra Azucena Cervantes. Al día siguiente se habría retractado de dicha confesión, afirmando que habría sido torturado y amenazado de muerte por agentes de policía. En cuanto a Jesús Argueta, se informó de que habría sido sometido a una presión psicológica indebida para hacerle confesar el asesinato. Además, se informó de que sus interrogadores le habrían amenazado con matarle si revelaba el trato que habría recibido bajo custodia.

300. El 30 de julio de 2003, la Relatora Especial, junto con el Relator Especial sobre la promoción y protección del derecho a la libertad de opinión y de expresión, envió un llamamiento urgente en relación con la situación de José Leobardo Reveles Morado, periodista del diario El financiero. Según las informaciones, el 21 de junio de 2003, el Sr. Reveles habría denunciado ante la Procuraduría General de la República que había sido víctima de hostigamiento verbal, acoso físico, amenazas y seguimientos. Tales amenazas estarían relacionadas con reportajes publicados en el diario El financiero. Asimismo, el 30 de mayo de 2003 dicho diario habría publicado informaciones según las cuales varias personas que dijeron pertenecer a la Secretaría de seguridad pública federal habrían agredido al diputado Saúl Escobar al haberlo confundido con el Sr. Reveles Morado.

301. El 15 de agosto de 2003, la Relatora Especial, junto con la Representante Especial del Secretario General sobre la situación de los defensores de los derechos humanos y el Relator Especial sobre la situación de los derechos humanos y la libertades fundamentales de los indígenas, envió un llamamiento urgente en relación con la muerte de Griselda Tirado Evangelio, abogada y activista defensora de los derechos de los indígenas en la región de la Sierra Norte en Puebla y miembro de la Organización Independiente de Totonaca. Según las informaciones, el día 11 de agosto 2003 un grupo de individuos no identificados habrían rodeado la casa de Griselda Tirado Evangelio intimidando y amenazando a varios de sus familiares, incluidos algunos menores de edad cuya integridad física se teme pueda estar en peligro. Asimismo se informó de que la familia habría expresado preocupación por la supuesta falta de agilidad en el proceso de investigación. Según las informaciones la Sra. Tirado Evangelio habría muerto como consecuencia de los disparos recibidos cuando se disponía a salir de su domicilio, su muerte estaría presuntamente relacionada con su trabajo como defensora de los derechos de los indígenas así como con su supuesta candidatura para las elecciones municipales.

Comunicaciones enviadas

302. Mediante carta de alegación enviada al Gobierno de México el 7 de agosto de 2003, la Relatora Especial, junto con el Relator Especial sobre la cuestión de la tortura, se refirió al caso Francisco Medellín Alberto, quien habría fallecido el 28 de mayo de 2002, supuestamente tras haber sido sometido a malos tratos por miembros de la policía de Monterrey, Nuevo León. Su cadáver habría presentado marcas de tortura, sus uñas habrían sido arrancadas y el cadáver habría presentado contusiones en la cabeza y otras partes del cuerpo.

303. Mediante carta de alegación enviada al Gobierno de México el 22 de agosto de 2003, la Relatora Especial se refirió al homicidio de Carlos Sánchez López. Según informaciones, el mes de marzo de 2003 en desarrollo de una manifestación de protesta contra el alcalde y las autoridades civiles del municipio de Unión Hidalgo en el Estado de Oaxaca, la policía habría abierto fuego contra varios de los manifestantes ocasionando la muerte del indígena zapoteca Manuel Salinas Santiago e hiriendo de gravedad a otros diez manifestantes, dos de los cuales presuntamente habrían fallecido a consecuencia de las lesiones provocadas. Asimismo se informó de que otras protestas, con el fin de presionar la investigación, captura y juzgamiento de los responsables de tales hechos, se habrían efectuado durante el mes de mayo de 2003. En dicha ocasión la policía habría procedido al arresto de Carlos Manzo, miembro del Consejo Ciudadano Unidalguense (CCU). El 17 de agosto, el diputado Carlos Sánchez López, quien actuaba en defensa de los miembros del CCU detenidos en desarrollo de tales manifestaciones, habría informado a su familia sobre su intención de reunirse con la comunidad indígena del municipio de Unión Hidalgo. Horas más tarde, su cuerpo habría sido encontrado en uno de los barrios de Juchitán, Oaxaca. Se presume que su muerte podría guardar relación con sus actividades de representación de miembros de las comunidades indígenas detenidos en desarrollo de actividades de protesta.

Respuestas del Gobierno

304. Mediante comunicación del 8 de agosto de 2003, el Gobierno de México proporcionó información en relación con el llamamiento urgente que la Relatora Especial, junto con el Relator Especial sobre la independencia de magistrados y abogados, había enviado el 29 de julio de 2003 en relación con la situación de David Meza. Según el Gobierno, el mandamiento de detención de David Meza se habría efectuado dentro del término legal de 48 horas y durante la declaración ante el ministerio público. El indiciado habría contado con la asistencia de un abogado de oficio así como con la presencia de un representante de la comisión estatal de derechos humanos. También informó de que posteriormente habría sido puesto a disposición del juez sexto penal del distrito judicial de Morelos, el cual habría considerado que la declaración de tortura así como la prueba pericial no tendrían validez, por cuanto los certificados médicos, emitidos previamente al segundo dictamen, establecerían que el sindicato no presentaba huellas de violencia antes o después de la declaración ante el ministerio público. Con respecto a la situación jurídica del Sr. Meza, el Gobierno informó que en la actualidad el indiciado se encuentra detenido y su situación jurídica estaría por resolverse. Posteriormente mediante comunicación del 11 de noviembre de 2003, el Gobierno informó sobre la existencia de actas certificadas por juzgado que conoce la causa y de un video que contendría la filmación de la declaración judicial de David Meza. Dicho material probatorio corroboraría que esta persona no fue coaccionada ni física ni psicológicamente para rendir su declaración.

305. Mediante comunicación del 10 de marzo de 2003, el Gobierno de México proporcionó información en relación con el llamamiento urgente que la Relatora Especial, junto con el Relator Especial sobre la promoción y protección del derecho a la libertad de opinión y de expresión, había enviado el 20 de enero de 2003 en relación con la situación de inseguridad en que se encontraría el periodista Ángel Mario Ksheratto Flores. Según el Gobierno, Ángel Mario Ksheratto habría obtenido libertad condicional mediante el pago de la fianza y la reparación de los daños. Sin embargo continuaría vinculado al proceso penal por los delitos de difamación y calumnia. Asimismo informó de que existirían otras investigaciones en curso, por el mismo delito y por robo de vehículo; ambas se encontrarían en proceso de integración.

306. Por carta del 5 de noviembre de 2003, le Gobierno de México proporcionó información en relación con la carta de alegación que la Relatora Especial, junto con el Relator Especial sobre la cuestión de la tortura, había enviado el 5 de agosto de 2003 en relación con la muerte de Francisco Medellín Alberto. Según el Gobierno, se habría dado inicio a la averiguación previa contra los miembros de la policía ministerial del Estado Oscar Muñoz Salinas y Hugo Carlos Costilla Olvera como presuntos responsables de los delitos de abuso de autoridad y encubrimiento. Posteriormente la autoridad correspondiente habría ejercido acción penal contra Jorge Julio Estupiñán de la Rosa, Juan Manuel Gutiérrez Navarro, Sergio Martínez Acosta y Juan Cruz Rosales, por los delitos de abuso de autoridad, tortura y homicidio. Asimismo informó que se habría decretado auto formal de prisión en contra de las personas antes mencionadas. El Gobierno también informó de que la investigación se encuentra en etapa de instrucción y que la Procuraduría General de Justicia del Estado de Nuevo León habría brindado un apoyo económico a la concubina del Sr. Medellín Alberto.

307. El 14 de noviembre de 2003, el Gobierno de México proporcionó información relativa al llamamiento urgente que la Relatora Especial, junto con la Relatora Especial sobre la violencia contra la mujer, sus causas y consecuencias y el Relator Especial sobre la cuestión de la tortura, había enviado el 14 de marzo de 2002 en relación con la situación de Valentina Rosendo Cantú. Según el Gobierno, en diciembre de 2002 la investigación adelantada por la Comisión Nacional de Derechos Humanos (CNDH) habría determinado no contar con pruebas determinantes que permitieran concluir que la víctima hubiera sido objeto de una agresión sexual por parte de elementos del ejército mexicano. Asimismo, el Gobierno informó de que la Procuraduría General de Justicia Militar también habría adelantado una investigación previa, dentro de la cual habría recibido las declaraciones del médico general y la trabajadora social del hospital de Ayutla de los Libres. Según tales testimonios, Valentina Rosendo Cantú nunca habría hecho referencia a golpes o violación por parte de ninguna persona. El Gobierno también informó que se habrían realizado diligencias de confrontación para el reconocimiento físico de 30 integrales de la base de operaciones Ríos, la cual se encontraba operando el 16 de febrero de 2002. Asimismo, 31 fotografías del personal militar que integraba la base de operaciones Hernández, habrían sido puestas a la vista de la víctima sin que se hubiese reconocido a ninguno de ellos como agresor. El Gobierno también informó que existirían ciertos testimonios de acuerdo con los cuales se pondría en duda la ocurrencia de los hechos. Finalmente el Gobierno informó que al no existir evidencias que corroboren los hechos objeto de la denuncia, el agente del ministerio público se encuentra constitucional y legalmente impedido para ejercitar alguna acción penal.

308. Mediante comunicación del 10 de noviembre de 2003, el Gobierno de México proporcionó información en relación con la carta de alegación de fecha 22 de agosto de 2003 en la cual la Relatora Especial hizo referencia al homicidio de Carlos Sánchez López. Según el Gobierno, de acuerdo con la información proporcionada por los médicos legistas, se estableció como causa de la muerte: traumatismo craneoencefálico profundo con fracturas múltiples por contusión directa por disparo de arma de fuego. La investigación se habría iniciado de oficio por el ministerio público encontrándose sujetos a proceso penal, bajo auto formal de prisión, los particulares José Manuel Guerra Jiménez y Carlos Jiménez Santiago. Con relación a la muerte de Manuel Salinas Santiago se habrían identificado como responsables el director de seguridad pública municipal Víctor Gutiérrez Orozco, los comandantes de la policía municipal Sergio Cabrera Carrasco y Tomas Gutiérrez López y los policías municipales Marcos Cheves Ríos, Perfecto Ordaz Ruiz, Salvador López López, Jesús Sánchez Gómez, Ismael Peña Escobar, Arturo Santiago López y Aurelio Altamirano Amador. Los presuntos responsables se encontrarían a disposición del juez bajo auto formal de prisión.

309. Mediante comunicación del 11 noviembre de 2003, el Gobierno de México proporcionó información adicional concerniente al llamamiento urgente que la Relatora Especial, junto con el Relator Especial sobre la cuestión de la tortura, la Representante Especial del Secretario General sobre la situación de los defensores de los derechos humanos y el Relator Especial sobre la independencia de magistrados y abogados, había enviado el 14 de febrero de 2003 en relación con la situación de Gustavo González Meza. Según el Gobierno, la causa de la muerte determinada en la autopsia fue: tromboembolia cardiopulmonar, coagulación intravascular diseminada y hemangiomas múltiples, los cuales habrían ocurrido después de la intervención quirúrgica efectuada con base en una valoración médica ordenada 15 días antes del fallecimiento por el jefe del servicio médico de la prisión del Cereso mediante la cual se habría detectado la existencia de una hernia inguinal. Asimismo, de acuerdo con el testimonio de varios internos, Gustavo González Meza habría manifestado su deseo de operar una hernia inguinal que padecía debido al dolor que la misma le generaba. Según el Gobierno, no se habrían apreciado huellas de violencia ni desorden en la celda del detenido al momento del hallazgo de su cuerpo.

310. Mediante comunicación del 18 de noviembre de 2003, el Gobierno de México proporcionó información en relación con el llamamiento urgente que la Relatora Especial, junto con la Representante Especial del Secretario General sobre la situación de los defensores de los derechos humanos, había enviado el 17 de octubre de 2002 en relación con la situación de Pedro Raúl López Hernández. Según el Gobierno, desde el 16 de enero de 2003 se habrían implementado las medidas de protección con el fin de garantizar la seguridad e integridad física del Sr. López Hernández, su domicilio y su familia. Asimismo se habría puesto a su disposición un vehículo blindado, que habría rehusado el propio Pedro Raúl López Hernández. Con relación a la presunta agresión de que hubiera sido víctima el día 10 de octubre de 2002, el Gobierno informó que de acuerdo con el informe presentado por los agentes que prestan el servicio de seguridad, el 10 octubre el Sr.

López Hernández no habría salido de su domicilio, por lo cual resultaría difícil que hubiera sido víctima de la agresión.

311. Mediante comunicación del 18 de noviembre de 2003, el Gobierno de México proporcionó información en relación con el llamamiento urgente que la Relatora Especial, junto con la Representante Especial del Secretario General sobre la situación de los defensores de los derechos humanos, había enviado el 24 de junio de 2002 relativo a las amenazas contra Juan Arnaldo Meneses. Según el Gobierno, de acuerdo con el testimonio que el propio Sr. Meneses había presentado a la Comisión de Derechos Humanos del Estado de México, se habría solicitado información al presidente municipal de La Paz y al director general de seguridad pública y tránsito para que informaran sobre los hechos motivo de la queja a fin de determinar si estos son atribuibles a funcionarios de dicha institución. Asimismo, se informó que la investigación por el delito de robo en interior de vehículo iniciada por la Procuraduría General del Estado de México se encuentra en averiguación previa.

312. Mediante comunicación del 17 de noviembre de 2003, el Gobierno de México proporcionó información en relación con el llamamiento urgente que la Relatora Especial, junto con la Representante Especial del Secretario General sobre la situación de los defensores de los derechos humanos, había enviado el 25 de marzo de 2002 relativo a las amenazas contra Bárbara Zamora y Pilar Noriega. Según el Gobierno, desde el 27 de noviembre de 2001, las medidas de protección para la abogada Zamora consistirían en una guardia exterior de su despacho. Asimismo, desde el 15 de mayo de 2002, se habría instalado un equipo de circuito cerrado a petición de la propia Sra. Zamora. Con relación a las investigaciones por el delito de amenazas, estas continuarían en la etapa de integración.

313. Mediante comunicaciones de 28 de octubre y 17 de noviembre de 2003, el Gobierno de México proporcionó información en relación con el llamamiento urgente que la Relatora Especial, junto con la Representante Especial del Secretario General sobre la situación de los defensores de los derechos humanos y el Relator Especial sobre la independencia de magistrados y abogados, había enviado el 14 de febrero de 2003 en relación con la situación de inseguridad en la que se encontrarían Blanca Guadalupe López, Víctor Javier García y su esposa Miriam García. Según el Gobierno, la orden de detención contra Víctor Javier García habría sido proferida con base en todos los elementos de prueba recabados y ante la presunta intención del implicado de abandonar la ciudad. Una vez detenido, habría sido conducido a las instalaciones de la subprocuraduría de la zona norte ubicadas en la calle Barranco Azul, y al rendir su declaración sin coacción alguna y asistido por un defensor, habría admitido su responsabilidad. También se habría involucrado en los hechos a Gustavo González Mesa, quien posteriormente habría sido detenido y conducido a las instalaciones de la mencionada subprocuraduría. Según el Gobierno, el relato de los detenidos contendría peculiaridades del lugar de los hechos que solo podían saber quienes participaron en ellos. Por otra parte, durante la ampliación de las declaraciones ministeriales, los implicados habrían reiterado la participación en los delitos. Posteriormente, ante el tribunal, cuando tuvieron tiempo para reflexionar, habrían manifestado que habrían sido violentados, lo cual, según el Gobierno, estaría en contradicción con los certificados de sanidad y fe ministerial sobre la inexistencia de lesiones. Igualmente, al dictar el auto formal de prisión, el juez instructor habría destacado que la violencia encontrada en los cuerpos de los indiciados no constituía la razón por la cual hubieran estampado sus firmas en las primeras declaraciones y habría corroborado que al momento de la detención no habrían existido las lesiones que posteriormente se habrían exhibido en la declaración preparatoria. Ante este hecho, el Gobierno no descartó que las lesiones hubiesen sido autoinfligidas, ya que por la levedad de las mismas no habrían sido la causa para confesar los hechos. Asimismo, el hecho de que las declaraciones sean idénticas y congruentes con los hechos objetivos del caso permitiría inferir la autoría material de los hechos. El Gobierno también informó de que el incidente de desvanecimiento de datos promovido por la defensa se habría resuelto decretando su improcedencia en virtud de que las conclusiones del aludido dictamen no eran necesariamente el único medio de prueba para el establecer la ocurrencia del delito. Asimismo, se informó de que las etapas de instrucción y defensa habrían sido agotadas y el ministerio público habría ofrecido pruebas tendientes a acreditar el pago de la reparación del daño. Con relación a la acción de amparo promovida por los detenidos, el Gobierno informó de que el tribunal federal habría revocado la resolución que lo concedía y habría procedido a negar el amparo y protección de la justicia federal, reiterando la demostración de su probable responsabilidad en la comisión de los delitos de violación agravada y homicidio. De esta manera, se habrían confirmado las actuaciones ministeriales y las practicadas ante el tribunal. Con relación a las medidas cautelares respecto de Blanca Guadalupe López, Víctor Javier García y Myriam García, el Gobierno informó de que a pesar de que dichas medidas habrían caducado el Gobierno continuaría con los rondines policiacos en el exterior de las direcciones de los beneficiarios a fin de salvaguardar su integridad física. Asimismo, se estaría gestionando el traslado de Víctor Javier García a un centro de readaptación en Ciudad Juárez, Estado de Chihuahua.

314. Mediante comunicaciones de 10 de marzo y 10 de noviembre de 2003, el Gobierno de México proporcionó información adicional en relación con la muerte de Digna Ochoa y Plácido. Según el Gobierno, la fiscalía especial para el caso habría desarrollado la investigación mediante indagatorias con el fin de establecer las circunstancias relacionadas con el homicidio mediante tres líneas de investigación: militares, Guerrero y entorno social, familiar y personal. Asimismo el Gobierno informó de que a través de declaraciones, diligencias ministeriales, intervenciones periciales e informes de policía judicial y de otras autoridades, se habría logrado determinar que ninguno de los integrantes de los batallones de infantería 19 y 40 del ejército mexicano estaría involucrados directa o indirectamente en alguna de las actividades desarrolladas por la abogada Digna Ochoa. La línea de investigación Guerrero habría permitido constatar que no existen razones o motivos para suponer que las actividades de la abogada Digna Ochoa afectaran aparentes intereses de caciques explotadores de madera en la sierra de Petatlán y Coyuca de Catalán. Con relación al entorno social, familiar y laboral, se concluyó que, del análisis de las circunstancias, no se desprende que alguno de sus familiares, personas que integraban su ámbito de amigos cercanos, compañeros de trabajo, parejas sentimentales o integrantes de la congregación religiosa a la que perteneció, hubiesen procurado o causado directa o indirectamente su muerte. Desde el punto de vista de su vinculación al instituto

Pro Juárez, su participación como abogada habría sido reducida de manera tal que no existiría evidencia objetiva de que su intervención jurídica hubiese propiciado o causado afectación de los intereses de alguna persona o autoridad relacionada, que permitiese establecer vinculación con su muerte. A lo anterior se adjuntó la renuncia de Digna Ochoa al instituto Pro Juárez el 31 de octubre de 2000, en medio de un presunto ambiente de tensión y desacuerdos primordialmente por su inconformidad de salir del país y por las supuestas dudas, por parte de algunos compañeros respecto del último incidente de amenaza. Otras informaciones recaudadas habrían permitido afirmar que el arma de fuego hallada en el lugar de los hechos habría pertenecido a la víctima y según los testimonios en torno a la presencia de personas desconocidas, ésta se encontraría justificada como un hecho ordinario y normal, pues se trata de un domicilio que cuenta con despachos de abogados, por lo que resultaría cotidiana la entrada y salida de personas desconocidas para los propios habitantes. Con relación a las amenazas, el conocimiento de las averiguaciones que se adelantan por parte de la Procuraduría General de Justicia continúan en curso, sin embargo las inspecciones habrían permitido determinar la probabilidad de que algunos de los escritos hallados o de los que se tiene conocimiento hubiesen sido creados por la propia Digna Ochoa. Finalmente el Gobierno informó que la decisión de la fiscal encargada del caso de no ejercer la acción penal al no demostrarse plenamente la existencia del delito de homicidio encontraría soporte en los análisis de peritos en materia de psicología y estudio psicodinámico de la personalidad. La mencionada resolución habría sido autorizada el 17 de septiembre de 2003 por parte del coordinador de agentes auxiliares del procurador.

Myanmar

Communication sent

316. In April 2002, three villagers, Suay Pee, aged 46, Zaai Lam, aged 42 and Kum-Ma, aged 41, were reportedly arrested at their house in Wan Phui village, by a patrol of about 30 State Peace and Development Council (SPDC) troops stationed at Kho Lam village, who took them away. On 2 September 2002, he reportedly complained of a stomach ache and tried to relieve himself. According to the information received, the troops fired two shots at him from behind, killing him instantly.

325. On 3 October 2002, six villagers, Zaai Wan, Zaai Mu Ling, Zaai Nya Na, Naang Nae, Naang Non and Naang Sing, who were working in a sugar cane plantation near Son Oi village were reportedly arrested by a patrol of some 50 SPDC troops from Co. 4 of IB 248, led by Captaine Myint Oo. They were reportedly detained for one night and subsequently beaten to death. Their bodies were allegedly found the following day. The bodies of the women were naked and bore clear signs of rape.

326. On 27 October 2002, two farmers, Lung Wan and Zaai Khat Ti-Ya, who were approaching a main road near Murng-Kerng allegedly ran into a patrol of some 15 SPDC troops from Co. 3 of LIB 514, led by Commander Aung Nyunt. It is reported that Commader Aung Nyunt shot at the farmers without warning. Lung Wan was allegedly killed instantly while Zaai Khat Ti-Ya was reportedly shot a second time by another soldier.

327. On 27 October 2002, a villager named Lung Man was robbed of a fish he had caught and beaten to death by SDPC troops from LIB 518, led by Sgt. Aung Soe, in Saai Phe village, Murng-Nai township.

328. On 1 November 2002, Lung Paan, from Nam Tawng village, was reportedly resting near his village on his way back from gathering grass in a meadow when a patrol of six SPDC troops from LIB 515, led by Cpl. Then Lwin, allegedly shot him dead. No one among the local villagers seemed to know why Lung Paan should have been shot by SPDC troops.

329. On 26 November 2002, two displaced villagers who were forcibly conscripted to work as labourers were allegedly beaten to death by SPDC troops from LIB 518 at a railway forced labour site in Murng-Nai township. In October 2002, SPDC military authorities of LIB 518 reportedly issued an order requiring villagers in Murng-Nai township to provide forced labour in building a section of railroad. On day in question, Lung Zaw-Ti-Ka, aged 47, was allegedly conscripted to work at the site. While Lung Zaw-Ti-Ka was resting, a soldier, Cpl. Myint Hpe from Co. 2, reportedly accused him of refusing to work and dragged him away. The soldier allegedly kicked Lung Zaw-Ti-Ka in the stomach. He then allegedly picked up a stick and beat him on the back of his neck, killing him instantly. It is reported that one of the villagers who was working nearby, Pa Nyo, aged 43, was so frightened by the gruesome sight that she fainted. The soldier reportedly beat her with the stick, accusing her of also trying to avoid work, killing her instantly.

The dead bodies were allegedly found in a bush on the edge of a rice field. When village and community leaders in the area reported the incident to the military authorities, they were given 500 kyat and told to conduct a proper funeral for the dead. They were reportedly told that it was not possible to file a complaint anywhere because no one really knew who the rapist and killer was.

Saudi Arabia

Urgent appeals

512. On 7 July 2003, the Special Rapporteur, jointly with the Special Rapporteur on the human rights of migrants and the Special Rapporteur on the independence of judges and lawyers, sent an urgent appeal regarding the situation of Sarah Dematera, a citizen of the Philippines, who was condemned to death by a court judgement issued on 14 November 1993 for bludgeoning to death the wife of her employer, four days after starting her job as a domestic servant in Saudi Arabia. She was reportedly a witness to the killing and described the alleged perpetrator as an Arab male, who ordered her to move and cover the body, clean the murder weapon and wipe up the blood. She always insisted on her innocence. Her trial took place on 4 October 1993 in Islamic Court No. 39/4 and she was not reportedly assisted by a lawyer or an interpreter during these proceedings. She did not speak Arabic and had very limited fluency in English. It was also reported that Philippines consular officials did not have access to her during the proceedings. According to the information received, the Saudi Ministry of Foreign Affairs reported that the execution had been postponed until the minor children of the deceased reached the age of majority, when they could decide, along with other heirs, whether to request the execution of the accused. The family of the accused could accept monetary compensation in lieu of implementation of the death penalty. It was also reported that since 23 May 2003 the relatives of Ms. Dematera have not heard from her.

513. On 18 September 2003, the Special Rapporteur sent an urgent appeal to the Government of Saudi Arabia regarding the case of Mas'ud bin Ali Muhammad bin Gimeshan al-Gahtani, a 44-year-old Saudi national who could allegedly be executed at any time. He was reportedly arrested with 10 others in 1991 in connection with the murder of Musfir bin Ogaym al-Dawsari. The 10 were subsequently released, whereas he was reportedly convicted without legal representation at a secret trial and was only informed of his conviction for murder after he had spent eight years in prison. He allegedly appeared only once before the judge, when he was reportedly asked his name and what he knew about the murder. He reportedly told the judge that he was nowhere near the scene of the crime, which allegedly happened in the west of Riyadh, as he was sleeping in a house in the east of the city. According to information received, three other people could verify this but it was not known whether they were called as witnesses at his trial. According to information received, whether he would be executed or not depended on the decision of Musfir bin Ogaym al-Dawsari's children. Under Saudi Arabian law, they reportedly have the right to decide whether he should be pardoned, have to pay blood money in order to gain his freedom, or whether he should be executed. It was reported that the children can only make this decision when they have reached the age of majority and that it was not currently known when this would happen. He was reportedly held in Malaz prison in Riyadh, living under constant fear of execution.

Communication received

514. By letter dated 30 October 2003, the Permanent Mission of Saudi Arabia to the United Nations Office at Geneva provided the following information regarding the case of Sara Dematera. The Permanent Mission stated that the allegation had already been received from Amnesty International and information thereon had been submitted by the Permanent Mission in 1998 within the framework of the 1503 procedure. In light of that information, which concerned the grounds on which the judgement was based and the circumstances that might have lead to commutation of Sara Dematera's sentence and her potential release, the Commission on Human Rights at its fifty-fifth session decided to discontinue consideration of the case. The Permanent Mission also added that it had on numerous occasions provided special rapporteurs with explanations of the procedures for enforcement of the death penalty. Accordingly, the Permanent Mission determined that the information already submitted should have been deemed sufficient.

515. On 29 October 2003, the Government of Saudi Arabia responded to an urgent appeal sent on 31 July 2002 by the Special Rapporteur in connection with the cases of Alexander Mitchell, a British national, and William Sampson, a Canadian national. Nikola Maljkovic was reportedly arrested by the Belgrade police and security agents on 27 October 2002. On 30 October 2002, his lawyer stated that he was in a prison hospital with a broken hand, several broken ribs and bruises all over his body. The police reportedly provided no explanation for his alleged injuries. Dragan Ilic was allegedly beaten on 29 October 2002 by unknown persons after the investigating judge of the Belgrade Fifth Municipal Court ordered his release and before the police rearrested him in a Belgrade hospital. The police were not allegedly satisfied with the investigating judge's decision to release him, and it was believed that the police may have been involved in the attack on Mr. Ilic after his release. Dragan Malesevic Tapi was reportedly also arrested on 29 October 2002. He reportedly died in a police station on the same day. The police allegedly reported that he suffered a stroke. The preliminary results of the official autopsy allegedly suggest that Mr. Tapi died because of a sudden deterioration of a long-term heart and blood-vessel disease.

518. Milan Jezdović, aged 24, Milica Babin, aged 18, Radoje Tomovic, aged 25, Aleksandar Draskovic, aged 19, and five other individuals were reportedly arrested on 5 December 2002 on suspicion of dealing drugs. Upon arrest, they were all reportedly handcuffed, made to lie on the floor and allegedly beaten. Milica Babin was allegedly kicked and called a prostitute and a junkie. All nine were subsequently reportedly taken to the main Belgrade police station and individually interrogated. Plastic bags were reportedly placed over their heads with self-adhesive strips stuck around their necks, and self-adhesive strips were also stuck around their legs to prevent them from struggling. Some of them were allegedly beaten, kicked and subjected to electric shocks. Some reported hearing Milan Jezdović screaming that he was unable to breathe because of the bag over his head. Six of the detainees, including Milica Babin, were reportedly released on 5 December due to lack of evidence. Radoje Tomovic and Aleksandar Draskovic were reportedly released the following night. Milan Jezdović allegedly died on 5 December 2002 at the police station. His family was reportedly allowed to remove his body on 6 December, and informed that a full autopsy report would not be available until four to six weeks later. A doctor hired by the family allegedly found three burn marks, consistent with those made by electric shocks, on his head and scars on his nose and forehead. An official autopsy reportedly found that Milan Jezdovic died of a heart attack which, according to official sources, occurred during interrogation. None of the nine people arrested was allegedly allowed access to a lawyer during their detention, despite their requests.

According to its findings, Mr. Malesevic died in the evening hours of 29 October 2002 in room No. 24 of the Third Section of the Criminal Police Department in Belgrade where he had been taken for an interview. According to the Government, at about 10.50 p.m. he was taken ill and died before emergency assistance could be provided. On 6 November 2002, the District Public Prosecutor's Office of Belgrade received the results of the post-mortem examination performed by the Institute of Forensic Medicine. According to the preliminary conclusions, the victim died of natural causes as death occurred as a direct consequence of a sudden deterioration of an already existing serious and long-lasting atherosclerosis of the heart and blood vessels. It was established that there were no injuries to hard and soft tissues caused by hard objects. Yet, the results of the chemical analysis and the pathohistological examination would be necessary for any final conclusions.

521. The Government reported that the Belgrade District Public Prosecutor's Office was informed that neither Nikola Maljkovic nor Dragan Ilic and their legal representatives pressed charges for maltreatment of their clients at the hands of the officers of the Ministry of Internal Affairs of the Republic of Serbia. The Government reported that any new facts, as well as the replies of the Ministry of Internal Affairs and the Ministry of Justice of the Republic of Serbia, which had also been contacted in respect of these cases, would be communicated to the Special Rapporteur as soon as they became available.

522. Finally, in response to the allegations regarding the case of Milan Jezdović, Milica Babin, Radoje Tomovic, Aleksandar Draskovi, and five other individuals, the Government stated that, having received the report of the On-Duty Unit of the Belgrade Police Department of the Ministry of Internal Affairs of the Republic of Serbia, the autopsy report, photographic documentation and the inspection report of the cases, the District Public Prosecutor's Office of Belgrade filed an application with the investigating judge of the court to start an investigation into the case. The investigating judge requested the Institute of Forensic Medicine to provide its expertise on the circumstances surrounding the death of Milan Jezdovic. Meanwhile, the investigating judge was requested to obtain an internal control report from the Supervision Division of the Belgrade Police Department. Any new facts, as well as the replies of the Ministry of Internal Affairs and the Ministry of Justice, which had also been contacted in respect of these cases, would be communicated to the Special Rapporteur as soon as they became available.

Rogers, a senior member of the rebel RUF movement who had died in prison on 21 July 2001. The information provided by Dr. J.D. Sandy, Medical Officer in Charge, Pademba Road Prison, Freetown, indicates that the cause of Mr. Rogers's death was a cerebrovascular accident (stroke) due to severe hypertension.

Singapore

Urgent appeal

524. On 19 September 2003, the Special Rapporteur sent an urgent appeal to the Government of Singapore concerning the situation of Vignes s/o Mourthi, a 23-year-old Malaysian national who was reportedly at risk of imminent execution following the rejection of his appeal for clemency to the President of Singapore. On 12 September 2003, his lawyer allegedly lodged a motion for a retrial on the grounds that there had been a miscarriage of justice and that he had not received a fair trial. However, this motion was reportedly rejected. On 19 September 2003, his lawyer filed another application for a retrial with the High Court. This application was allegedly dismissed as well. Although it was reported that his lawyer intended to lodge an appeal against the decision of the High Court, Mr. Mourthi was said to face execution at any time. According to information received, he was arrested after being found in possession of a bag containing approximately 443 grams of heroin. At his trial he allegedly stated that he was asked by a family friend to carry the bag from Malaysia to Singapore where he travelled every day for work, and that he was unaware of the bag's contents. In August 2002, he was allegedly sentenced to death for drug trafficking and his sentence was confirmed in January 2003. A number of alleged irregularities during the trial proceedings were reported. The trial judge allegedly refused to adjourn the hearing to enable him to appoint a new lawyer, which he had requested as he felt that he was inadequately represented. His conviction was reportedly based largely on a written record, provided by the prosecution, of an incriminating conversation which allegedly took place between him and a plain-clothes police officer. He reportedly denied that the alleged conversation had taken place. According to information received, the court deemed the evidence to be admissible despite the fact that no date was recorded on it and neither Mr. Mourthi nor his lawyer was aware of its existence before it was produced in court.

Communication received

525. On 3 October 2003, the Government of Singapore transmitted its response to the Special Rapporteur's urgent appeal sent on 19 September 2003, regarding the death sentence of Vignes s/o Mourthi. The Government affirmed that the allegations of apparent irregularities during the trial were not true and that, according to the Record of Proceedings of trial, Vignes was given the opportunity to have a new counsel to represent him but that he chose to continue with his previous counsel. The Government reported that he was tried and convicted with all due process in accordance with the laws of Singapore. The Government further alleged that the contents of the conversation between Vignes and the plain-clothes officer were disclosed during the preliminary inquiry through the statement of the officer. The written record of the conversation, made by the officer, was tendered during the trial and properly admitted according to the rules of evidence. Vignes did not object to the admission of the statement and had ample opportunity to cross-examine the author of the document. The Government also stated that he appealed against his conviction to the Court of Appeal but that this appeal was dismissed after a hearing four months after his conviction. He subsequently made a petition for clemency to the President who, on the advice of the Cabinet, let the conviction stand. This decision was conveyed to Vignes nine months after the Court of Appeal dismissed his appeal. Vignes s/o Mourthi was executed on 26 September 2003. Finally, the Government of Singapore wanted to recall that in their view resolutions of the Economic and Social Council and the General Assembly and the Universal Declaration of Human Rights were not considered legally binding or international legal instruments. It also alleged that there was no international consensus on the abolition of the death penalty and that 63 countries, including Singapore, registered their disassociation from resolution 2003/67, in a joint letter dated 23 April 2003 to the Chairperson of the fifty-ninth Commission on Human Rights. They therefore rejected outright any suggestion that the death penalty be abolished. The Government informed the Special Rapporteur that it would continue to use the death penalty for such serious crimes as drug trafficking as provided for under their law

On 7 August 2003, the Special Rapporteur as well as the Special Rapporteur on the promotion and protection of the right to freedom of opinion and expression sent an urgent appeal to the Government of Sri Lanka regarding the case of Lasantha Wickrematunga, editor of the weekly The Sunday Leader. Reports indicated that on 27 July 2003, the Fisheries Minister, Mahinda Wijesekera, threatened Wickrematunga in front of several witnesses, including Water Management Minister Lakshman Seneviratne. The Minister's death threat followed the newspaper's publication of articles accusing him of corruption. It

527. On 30 October 2003, the Special Rapporteur, jointly with the Special Rapporteur on torture and the Special Representative of the Secretary-General on human rights defenders, sent an urgent appeal to the Government of Sri Lanka in connection with information received regarding Chamila Bandara, aged 17, and his family, whose case was included in an allegation letter sent by the Special Rapporteur on torture on 25 September 2003. Policemen threatened to kill Chamila Bandara who was allegedly on his way to Geneva, Switzerland, in connection with the current proceedings of the United Nations Human Rights Committee and with the support of human rights non-governmental organizations. According to the information received, in July 2003, Chamila Bandara was strung up by his thumbs and beaten by officers of the Ankumbura police station, Kandy, resulting in a permanent disability. Since he filed a complaint of torture, he has reportedly been forced into hiding. His mother also reportedly received death threats on 29 October 2003 from a group of police officers who intercepted her as she was going to the magistrate's court where her son's case was being heard.

528. On 6 November 2003, the Special Rapporteur, jointly with the Special Rapporteur on torture, sent an urgent appeal to the Government of Sri Lanka concerning Hikkaduwa Liyanage Saundun Kumara, aged 16. He reportedly went to Rathgama police station on 12 September 2003, as he had learned the police were looking for him. He was questioned for several hours about goods which were allegedly stolen from his employer. He was reportedly released and told to come back the following day. On 13 September 2003, the relatives of his employer took him back to the Rathgama police station and handed him over to a sub-inspector, whose name is known to the Special Rapporteur. Hikkaduwa Liyanage Saundun Kumara was reportedly severely tortured for three days. His mother was reportedly allowed to see him for the first time since his arrest on 17 September 2003. According to the information received, he could hardly walk, and he had a black eye, swollen feet and wounds on his elbows and knees. His mother's request for medical assistance for him was reportedly denied. Later that day, he was allegedly beaten and kicked again. He reportedly appeared before a court on 19 September 2003 and was sent to the Kithulampitiya Remand Home. He was transferred to the Karapitiya Teaching Hospital on 21 September 2003. Upon appearing before the Galle Magistrate's Court on 24 September 2003, he was released on bail and he and his family reportedly filed complaints with the National Human Rights Commission and the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court allegedly gave leave to proceed and ordered the National Police Commission to conduct a disciplinary inquiry into the case. Since then, he and his family have been receiving death threats from the alleged perpetrators. Officers alleged to have been involved in the events continue to serve at the same police station. Fears were expressed for the life and physical integrity of Hikkaduwa Liyanage Saundun Kumara and his family if no adequate measures are taken to ensure their safety.

Communication sent

529. On 17 October 2003, the Special Rapporteur sent a communication to the Government of Sri Lanka regarding the following individual cases.

530. T.A. Premachandra, a 46-year-old man was reportedly shot and killed on 1 February 2003. He was allegedly driving his vehicle home from work with two companions in the back seat when two officers of the police traffic unit, Kalutara South, riding on a motorcycle, reportedly overtook the vehicle on the left and shot him in the head at close range with a T56 handgun, resulting in his death. He allegedly died instantly. His body was reportedly taken to the hospital and the two injured men were taken to the police station and arrested. Acting Superintendent of Police Jayantha Kulathilaka took charge of the case on the orders of Acting Magistrate Siri Perera. He headed the post-mortem investigation and, in an effort to justify the killing, he allegedly said that it was perfectly within the law to act as the police did. The two police officers allegedly responsible for the killing said that the driver was shot because of his refusal to stop the vehicle when ordered to do so. They also reportedly stated at the post-mortem investigation that they had fired at the tyre of the vehicle but because of the ruts on the road it went astray, and that they had no intention of killing anyone.

531. Yoga Clement Benjamin, a 47-year-old Catholic Tamil of Hillview Road, Pannila, Kalutara South in Sri Lanka was reportedly shot and killed by police officers of the Kalutara South Police on 26 February 2003. It is reported that until April 2002, he illicitly sold alcohol and was believed to have bribed police officers from the Kalutara South Police Station in order to have been able to continue his illegal activities. In addition, he had a farm with over 40 pigs and ran a vehicle repair shop in his garage. According to the information received, even after he had abandoned the sale of illicit alcohol the police did not stop claiming bribes from him. In June 2002, a policeman said to be known as Perera, unsuccessfully demanded a free supply of the product from Mr. Benjamin. After this incident, Mr. Benjamin reportedly decided to sell his farm. He then started receiving several death threats from the police and was also beaten. His wife and daughter repeatedly tried to file a complaint to the police authorities in February 2003. Mr. Benjamin subsequently got involved in a land dispute with a neighbour who reportedly lodged a complaint with the police. The police reportedly arrived at Mr. Benjamin's house, with the neighbour in a van. After the vehicles left the scene, his neighbour scolded him and coaxed him out of his house. Once he appeared, police personnel who were reportedly hiding in the neighbour's house emerged and fatally shot him while his son managed to escape the scene. The police claimed that they had fired in self-defence. However, it is reported that Mr. Benjamin was unarmed and never used a gun. According to information received, the officials from Kalutara South Police threatened to harm anyone who had any information about this incident.

Communications received

532. On 16 December 2002, the Government of Sri Lanka responded to a communication sent by the Special Rapporteur, jointly with the Special Rapporteur on torture and the Special Rapporteur on violence against women, regarding the case of Sarathambal Saravanabavananthakurukkal who was allegedly raped and murdered allegedly by members of the army. In its response, the Government stated that the Criminal Investigation Department of the Sri Lanka Police (CID) had conducted a comprehensive investigation into the alleged incident. The Government reported that the investigations conducted so far had not borne any fruit in terms of positively identifying the perpetrators of the crime. On 17 August 2002, the Attorney-General's Department advised CID that a criminal prosecution could not be launched and that there would be no need to conduct further investigations into this case. However, CID was further advised that if any new information on other material relating to the perpetration of this offence was received, investigations should be recommenced.

533. On 3 January 2003 the Government of Sri Lanka replied by letter to a joint appeal dated 13 September 2002 sent by the Special Rapporteur, along with the Special Rapporteur on torture, the Special Rapporteur on the independence of judges and lawyers and the Chairperson-Rapporteur of the working group on arbitrary detention, regarding the case of Nandani Sriyalantha Herath, who was arrested by the Wariyapola Police on 8 March 2002 and was tortured while in custody. This letter followed interim observations transmitted by the Government on 10 October 2002. The Government reported that on 21 June 2002, the CID ordered an investigation of the case. The police officers responsible were subsequently identified while Nandani Herath was examined by a judicial medical officer. The Attorney-General also instructed CID to conduct criminal investigations into the alleged threat to Priyantha Gamage, Ms. Herath's counsel, and the alleged assault of Nishanta Kumara, human rights activist, by the Wariyapola Police. The Government stated that the Attorney-General was considering the possibility of filing criminal charges against those responsible for the alleged torture of Herath.

534. On 1 December 2003, the Government of Sri Lanka responded to a communication sent jointly by the Special Rapporteur, the Special Rapporteur on torture and the Special Representative of the Secretary-General on human rights defenders on 30 October 2003, and regarding the case of Chamila Bandara Jayaratna, his cousin Upali, as well as Bandula Padmakumara, who were subjected to torture by police personnel attached to the Ankumbura Police Station after being taken into custody on suspicion of theft. The Government reported that the Special Investigation Unit (SIU), which is a specialized unit of the Sri Lanka Police established to investigate allegations of torture, had conducted an investigation into the allegation. The Government informed the Special Rapporteur that, after being released on bail, Jayaratne was admitted to the Kandy General Hospital on 31 July 2003 and received treatment for six days. The Judicial Medical Officer of Kandy Hospital who examined him allegedly reported to SIU that the patient had grievous injuries caused by a blunt weapon. Finally, the Government submitted that SIU had almost completed its investigations and that it would forward extracts of the investigation notes to the Attorney-General's Department for further action. The Government further indicated that, in the interim, upon a complaint received, an inquiry was conducted by the regional office of the National Human Rights Commission in Kandy where the incident took place. The inquiry officer's finding was that the complaint was unfounded. Subsequently, representations were made on behalf of the victim to the Chairperson-Rapporteur and she ordered a fresh inquiry, which was in progress at the time of the communication.

535. On 4 December 2003, the Government of Sri Lanka responded to the communication jointly sent by the Special Rapporteur and the Special Rapporteur on torture on 2 September concerning the following individual cases.

536. W A P Jayaratne, reportedly died during interrogation by the military police. The Government's response indicated that Mahawela police conducted investigations into the incident based on information provided by Dr. Rajakaruna (female) of the Nalanda Hospital that a person wearing an army uniform and several others brought a body to Nalanda Hospital on 20 June 2001, without introducing themselves or disclosing any details as to the cause of death. The deceased was in army uniform and there were injuries to the body. Mahawela police duly reported the incident to Magistrate Paldeniya on 21 June 2001 and a post-mortem was conducted on his order. The Government reported that five army personnel who were on duty at the Koholanwala army camp on the day of the incident were subsequently arrested by police and made to appear before the Magistrate's Court. They were charged under case No. 15 519 at the Paldeniya Magistrate's Court and were later indicted in the High Court for murder.

537. Kandaiyan Udayakumaran, was reportedly taken into custody by the Navy on 28 February 2001 and whose body was taken to Mannar Hospital on 1 March 2001. SIU conducted investigations into the incident, and the Government reported that Udayakumaran had been taken into custody by the Navy to be questioned in connection with terrorist activities. He was taken to Mannar Hospital by navy personnel and pronounced dead upon arrival. Mannar police initiated investigations into the incident and a magisterial inquiry was held subsequently. The District Medical Officer of Mannar who conducted the post-mortem examination on the order of the Mannar Magistrate reported that death was caused by strangulation. The Magistrate accordingly returned a verdict of homicide and ordered the police to arrest the suspects and bring them before the Mannar Magistrate's Court. Sub-Lieutenant W R S Harischandra and sailor G A Sanjeeva Kumara, who had taken the victim into custody, were subsequently arrested and made to appear before the Magistrate's Court. They were later indicted in the Anuradhapura High Court and the case was still pending before the High Court at the time of the communication.

538. Mullakandage Lasantha Jagath Kumara, was reportedly arrested by Payagala police on 12 June 2000 and who died at Welikada prison on 20 June 2000 as a result of severe beatings. The Government reported that the Assistant Superintendent of Police for Kalutara had conducted an investigation into this incident. Mullakandage Lasantha Jagath Kumara was arrested by a police team led by Inspector Wickramaratne of Payagala police on 12 June 2000 and was detained illegally until 16 June 2000. He was beaten while in police custody. The Government reported that the Acting Superintendent forwarded an extract of the investigation notes to the Attorney-General's Department for advice. The latter decided to initiate criminal proceedings against Inspector Wickramaratne who subsequently appeared before the Kalutara Magistrate's Court. The case was pending at the time of the communication.

539. Jayakodige Anura Wijesiri, was allegedly beaten by Ingiriya police after being taken into custody on 10 January 2001 on suspicion of theft. After two days, he was found hanging inside a police cell. His father filed a complaint to the Attorney-General's Department on 21 November 2001, requesting that an investigation be conducted. The post-mortem report indicated that the cause of the death at the Ingiriya Police Station cell was suicide. Thus, the Attorney-General's Department decided not to take further action against anyone.

Sudan

Urgent appeals

540. On 7 April 2003, the Special Rapporteur, the Chairman-Rapporteur of the Working Group on Arbitrary Detention, the Special Rapporteur on the promotion and protection of the right to freedom of opinion and expression, the Special Rapporteur on torture and the Special Rapporteur on the situation of human rights in the Sudan jointly sent an urgent appeal to the Government of the Sudan in connection with information received regarding scores of students reportedly detained after a wave of violent clashes between security forces and student demonstrators at a number of universities in the Sudan. Among the incidents reported, on 23 March students from the University of Khartoum held a meeting in protest against police killings and use of excessive force against fellow students during the demonstration which had taken place the day before. According to information received, this meeting was forcibly ended by police using tear gas. Al-Amin Shams al-Din, an engineering student suffering from asthma, reportedly died during the incident. It was reported that police claim he fell from a building, while students state that he was shot after other students lifted him up to avoid the tear gas which would have impaired his breathing. Fears were expressed that the force used on demonstrators was excessive enough to cause death or injury.

541. On 14 May 2003, the Special Rapporteur, jointly with the Special Rapporteur on the independence of judges and lawyers, sent an urgent appeal to the Government of the Sudan regarding Al-Taher Ahmad Hamdan, a 15-year-old boy who was sentenced to death by a court in Nyala, South Darfur State. The young man, along with 25 other men were allegedly found guilty of killing 30 people and injuring a further 28 persons in a raid on the village of Singita, South Darfur on 31 December 2002. However, it was reported that evidence from prosecution witnesses was inconsistent; in addition, the persons who were arrested were allegedly held in incommunicado detention for more than two months.

542. On 12 June 2003, the Special Rapporteur, jointly with the Special Representative of the Secretary-General on human rights defenders, sent an urgent appeal to the Government of the Sudan regarding the situation of Tajuddin Banaga Mohammed Ahmed, a witness reportedly testifying against the internal security forces in Sudan, who had allegedly received death threats. He was reportedly threatened by Sudanese security officers in recent days, and he was allegedly at risk of being killed because of his testimony in the trial of the persons accused of killing Ali Ahmed Al Bashir, his friend and business partner, who was a Popular Congress party member allegedly murdered by members of the Sudanese security forces on 24 May 2001.

543. On 26 June 2003, the Special Rapporteur and the Special Rapporteur on torture sent an urgent appeal to the Government of the Sudan in connection with information received regarding Abkr Mohammed Abdo Shain, a 40-year-old member of the Zaghawa ethnic group, who was reportedly arrested on 18 June 2003 by military intelligence in Sarf Ommra, a village situated about 100 km east of Geneina, West Darfur State. He was allegedly brought to El-Fashir, North Darfur State, subsequent to his arrest, but was detained at an undisclosed location. The reasons for his arrest remain unknown. Suleiman Mahmoud Nadi, who was reportedly arrested along with him, was reportedly shot dead by military intelligence. In view of the alleged incommunicado detention of Abkr Mohammed Abdo Shain in an unknown place, and the allegations according to which the person who was arrested with him was killed, fears were expressed for his physical integrity.

544. On 3 July 2003, the Special Rapporteur and the Special Rapporteur on the independence of judges and lawyers sent an urgent appeal to the Government of the Sudan in connection with information received regarding Tibin Abdel Rahman Isaag (m), Alhadi Abaker Hammad (m), Abaker Ahrran (m), Abader Adam Bakheet (m), Isaag Abaker (m), Saeed Abdella Abaker (m), Mohamed Abdel Rahman Ibraheam (m), Easa Mohamed Adam (m) and Mohamed Abdella Yahya(m), who were reportedly sentenced to death by hanging, by a special court in the city of Kass, South Darfur State. Fears were expressed that the death penalty had been imposed following a judicial process that did not respect international standards for fair trials. All nine men were reportedly arrested on 13 November 2002 at the local market in Kass. They were allegedly accused of taking part in an attack on the village of Alibya, 30km west of Kass, which is populated by members of the Fur ethnic group. Seven people were reportedly killed and 10 injured, when a militia of between 150 and 300 men attacked the village in 2002. It was reported that no other alleged members of this militia were yet arrested. The nine men reportedly denied having taken part in the attack, and claimed they were in Kass on the day it occurred. Of the 18 prosecution witnesses who testified at the trial, none could allegedly confirm that the accused participated in the attack. After the trial, the men were transferred from a detention centre in Kass to the Nyala prison, in the capital of South Darfur State, where they were allegedly permitted visits from relatives.

Communication sent

545. On 29 July 2003, the Special Rapporteur sent an urgent appeal to the Government of the Sudan in connection with the cases of Ramadan Ismail, Abu Nigel El Amin, Juma Mahamoud and Juma Omar, all from the Nuba ethnic group, who were reportedly detained incommunicado by security forces in the town of Dongola, Northern Sudan, on 19 May 2003. They were reportedly arrested while attending a meeting at the house of Awad Ibrahim, a well-known activist. They were allegedly discussing the eventual repatriation of Nuba who were internally displaced during the civil war in the Sudan. According to the information received, the five men were taken to the headquarters of the security forces in Dongola, where they were reportedly accused of being traitors. Later that day, Awad Ibrahim's body was reportedly taken to his family home by the security forces. It was believed that he had died as a result of the treatment to which he had been subjected while in detention.

Communications received

546. On 3 July 2003, the Government of the Sudan replied to an urgent appeal sent by the Special Rapporteur jointly with the Special Rapporteur on the independence of judges and lawyers. In its letter, the Government explained that its position regarding the death penalty upholds international human rights standards which are incorporated in Sudanese Penal Law. Thus, the practice in Sudanese courts complies with the following requirements: "Elderly people over 70 years of age are not subject to any execution sentences; minors of less than 18 years of age are not subject to any execution or conscription in the armed forces; pregnant women are not subject to execution; women breastfeeding cannot be executed up to two years of breastfeeding".

547. On 26 August 2003, the Government of the Sudan sent a communication to the Special Rapporteur providing information about its efforts to reach a peaceful negotiated solution to the Southern Sudan conflict. The Government reaffirmed its dedication to restoring pluralism, to help strengthen democracy as well as the rule of law, and to the enhancement and protection of human rights. The Government informed the Special Rapporteur about the many steps undertaken in this context, especially since the last session of the Commission on Human Rights. Among those is a decision through a decree issued by the Governor of Southern Darfour to replace special courts with a court headed by a judge without military participation. The decree also provides that any verdict will be subject to appeal before the Appeal Court, the Supreme and Constitutional Court. Besides, the accused also has the right to counsel of his choice, who can address the court without any constraints whatsoever. The Government further stated that the Minister of Justice issued a decree related to the establishment of a Prosecuting Bureau for the Combating of Terrorism.

548. By letter dated 4 September 2003, the Government of the Sudan replied to an urgent appeal sent by the Special Rapporteur and the Special Representative of the Secretary-General on human rights defenders on 12 June 2003 concerning the case of Tajulddin Banaga Mohamed Ahmed. The Government affirmed that he was apprehended on 13 January 2003 in possession of an unlicensed revolver in violation of article 26 of the Weapons and Ammunition Act of the Sudan. The Government stated that proceedings were brought against him and he was sentenced to a fine and confiscation of the handgun on 31 May 2003. The Government stated that all criminal proceedings were expedited by the police and not the national security authority, as claimed by Mr. Ahmed, and that he could file a claim against the competent government authority for any violation of article 144 of the Sudan Penal Code, which he did not do. According to reports, the national security organ categorically denied that the defendant was subject to any kind of threat or intimidation. Regarding the case of Ali Ahmed El Bashir, the Government reported that he was charged with transferring public property to his personal ownership and that the security authority had seized the automobiles stolen by him. The Government reported that the accused had died during that seizure and that the authorities acted immediately by waiving the immunity of the perpetrators, who were standing trial in a criminal court at the time the communication was received. The Government finally stated that the proceedings in this case were being carried out according to law and that 10 lawyers were representing the family of the deceased without any restrictions or constraints whatsoever.

549. The Government of the Sudan sent further information in connection with the communication sent by the Special Rapporteur on 14 May 2003. The Government reported that the juvenile Ahmad Amar Adam Hamdan was committed to a reformatory to serve a three-year term beginning on 26 April 2003. The Government further stated that the 23 other convicted persons were given death sentences after their appeals were dismissed by the Appeal Court. The Appeal Court's decisions, in both their cases and the case of Ahmad Amar Adam Hamdan, were published at the time the Government's response was sent.

550. On 14 October 2003, the Government of the Sudan responded to the letter sent by the Special Rapporteur on 29 July 2003 regarding the cases of Ramadan Ismail, Abu Nigel El Amin, Juma Mahamoud and Juma Omar. According to this response, the accused were arrested by the security committee of the Northern State following substantiated information that they were plotting to carry out acts of sabotage in Dongola town on 18 May 2003. The Government stated that the facts alleged in the summary of the case were not accurate and baseless, and inquiries carried out by competent Sudanese authorities categorically refuted them.

551. With regard to the case of Awad Ibrahim, the Government reported that, in the early morning of 19 May 2003, a security official from the above-mentioned committee reported that Mr. Ibrahim was sick. A doctor was called, who found that Mr. Ibrahim had died. The Office of the Attorney seized with the case and a police investigation and autopsy were carried out. The results clearly indicated that the cause of death was a heart attack, and that Mr. Ibrahim had been suffering from a heart condition. The autopsy showed that the deceased had not incurred any kind of injury relating to his detention. Mr. Ibrahim's family and relatives did not lodge any petition or complaint with the competent authorities, despite reassurances by the state governor and other high-ranking officials that the Government would investigate any complaint they might have. On 22 May 2003, the Attorney decided to close the case in accordance with the relevant articles of the 1991 Penal Code.

552. Regarding the three other detainees referred to in the communication, the Government informed the Special Rapporteur that their cases were still under investigation and judicial procedures, and that the appropriate authorities would keep the Special Rapporteurs informed about their conclusions in due course. The Government reported that the detainees were regularly visited by their families and they were given the right to lawyers. The Government indicated that it was prepared to meet the expense of these lawyers if the detainees so demanded. The Government finally stated that the competent authorities were prepared to respond to, and investigate, any kind of complaint or allegation of mistreatment on the part of the detainees and would take legal measures against the perpetrators of such mistreatment.

553. On 27 October 2003, the Government of the Sudan transmitted its response to the letter sent by the Special Rapporteurs on 14 May 2003, in relation to the case of Al-Taher Ahmad Hamdan. The Government reported that the juvenile had not been sentenced to death since the Sudanese Constitution does not provide for the death penalty to juveniles, i.e. those under 18 years of age. On the contrary, the Government explained that he was sentenced to three years in a reformatory and that he was however granted the right to appeal that verdict. The Government finally informed that the other 23 detainees had been sentenced to death. All of them had lodged an appeal with the Court of Appeals, and they are currently being considered by the competent judicial authorities.

Swaziland

Communication sent

554. On 19 August 2003, the Special Rapporteur and the Special Rapporteur on the promotion and protection of the right to freedom of opinion and expression sent a communication to the Government of Swaziland in connection with information received concerning the break-up by security forces of the national strike launched on 13 August 2003 by labour federations to protest the governance record of King Mswati III. Approximately 5,000 demonstrators gathered in the capital, Mbabane, and 1,000 in the town of Manzini, and some demonstrators caused vandalism in the capital. The riot police reportedly responded with tear gas and prevented the demonstrators from reassembling by beating them with batons. One unionist allegedly died as a result of the beatings by the police. Furthermore, the police allegedly fired live rounds to prevent agricultural workers from meeting in the Tambankhulu stadium, and one of the demonstrators was reportedly admitted to Good Shepherd Hospital in Siteki with a gunshot wound.

Sweden

Communication sent

555. On 7 August 2003, the Special Rapporteur and the Special Rapporteur on torture sent a communication to the Government of Sweden in connection with the case of Peter Anderson, a 35-year-old suspected burglar, who reportedly died after he was arrested and restrained by four police officers in Örebro on 3 November 2000. It was alleged that the preliminary report of a post-mortem examination shows evidence of bruising on his face, arms, legs and body, as well as symptoms of death from asphyxia. After his arrest, he was reportedly laid face down on the ground with his hands handcuffed behind him. One police officer sat on the back of his head, another sat on his back, while two security guards allegedly held his legs. He then reportedly lost consciousness. He was taken to a hospital where he reportedly died shortly afterwards.

Communication received

556. On 21 November 2003, the Government of Sweden responded to the communication jointly sent by the Special Rapporteur and the Special Rapporteur on torture on 7 August 2003 regarding the death of Peter Anderson. According to the Government, the police officers used force to carry out his arrest; this force included forcing the suspect to the ground and affixing the handcuffs. Anderson forcefully resisted being handcuffed. After a while, he relaxed and the officers started to unfasten the handcuffs. His lips had become blue, he had started to breathe heavily and his body had started to convulse. The officers called an ambulance and Anderson continued to have convulsions; he tried to break loose as he was being lifted into the ambulance and also upon arrival at the hospital. At this stage, the officers restrained him in an effort to end his struggling. His violent behavior continued as a doctor examined him, therefore medical staff were also forced to restrain him. A decision was taken to transfer him to another location within the hospital for further examination. A special bed was provided for him after officers and medical staff transferred him there. The Government explained that he had stopped breathing and had died during the transfer; a doctor confirmed the death at 7:40 a.m. On 3 November 2000, a complaint concerning his death was filed with the County Police Authority. The Government informed the Special Rapporteur that a further complaint was made by the deceased's brother concerning official misconduct and negligence causing death. An investigation was carried out. According to the post-mortem results, the cause of death could not clearly be established. Consequently, the prosecutor decided on 28 November 2001 not to pursue the investigation. No decision or judgement on criminal or disciplinary sanctions was taken against the police officers involved, as there was no basis for any disciplinary action. Finally, the Government of Sweden informed the Special Rapporteur that the Division for Police Issues and Public Order and Security did not agree that the death of Anderson could be described as an execution. All police officers involved in the apprehension were identified, and it was established that they had intervened within their scope of responsibility to maintain law and order under the chief constable's instructions.

Thailand

Urgent appeal

557. On 25 February 2003, the Special Rapporteur sent an urgent appeal to the Government of Thailand in connection with information received regarding reports of a significant number of deaths, allegedly amounting to more than 100, in connection with ongoing law enforcement operations by the Thai authorities aimed at cracking down on the country's drug trade. Further reports alleged excessive use of force by law enforcement and security officials engaged in these operations, which reportedly resulted in extrajudicial executions.

Communication received

558. On 10 April 2003, the Government of Thailand responded to the Communication sent by the Special Rapporteur on 25 February 2003. The Government submitted that, in order to address the scourge of drugs in a comprehensive manner, it mounted a massive integrated strategic campaign since 1 February 2003, which comprised three main pillars: prevention, treatment and rehabilitation, and suppression. Thousands of drug dealers were arrested, hundreds of thousands of them turned themselves in to the authorities, while hundreds of thousands of addicts turned themselves in for rehabilitation. In its response, the Government indicated that the high number of arrests and deaths which occurred during the police operations is not surprising. Many deaths occurred as a result of drug dealers trying to avoid being traced by the police, by killing those who could have given evidence against them. The Government reported that only a small number of killings occurred as a result of acts of self-defense by the police, or actually involved police officers as suspects. In discharging their duties, law enforcement officers were instructed to strictly observe the provisions of the Criminal Code which authorizes the use of lethal force only for self-defence. The Government stated that every unnatural death which occurred during the police operations would be thoroughly investigated in accordance with the law, without exception. The Government further indicated that any person who believes that he or his relatives were wrongly accused of having been involved in narcotic trade or whose relatives were killed during drug-related operations can appeal to the Department of Rights and Liberties Protection and the Department of Special Investigation of the Ministry of Justice, which were established as a result of the bureaucratic reform in 2002. Finally, the Government reported that on 28 February 2003, the Prime Minister appointed two committees to monitor the implementation of the operations and to ensure protection for witnesses in drug-related murder cases and those who turned themselves in to the authorities. Since then, a number of cases involving government officials have been brought under close scrutiny; there has been an investigation of the system of justice and a number of police officers have been arrested on charges of extrajudicial killing.

Turkey

Urgent appeal

559. On 22 May 2003, the Special Rapporteur and the Special Rapporteur on torture sent an urgent appeal to the Government of Turkey in relation with information received regarding K. Ö., a woman of Kurdish origin, who was allegedly receiving death threats from police officers. According to the information received, she had reportedly been raped and tortured by police at her home in 1999 and was frequently threatened and intimidated since then, apparently in an attempt to prevent her from pursuing her case with the European Court of Human Rights (ECHR). On 23 April her home was reportedly raided by police. The police officers allegedly threatened her with death if she did not give up her case against the Turkish authorities with the ECHR. On 28 April, she visited the Adana branch of the Human Rights Association (IHD) to make a complaint about the raid. On her return home the same police officers reportedly forced her into a car at gunpoint, blindfolded her, and threatened her with death. When she told them that she would not give up her case, her assailants reportedly threw her from the car. Her lawyers made a complaint to the ECHR prosecutor. Her lawyers sent her case to the ECHR, as the Turkish courts had reportedly rejected all of K.Ö.'s attempts to press charges against the police officers. Fears have been expressed that she may continue to be subjected to threats and harassment if no appropriate measures are taken to ensure her safety.

Communications received

560. On 6 November 2002, the Government of Turkey transmitted its response to a communication sent by the Special Rapporteur, jointly with the Special Rapporteur on the promotion and protection of the right to freedom of opinion and expression and the Special Rapporteur on the independence of judges and lawyers, on 22 May 2002, regarding the case of Salih Yilar. The Government stated that Salih Yilar had been taken into custody on 18 March 2002 on grounds of aiding and abetting the terrorist organization PKK. He was released on 21 March 2002. A decision of non-prosecution was given owing to a lack of evidence. According to reports, upon the receiving information on 14 May 2002 that there was a wounded man on the Silvan road, the security forces went to the area where they found a man with cuts on his left wrist and his abdomen. The man could not talk and did not possess an identification card. He was immediately taken to the Diyarbakir State Hospital. It was later established that the man was Salih Yilar. The Government reported that Salih Yilar allegedly stated that he attempted to commit suicide. The file was forwarded to the Public Prosecutor's Office. Mr. Yilar was neither taken into custody nor subjected to torture. However upon receiving his complaint alleging that he had been subjected to torture, an investigation was initiated in the course of which no evidence or witness was found. The Government of Turkey finally stated that the description of HADEP as "pro-Kurdish" was incorrect and misleading. The political parties in Turkey are not divided along ethnic lines. HADEP embraces democratic principles in its programme and activities, just like all other political parties in Turkey.

561. By letter dated 8 July 2003, the Government of Turkey responded to a joint communication sent on 22 May 2003, by the Special Rapporteur jointly with the Special Rapporteur on Torture, regarding the case of K.Ö. The State reported that she applied to the Provincial Security Directorate in Adana on 27 December 1999, alleging that two unidentified persons claiming to be police officers came to her house that day, asking questions about her daughter who was reportedly involved in armed activities of the PKK terrorist organization, and ill-treated and raped her. Upon her application, she was invited to the Anti-Terrorism Branch of the Provincial Security Directorate on 31 March 2000 to identify the alleged assailants, accompanied by her son, Tefvik, and her legal counsel. The Government explained that the request to initiate an official inquiry was rejected due to the lack of conclusive evidence supporting K.Ö's statements as well as the alleged inconsistencies in her declarations taken on different dates and the manner in which she identified the officer. Finally, with respect to her allegation of ill-treatment and rape on 27 December 1999, the Government stated that official medical reports did not corroborate her allegations.

Turkmenistan

Urgent appeal

562. On 5 June 2003, the Special Rapporteur and the Special Rapporteur on torture sent a joint urgent appeal to the Government of Turkmenistan in connection with the case of Boris Shikhmuradov, the former Minister for Foreign Affairs of Turkmenistan, who was reportedly arrested on 25 December 2002 and held in incommunicado detention in relation to the attempted assassination of President Saparmurad Niazov on 25 November 2002. Human rights organizations as well as representatives of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe (OSCE) were reportedly prevented from visiting him. Since his arrest, reports indicate that he was given injections of psychotropic and paralytic drugs, as a result of which his health seriously deteriorated. Fears were expressed that the treatment he received could lead to his death if he did not receive prompt and effective medical assistance.

563. The Special Rapporteurs also drew the attention of the Government to information received regarding Mr. Shikhmuradov's brother, Konstantin Shikhmuradov, who was reportedly arrested in Ashgabat on 7 December 2002, allegedly for extortion and threats to life. He was reportedly sentenced to 14 years imprisonment for terrorist activities. At the time the communication was sent, he was allegedly held incommunicado with no access to his lawyer or relatives. In view of the incommunicado detention of Konstantin Shikhmuradov, fears were expressed for his physical and mental integrity.

564. On 28 November 2003, the Special Rapporteur sent an urgent appeal to the Government of Turkmenistan, jointly with the the Special Rapporteur on the promotion and protection of the right to freedom of opinion and expression, the Special Rapporteur on torture and the Special Representative of the Secretary-General on human rights defenders, concerning Saparmurat Ovezberdiev, a correspondent for Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty's Turkmen-language service in Ashgabat. According to information received, on 14 November 2003, two men believed to be secret service agents forcibly took him to an Ashgabat cemetery, where he was allegedly brutally beaten, threatened and dumped on the side of a road. The two men reportedly told him "We've had enough of you. We're going to get rid of you". Mr. Ovezberdiev had reportedly sustained head injuries in the incident. In addition, reports indicated that on 11 September 2003, he was arrested by National Security Ministry officers and detained for three days. He was allegedly drugged, manhandled and threatened with a 20-year prison sentence for being a "traitor to the homeland". These actions could be related to one of his radio programmes, "Open Microphone", in which listeners are given an opportunity to speak out when their rights are violated and to get in touch with legal experts and human rights organizations abroad. It was reported that National Security Ministry officials had called for the cancellation of the programmes on several occasions.

Uganda

Communication sent

565. On 17 September 2003, the Special Rapporteur and the Special Rapporteur on torture sent a communication to the Government of Uganda regarding the case of Nsangi Murisdi, a small businessman who was reportedly killed while in custody at Uganda's Violent Crime Crack Unit (VCCU) on 14 June 2003. He was reportedly picked up by VCCU officers from his workplace in Owino Market in Kampala and taken to VCCU headquarters in Kireka. His relatives were allegedly denied access to him. On 18 June 2003, the family reportedly received news of his death in custody. The death certificate reportedly gave the causes of death as extensive loss of fluid and blood, severe bleeding in the brain and extensive burns on the buttocks. No action was allegedly taken to investigate his death.

Ukraine

Communication sent

566. On 30 September 2003, the Special Rapporteur, jointly with the Special Rapporteur on torture and the Special Rapporteur on contemporary forms of racism, racial discrimination, xenophobia and related intolerance, sent a communication to the Government of Ukraine in connection with the following individual cases.

567. Vladimir Fedorchenko, aged 25, his wife Zukhra Fedorchenko, aged 21 and their six-year-old son Jura Fedorchenko, Snezhana Fedorchenko, aged 6, Misha Fedorchenko, aged 3, Takhar Fedorchenko, aged 15, and Yury Fedorchenko, aged 50, all members of the same Roma family. According to the information received, the family's home, located in the village of Malaya Kakhovka in the Poltava Province, was set alight in an arson attack on 28 October 2001. A senior police officer was allegedly involved in the incident. It was reported that Yury Fedorchenko was leaving his house at around 7:30 a.m. on 28 October 2001 when he encountered three men, one of them a police major (whose name is known to the Special Rapporteurs). The police major had reportedly visited the family home on a number of occasions for the purpose of extorting bribes from a family member because of her past alleged involvement in drug trafficking. The three men reportedly forced their way into the house. It was alleged that in doing so, they hit Yury Fedorchenko over the head with a heavy object. A man reportedly holding a canister with flammable material allegedly emptied its contents around the house and set it ablaze. As a result, three members of the Fedorchenko family allegedly died in hospital while Takhar and Yury Fedorchenko reportedly survived with burns to 70 and 40 per cent of their bodies, respectively. An investigation was reportedly initiated.

Communication received

568. On 21 July 2003, the Government of Ukraine responded to an urgent appeal sent on 12 July 2002 by the Special Rapporteur jointly with the Special Rapporteur on the promotion and protection of the right to freedom of opinion and expression concerning the case of Viktor Vorotnikov, editor-in-chief at the newspaper Grani, who was reportedly harassed and threatened by officer V.D. Sitar from the Council for National Security and Defence of Ukraine (CNSDU) after the publication on 14 June 2002 on the Internet issue of Grani of an article by journalist Sergej Romanovskogo entitled "Apocalypse Liberty". In its response, the Government gives great detail about the investigations carried out into Mr.

Vorotnikov's allegations. The Government stated that the results of the investigation show Mr. Vorotnikov's allegations that Sitar and other CNSDU officers abused their official positions, that there existed a real threat to his life, health and safety, that certain CNSDU officers committed criminal acts, and that the Ukrainian law enforcement bodies refused to react to his appeals, were all unfounded fictitious and untrue. Consequently, on 23 August 2002, Colonel V.A. Zhuravel, chief investigative officer of the Central Military Procurators' Department of the Office of the Procurator-General, decided not to proceed with a criminal case. All the persons concerned, including Mr. Vorotnikov, were advised of this decision, as well as of their right to appeal and the procedure for doing so.

United States of America

Urgent appeals

569. On 12 February 2003, the Special Rapporteur sent an urgent appeal to the Government of United States of America regarding the situation of Louis Jones, a former soldier, who was reportedly scheduled to be executed on 18 March 2003 for the murder and sexual assault of Tracie Joy McBride, a 19-year-old United States Army private, whom he had abducted from the Goodfellow Air Force Base in San Angelo, Texas, on 18 February 1995. Since the crime had begun on a United States military facility, it was prosecuted as a federal rather than a Texas district case. At the sentencing phase of the trial, the defence presented mitigating evidence, including that Mr. Jones was suffering from various mental problems, including possible post-traumatic stress disorder as a result of his experiences in the United States invasion of Grenada in 1983 and the 1990/91 Gulf war. Mr. Jones faced a death sentence or life imprisonment without the possibility of parole: indeed, owing to the kidnapping charge, under federal law he would never be released if the jury voted for imprisonment. However, the judge allegedly wrongly instructed the jury that it could vote for the death penalty, life without the possibility of release, or a lesser sentence in which case the judge would reportedly decide its length. It has been brought to the Special Rapporteur's attention that there had been confusion and coercion in the jury room. Indeed, the judge's instruction allegedly led some of the jurors to believe that if they could not reach a unanimous verdict on either the death penalty or life without parole, the judge would impose a lesser sentence. As none of the jurors was in favour of a lesser sentence, it is reported that the jury stood at 10 to 2 in favour of the death penalty. According to reports, when Louis Jones's death sentence was upheld by the United States Supreme Court in 1999, four of the nine Justices dissented, stating that the jury had been misinformed by the trial judge's instruction, and that there was at least a reasonable likelihood that that had tainted the jury's deliberations.

570. On 13 February 2003, the Special Rapporteur sent an urgent appeal to the Government of the United States regarding the case of Amos King, who was reportedly scheduled to be executed in Florida on 26 February 2003 for the murder of 68-year-old Natalie Brady, in March 1977. It has been brought to the Special Rapporteur's attention that Mr. King consistently maintained his innocence. Fire and police personnel reportedly found Ms. Brady's body at her house, which had been set on fire. She had been raped and stabbed. A short while earlier, Mr. King, who was on a work release programme at a minimum security prison near the house, had allegedly got into an altercation with a staff member during which the latter was stabbed. He allegedly fled the facility, but turned himself in later that day. He was reportedly charged with the assault on the staff member (who had survived) and the murder of Natalie Brady. According to the information received, in 1984, the Eleventh Circuit Court of Appeals upheld the conviction against him, despite admitting that his lawyer had made a number of mistakes at the guilt stage of the 1977 trial. The Court allegedly also found that the circumstantial nature of the evidence might have allowed a “skilled attorney” to convince a jury that “the ultimate penalty should not be exacted, lest a mistake may have been made”. The Eleventh Circuit Court reportedly had indeed overturned the death sentence on the grounds that Mr. King’s lawyer had been ineffective at the sentencing phase. However, on receiving a new sentencing hearing, he was re-sentenced to death. Furthermore, it has been brought to the Special Rapporteur’s attention that the evidence against Amos King was not overwhelming. In addition, concerns have been expressed as to the competence of the medical examiner who provided key evidence at the trial. Indeed, she was allegedly forced to retire in 2000 after her work on several cases was discredited. About an hour before he was due to be executed on 2 December 2002, Mr. King was reportedly granted a reprieve by the Governor of Florida John “Jeb” Bush, to allow for further DNA testing on evidence from the crime. On 5 February 2003, the Governor lifted the stay, saying that the DNA testing had failed to provide any new evidence. However, the DNA testing was reportedly inconclusive, neither incriminating nor exonerating Amos King.

571. On 12 May 2003, the Special Rapporteur sent an urgent appeal to the Government of the United States regarding the case of Percy Walton who was scheduled to be executed in Virginia on 28 May 2003. He was reportedly sentenced to death in 1997 for the murders of an elderly couple, Elizabeth Hendrick, aged 81, and Jesse Hendrick, aged 80, and a 33-year-old man, Archie Moore, in Danville in November 1996. It has been brought to the Special Rapporteur’s attention that Mr. Walton, who was reportedly 18 years old at the time of the crime, has allegedly been suffering from schizophrenia since the age of 16 when he had begun to display dramatic changes in behaviour. In 1999, a psychiatrist, a neuropsychologist and a neurologist allegedly assessed his mental health in view of his appeals and confirmed his diagnosis as suffering from severe chronic schizophrenia at the time of the crime. Nevertheless, it is reported that the sentencing judge was not presented with any mental health evidence in mitigation by Mr. Walton’s state appointed lawyer.

572. On 20 May 2003, the Special Rapporteur sent an urgent appeal to the Government of the United States in connection with information received regarding the alleged establishment of new military rules. According to these rules, United States forces in Iraq allegedly had the authority to shoot looters on sight.

573. On 26 May 2003, the Special Rapporteur sent an urgent appeal to the Government of the United States regarding Abu-Ali Abdur’Rahman who was reportedly scheduled to be executed on 18 June 2003 for the 1986 murder of Patrick Daniels. It has been brought to the Special Rapporteur’s attention that Mr.

Rahman's trial lawyers failed to present compelling mitigating evidence. Indeed as a child, Mr. Rahman was reported to have suffered abuse at the hands of his father, a military policeman. Besides, the jurors were also allegedly left unaware that he had had a history of serious mental health problems, or that he had manifested symptoms of mental illness following his arrest two days after the crime, as he was diagnosed with post-traumatic stress disorder. Doubts have also been raised as to whether Abu-Ali Abdur'Rahman actually stabbed Patrick Daniels. Indeed, it is reported that the Davidson County prosecutor mainly relied on the testimony of Mr. Abdur'Rahman's co-defendant, Devade Miller, to persuade the jury that Mr. Abdur'Rahman had wielded the knife. It is reported that Devade Miller avoided the death penalty in exchange for his testimony and a guilty plea to second-degree murder, for which he was paroled after six years in prison. Lastly, although Abu-Ali Abdur'Rahman does not deny his involvement in the crime, he has consistently claimed that he cannot remember the stabbing itself, which is a possible sign of post-traumatic stress disorder blackout. It is also reported that forensic testing found no trace of blood on a long woollen coat he was wearing, despite the bloodiness of the crime scene.

574. On 11 July 2003, the Special Rapporteur sent a joint urgent appeal with the Special Rapporteur on extrajudicial, summary or arbitrary executions regarding Darnell Williams who, according to the information received, was to be executed by the State of Indiana on 1 August 2003. It is reported that he is seeking commutation of his death sentence, and is asking the Governor of Indiana for a reprieve for the purposes of DNA testing. Mr. Williams has, according to the information received, always maintained that, while he was involved in the crime, he was not present when the shooting occurred and that courts of appeal have agreed that his lawyers' performance on this issue was deficient but stated it did not affect the outcome of the trial. At trial, the prosecution presented the report of a serologist who had found three blood spots on Mr. Williams' shorts, however, defence lawyers did not hire their own experts to evaluate the blood spots so their cross-examination of this evidence was limited. Newly discovered information from the state serologist's notes now suggests that the blood may not have come from the victims. A DNA test on these blood spots could therefore support Mr. Williams' claim that he was not present at the shooting. Mr. Williams' appeal lawyers have sought to have the blood subjected to DNA testing and the trial prosecutor supports this request. In addition, there was reportedly a witness interviewed by the prosecution with exonerating evidence but Mr. Williams' defence lawyers did not review this evidence despite being aware of this interview tape and therefore this witness did not testify at the trial. According to the information received, appeals against Mr. Williams' death sentence on the grounds of his trial lawyers' failure to present the jury with evidence of his alleged limited mental competence have been unsuccessful.

575. On 30 October 2003, the Special Rapporteur sent an urgent appeal to the Government of the United States concerning the case of James Willie Brown, aged 55, for whom an urgent appeal was sent by the Special Rapporteur on 4 November 2002. According to the information received, he was scheduled for execution in Georgia on 4 November 2003 for the rape and murder of Brenda Watson in 1975. Mr. Brown is reported to have a long history of mental illness, including repeated diagnoses of schizophrenia. He reportedly entered the army but was discharged two years later owing to his mental illness. He was arrested for the first time in 1968, but was deemed incompetent to stand trial because he allegedly lacked the mental capacity to fully understand the proceedings or assist in his defence and he was therefore transferred to a state mental facility. Between the time of his first arrest and his 1981 trial for the murder of Brenda Watson, he reportedly stayed in mental facilities during 70 per cent of the time, both on an involuntary and a voluntary basis.

576. On 7 November 2003, the Special Rapporteur transmitted an urgent appeal to the Government of the United States regarding the case of Joseph Timothy Keel, who was scheduled to be executed in North Carolina on 7 November 2003. He had been sentenced to death at a retrial in 1993 for the murder of his father-in-law, John Simmons, who had been shot on his farm in 1990. According to the information received, Mr. Keel suffered from mental impairment: his IQ was allegedly measured in the borderline mental retardation range. Besides, he was diagnosed with organic brain damage, possibly as a result of brain injuries. He also had a history of other mental problems, including auditory hallucinations, which required treatment with anti-psychotic medication. According to the information received, at the guilt phase of the trial, the defense lawyer did not present evidence of Mr. Keel's mental problems in support of a possible claim of diminished responsibility and a verdict of less than first-degree murder. However, at the sentencing phase, it was reported that the defence had presented some evidence of his low IQ and brain injuries but more evidence of his mental problems had reportedly emerged since the trial.

577. On 19 November 2003, the Special Rapporteur transmitted an urgent appeal to the Government of the United States regarding the death sentence of Hung Thanh Le, who was reportedly scheduled to be executed in Oklahoma on 6 January 2004. He was allegedly sentenced to death in September 1995 in Oklahoma County for the murder of Hai Hong Nguyen, on 12 November 1992. In a videotaped police interview, he allegedly admitted stabbing Mr. Nguyen, whom he had met in 1985 and with whom he had immigrated to the United States, claiming that he had only intended to rob him, but that the situation escalated. It was alleged that, despite Hung Thanh Le's limited command of English, the police made no effort to obtain an interpreter. As a result, Hung Thanh Le reportedly waived his right to have a lawyer present without fully being aware of what he was doing. In October 1993 pre-trial proceedings, during which he had an interpreter, Hung Thanh Le allegedly entered a guilty plea which the judge allowed him to withdraw a year later, on the grounds that, even with an interpreter, he had not understood the proceedings, including that he could be sentenced to death. According to the information received, since the trial, a psychologist concluded that, as a result of his life experiences, he was suffering from post-traumatic stress disorder at the time of the crime. It was also alleged that his trial was riddled with prosecutorial misconduct and that the prosecutor made inflammatory remarks. However, despite finding that the prosecution's arguments were "improper" and "irrelevant", the appeal courts allowed Hung Thanh Le's death sentence to stand.

578. On 27 November 2003, the Special Rapporteur sent an urgent appeal to the Government of the United States in connection with the case of Charles Singleton, who was reportedly scheduled to be executed in Arkansas on 6 January 2004. He had allegedly been sentenced to death in 1979 for the murder of Mary Lou York. According to the information received, Mr. Singleton suffered from serious mental illness that, without treatment, was rising to the level of insanity. His mental condition had reportedly worsened in the years that he spent on death row, when he was diagnosed as suffering from schizophrenia. By the early 1990s, Mr. Singleton was reportedly taking anti-psychotic drugs on a regular basis and when he did not take the medication, or when he needed increased or different medication, his symptoms would allegedly worsen. When his illness had become severe, he was allegedly put on an involuntary medication regime. His psychotic symptoms had reportedly abated, allowing the State to set an execution date. According to the information received, his lawyers appealed on the basis that it was unconstitutional to restore his competency through forcible medication in order to make him competent to be executed. In October 2001, a three-judge panel of the United States Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit reportedly ruled that the death sentence should be commuted to life imprisonment. However this decision was overruled in February 2003 after a rehearing by the full court of the Eighth Circuit. On 6 October 2003, the United States Supreme Court allegedly dismissed Mr. Singleton's appeal, thereby allowing the Eighth Circuit's ruling to stand and the State to set an execution date.

Communications sent

579. On 12 May 2003, the Special Rapporteur sent a communication to the Government of the United States concerning information received regarding incidents in the town of Fajallah, west of Baghdad, Iraq. A number of civilians were allegedly shot dead by United States military forces during demonstrations and the circumstances surrounding these reported incidents still remained unclear.

Communication received

580. By letter dated 4 March 2003, the Government of the United States transmitted its response to a joint communication sent by the Special Rapporteur and by the Special Rapporteur on torture on 2 September 2002, requesting information on four cases of alleged restraint by law enforcement officials in the United States that resulted in death. Information has been sought about each case from the Special Litigation Section in the Civil Rights Division of the Department of Justice, which protects the constitutional and federal statutory rights of persons confined in certain institutions owned or operated by state and local governments. The Government further gave information on several sets of standards that have been promulgated in the United States which are intended to regulate the use of restraint chairs by law enforcement and correctional personnel. The Government also provided replies to the four cases raised by the Special Rapporteurs regarding the use of restraint chairs.

581. Charles Agster. According to press reports, when Charles Agster was uncooperative in police custody, he was placed in a restraint chair and he stopped breathing. He died three days later when his family requested that he be disconnected from a life-support machine. The Maricopa County Medical Examiner's Office declared the death an accident and found the cause of death to be “positional asphyxia due to restraint and acute drug intoxication”. According to a report of the Associate Press on August 6, 2002, a lawsuit was filed on that date by Mr. Agster’s family against the Maricopa County Sheriff’s Office, for US$ 20 million. According to the press report, the Maricopa County Sheriff denied the accusations and intends to contest the lawsuit. The Department of Justice has no record of any complaint or investigation into the matter of Charles Agster.

582. Hazel Virginia Bayer. Hazel Bayer died thirteen days after being found unconscious and not breathing in a restraint chair in the Johnson City, Tennessee Jail. She had been arrested for public intoxication. The Associated Press reported that pleadings filed by Johnson City in court noted that an autopsy report said Ms. Bayer most likely died from “multi-system failure due to brain anoxia/ischaemia due to mechanical obstruction”. The autopsy report deemed that placement in the restraint chair was a proximate cause of death. A wrongful death lawsuit for US$ 5 million was filed against Johnson City, the police chief, jail superintendent and five other city employees in United States District Court last year. The Department of Justice has no record of any complaint or investigation into this matter.

583. Kevin Coleman. Kevin Coleman died while sitting in a restraint chair at the Wade Correctional Centre in Homer, Louisiana. The matter is currently under review by the Criminal Section of the Civil Rights Division of the Department of Justice.

584. Albert Cothran. On June 26, 2001, Albert Lee Cothran was found dead in a restraint chair in Columbia County Detention Centre, Florida, after he was placed in the chair due to sustained combative behavior. The Medical Examiner’s Report found that Mr. Cothran had suffered a heart attack while restrained in the chair. The Department of Justice has no record of any complaint or investigation into the matter.

Uzbekistan

Urgent appeals

587. On 16 January 2003, the Special Rapporteur and the Special Rapporteur on torture sent an urgent appeal to the Government of Uzbekistan regarding the cases of Azamat Uteev, aged 21, Ilkhom Karimov, aged 22, and Evgeny Gugin, aged 22, who were reportedly in imminent danger of execution. Azamat Uteev was sentenced to death on 28 June 2002 by the Supreme Court of the Autonomous Republic of Karakalpakstan on murder charges. He was reportedly accused of killing a 15-year-old girl. He was allegedly tortured by police officers and officers from the Procurator's office in Nukus, as a result of which he reportedly signed a confession. He reportedly retracted his confession at the beginning of the hearing, stating that he was tortured to force him to confess. However, the court ignored his statement and did not open an investigation into the allegations. The Appeals Board of the Court allegedly turned down his appeal on 6 August. Ilkhom Karimov and Evgeny Gugin, from the town of Kokand in the Ferghana valley, were reportedly sentenced to death by the Tashkent City Court on 28 October 2002. They were accused of having robbed and killed a woman and a man at their apartment in the capital, Tashkent, in April 2002. Their appeals were reportedly turned down by the Appeals Board of the Court on 10 December. They were both reportedly severely beaten in pre-trial detention by law enforcement officers. According to the information received, Evgeny Gugin confessed to the crime because the police officers had threatened to kill his mother and younger brother. It has been brought to the Special Rapporteurs' attention that as all domestic appeals against their death sentences were reportedly turned down, their only hope would be for the President of Uzbekistan to grant them clemency.

588. On 11 June 2003, the Special Rapporteur, the Special Rapporteur on torture, the Chairman-Rapporteur of the Working Group on Arbitrary Detention and the Special Rapporteur on the independence of judges and lawyers jointly sent an urgent appeal to the Government of Uzbekistan in relation to the case of Khamila Ismailova, aged 56, who was reportedly severely beaten by unknown attackers in her home in Shurchi, Surkhandaria province, on 13 May 2003. As a result, she allegedly lost consciousness. Her husband, Ergash Choriev, who was allegedly also assaulted during this incident, reportedly died as a result of the beatings. He allegedly worked as an auditor for the prosecutor's office and he had recently audited a government-owned enterprise. He reportedly had previously informed his wife and the chief prosecutor of Denau, Surkhandaria, that he was concerned for his safety. Fears were expressed that his murder might have been related to his work. Khamila Ismailova was taken to Shurchi City Hospital. Despite her poor condition, the police interrogated her for several hours at the hospital. She was reportedly taken from the hospital by two men on 14 May 2003, although the medical personnel had advised that she was too ill to be moved. Her relatives were reportedly not informed of her whereabouts for two days, during which time she was allegedly transferred to a hospital in Termez, where she was allegedly subjected to further interrogations by the police and officers from the Ministry of Internal Affairs. She was reportedly taken to Termez prison on 3 June 2003 and not allowed to see her lawyer until the following day and only in the presence of the prosecutor. She eventually signed a confession to the murder of her husband and the police reportedly claimed that her injuries were self-inflicted. On 9 June 2003, a new lawyer hired by the family was allegedly denied access to her by the Chief of the Investigation Department at the Surkhandaria province Prosecutor's office. Although according to domestic law, charges have to be brought against a person within 72 hours of his or her detention, the Prosecutor's office is believed to have indicated that it was not yet decided whether to bring charges against her. In view of the alleged incommunicado detention of Khamila Ismailova, fears were expressed for her physical and mental integrity.

589. On 13 June 2003, the Special Rapporteur and the Special Rapporteur on torture sent an urgent appeal to the Government of Uzbekistan regarding Jamoliddin Karimov, aged 26, who was reportedly sentenced to 18 years in prison for violating article 159 of the Uzbekistan Criminal Code (anti-constitutional activity). After the trial, Karimov was sent to Jaslyk prison colony 64/71 where he was severely tortured. It is reported that he has not had any access to medical treatment and this is seriously endangering his life.

590. On 25 June 2003, the Special Rapporteur, the Special Rapporteur on torture as well as the Special Representative of the Secretary-General on human rights defenders jointly sent an urgent appeal to the Government of Uzbekistan regarding Iskander Khudoberganov, who was allegedly at risk of being executed and Dilobar Khudoberganova, his sister, and active member of the human rights organization Mothers Against the Death Penalty and Torture in Uzbekistan who was allegedly subjected to harassment by the security forces. Iskander Khudoberganov's appeal against his death sentence was reportedly turned down by the Court of Appeals of the Supreme Court on 29 April 2003. The Human Rights Committee intervened in his case and requested the Government to stay his execution while the Committee considered the case. Since three other men on behalf of whom the Committee had made a similar request to the Government were reportedly executed in May 2003, fears were expressed that Mr. Khudoberganov could be executed as well. Concern was expressed that while in custody he was subjected to torture to force him to sign a confession. Moreover, reports indicate that Mr. Khudoberganov's family was allegedly being threatened with continued harassment from members of the Uzbek National Security Service (SNB) if the family did not stop their protest against his death sentence. Dilobar Khudoberganova was allegedly being followed by SNB agents, who have allegedly slandered her publicly and attempted to prevent her from carrying out her human rights activities.

591. On 26 June 2003, the Special Rapporteur and the Special Rapporteur on torture jointly sent an urgent appeal to the Government of Uzbekistan regarding Abror Isaev, aged 19, Nodirbek Karimov, aged 22, and Muzaffar Mirzaev, aged 29, whose cases had already been brought to the attention of the Government of Uzbekistan in a joint urgent appeal sent on 13 May 2003. According to the information received, and in view of the recent executions of three persons whose cases were being examined by the Human Rights Committee, namely Azamat Uteev, Ilkhom Babazhanov and Maksud Ismailov, fears have been expressed that the executions of Abror Isaev, Nodirbek Karimov, Muzaffar Mirzaev along with Evgeny Gugin, and Farid Nasibullin (whose cases are currently under the consideration of the Committee) could be imminent. It was alleged that Evgeny Gugin, Farid Nasibullin and Abror Isaev were beaten while in custody, in particular during the investigation that had led to their conviction. On the other hand, Muzaffar Mirzaev was believed to be mentally ill.

The Government reported that the personal file and medical chart of Karimov indicated that, while serving his sentence in the UYa-64/71 correctional facility, he fell while taking a shower on 10 August 2002, thereby damaging the soft tissue of the left supra- and subclavicular regions of his body. The Government reported that the incident was investigated by officials of the facility and, in the course of that investigation Karimov himself and his fellow inmates stated in their written explanations that the aforementioned injury was as a result of his fall in the shower room.

Viet Nam

Communications sent

605. On 6 May 2003, the Special Rapporteur sent a communication to the Government of Viet Nam regarding the cases of three imprisoned members of the United Montagnard Christian Church, namely Y-Suon Mlo, from Buon Kuang village, Y-Het Nie Kdam from Buon Ea Tieu in Daklak province, and Y-Wan Ayun, from Buon Gram village in Daklak province, who were allegedly executed by lethal injection on 29 October 2002 by the Vietnamese (Cong An) security police for taking part in peaceful demonstrations in February 2001. The security police allegedly tried to force a prison nurse to administer the injections. As the nurse allegedly refused, the Cong An police allegedly pushed her aside, and injected the drug into the three Christians. Within minutes, they reportedly experienced convulsions and died.

606. On 5 August 2003, the Special Rapporteur, the Special Rapporteur on torture and the Special Representative of the Secretary-General on human rights defenders sent a communication to the Government of Viet Nam regarding the case of Y-Su Nie, a Degar and member of the Montagnard Christian Church, from Buon Mbhao village, Mdrak district, Dak Lac, who had reportedly died on 31 January 2003, a few hours after having been released from custody. He had reportedly been held at Buonmathuot prison since 15 November 2002. His detention was allegedly related to his religion and to his activities as a land rights advocate. While in prison he was reportedly beaten and subjected to electric shocks. On 30 January 2003, he was allegedly handcuffed and injected with an unknown chemical substance, which it is feared was lethal. Prison authorities reportedly subsequently released him but warned him that he would die shortly. When he saw his family he allegedly told them that he was injected with poison while in detention. He reportedly died the next day. He was buried on 2 February 2003.

Communications received

607. On 5 August 2003, the Government of Viet Nam transmitted its response to the communication sent by the Special Rapporteur on 6 May 2003, regarding the cases of the three Christians from the Montagnard Church, namely Y-Suon Mlo, Y-Het Nie Kdam and Y-Wan Ayun. The Government stated that the information transmitted in the letter was totally false and should be considered malicious slander made up by an irresponsible person. The Government reported that there had never been any arbitrary execution by lethal injection in Viet Nam and that such cases were no more than a myth. The Government affirmed that, after having carried out a thorough investigation by relevant government authorities in Viet Nam, Y-Suon Mlo and Y Wan Ayun could not be identified. The Government therefore concluded that such two cases did not exist. Regarding the case of Y-Het Nie Kdam, the Government was allegedly able to gather information showing that he was arrested after having committed acts in violation of the law and he would be tried before a court of law. Normal legal proceedings were allegedly undertaken.

608. On 20 November 2003, the Government of Viet Nam responded to a communication jointly sent by the Special Rapporteur, the Special Rapporteur on torture and the Special Representative of the Secretary-General on the situation of human rights defenders. The Government reported that the allegations and information received by the Special Rapporteurs concerning Y-Sue Nie were completely false. It was affirmed that, by law in Viet Nam, no one can be arrested and detained for reasons based merely on religious grounds. Torture and any form of inhuman treatment and punishment are strictly forbidden. These are clearly stipulated in the Constitution as well as other relevant laws and are faithfully observed in practice. The Government finally recalled Article 71 of the 1992 Constitution of Viet Nam which states: "The citizen shall enjoy inviolability of the person and the protection of the law with regard to his life, health, honor and dignity... It is strictly forbidden to use any form as harassment and coercion, torture, violation of individual honor and dignity, against a citizen". The Government reported that the Penal Code of Viet Nam has provisions for penalties against those who infringe upon the above-mentioned rights of any individual.

Yemen

Urgent appeals

609. On 10 March 2003, the Special Rapporteur and the Special Rapporteur on torture sent an urgent appeal to the Government of Yemen regarding the death sentence against Nabil al-Mankali, a Spanish national. According to information received, he was arrested on 18 August 1997 and charged with planning acts of sabotage and assassination in connection with a bombing incident in Aden in July 1997. He was reportedly charged along with 27 others, some of whom, including Mr. al-Mankali, were reportedly tortured to force them to confess. These confessions were reported to have been admitted as evidence in court.

610. On 15 September 2003, the Special Rapporteur sent a second urgent appeal also regarding the death sentence against Nabil al-Mankali, who was allegedly at risk of imminent execution after President Ali Abdullah Saleh allegedly ratified the death penalty against him on 11 September 2003. The Supreme Court had reportedly upheld the sentence against him in March 2003. It was reported however, that President Saleh still had the power to stop the execution from taking place.

Communication sent

611. On 15 November 2002, the Special Rapporteur sent a communication to the Government of Yemen regarding information received which reported that six men were allegedly killed while travelling in a car on 3 November 2002, in Yemen, by a missile launched from a United States-controlled Predator drone aircraft. One of the persons in the car was allegedly suspected to be a senior figure of the Al-Quaida organization. The strike was reportedly carried out with the cooperation and approval of the Government of Yemen.

Communications received

612. On 17 December 2002, the Government of Yemen replied to the letter sent by the Special Rapporteur on 15 November 2002, regarding the six men killed while travelling in a car on 3 November 2002 by a missile launched from a United States-controlled Predator drone aircraft. The Government reported that these persons were being sought by the judicial authorities on charges of involvement in terrorist activities, including in connection with the bomb attack against the United States destroyer USS Cole in the Port of Aden in October 2000 and against the French oil tanker Limburg in October 2002. The group had allegedly planned new acts of terrorism against oil, economic and strategic installations that would have adversely affected the international standing of Yemen, as well as its political and economic interests and external relations with other States. The Government stated that it had made every effort to bring these accused persons to justice and had promised them that they would not be harmed if they had come forward voluntarily to stand trial. The group however refused to comply and persisted in its resistance to, and evasion of, justice and in planning new acts of terrorism. The security forces in Yemen had instituted cooperation with the United States of America with a view to tracking the movements and whereabouts of this alleged terrorist group had been pursued on numerous occasions in a bid to bring it to justice. The Government stated that the group had always managed to escape until the date of the final manhunt which resulted in its members being killed. The Government finally wanted to reaffirm that these measures were taken in implementation of Security Council resolution 1373 concerning the suppression of terrorism, and in the context of security cooperation and coordination between Yemen and the United States. It concluded that by turning a blind eye to this group and allowing it to remain at large, the right to life of a large number of innocent people would have been violated, and national and international security and order would have been put at risk. The Government stated that the measure taken was the only option capable of stopping this group and preventing it from carrying out its terrorist plans.

613. On 17 October 2003, the Government of Yemen responded to the second urgent appeal sent on 15 September 2003 by the Special Rapporteur, in connection with the death sentence of Nabil Al-Mankali, which had been ratified by the President of Yemen. According to the Government's response, in 1997 the accused was summoned by the Attorney-General to appear before the Court of First Instance for case No. 7 in Sierah, in the Aden district. This court issued a death sentence verdict against him on 21 October 1998, after charging him with several crimes among which were his illegal communication with a foreign country in order to disturb security and general stability, and falsification of official stamps and symbols. In addition, he was charged with robbery and possession of explosives with the alleged intention of blowing up infrastructure. He was also the alleged cause of several casualties and had a link with a group involved in vandalism, which was planning to commit further terrorist acts. The accused appealed the verdict at the Court of Appeals in the Aden district, which in turn supported the verdict of the Court of First Instance on 20 January 1999. Mr. Al-Mankali appealed this verdict at the Supreme Court, which issued on 2 February 2000 a verdict supporting the verdict of both the court of First Instance and that of the Court of Appeal. On 7 February 2000, these verdicts, supported by the prosecutor's report, were submitted to the President of Yemen, for ratification prior to execution. On 11 September 2003, the ratification of these verdicts by the President was issued. The Government concluded that, in accordance with what was cited so far, the verdicts issued were definitive judicial verdicts and consonant with all the legal rules and procedures contained in Yemeni jurisdiction, which reportedly took into consideration the international guarantees of those facing the death penalty. It was further stated that the accused's allegations that he had been subjected to torture in order to extract confessions from him, were groundless.

Zimbabwe

Urgent appeal

614. On 23 January 2003, the Special Rapporteur, jointly with the Special Rapporteur on torture and the Special Representative of the Secretary-General on human rights defenders, sent an urgent appeal to the Government of Zimbabwe in connection with information received indicating that allegations were made in State media against the Amani Trust, suggesting that the organization had participated in violent attacks in Kuwadzana. Concerns were expressed that the Amani Trust offices could be the target of firebombing or other form of attack in the near future. According to the information received, the Amani Trust is a registered Zimbabwean NGO providing services for the rehabilitation of victims of human rights violations, particularly torture and institutional violence, and conducting human rights training and education programmes, principally within the health professions. It was allegedly part of the International Rehabilitation Council for Torture Victims.

Communications sent

615. On 29 July 2003, the Special Rapporteur sent a communication to the Government of Zimbabwe regarding the following individual cases.

616. Tonderai Machiridza was allegedly arrested by armed police in Chitungwiza, a Harare suburb, along with three other supporters of the Movement for Democratic Change (MDC), namely David Chipunza, John Mazhambe and Lisbon Mtandwa, on 13 April 2003. The four men were reportedly accused of harassing a police officer during the two-day "stay-away" organized by MDC on 18 and 19 March 2003. They were allegedly taken to St. Mary's Police Station where they were reportedly beaten by police with truncheons and handcuffs and also kicked by policemen wearing boots. Tonderai Machiridza allegedly sustained severe head injuries: his head was reportedly swollen, and he had severe headaches and a bleeding nose. The three others were also reportedly badly injured. Soon after the assault, it is reported that the police took the four to Chitungwiza General Hospital for treatment. Tonderai Machiridza and John Mazhambe were allegedly kept chained to their beds in hospital and held under police guard. After a court application, the High Court reportedly ruled that Tonderai Machiridza should be released on bail so that he could receive better medical treatment. According to the information received, he was moved to a clinic in Harare where he died from his injuries on 18 April 2003.

617. On 16 September 2003, the Special Rapporteur and the Special Rapporteur on torture jointly sent a communication to the Government of Zimbabwe in connection with information received that Shepherd Ngundu, a teacher from the rural area of Mount Darwin, was beaten to death on 5 February 2002 by suspected Zimbabwe African National Union Patriotic Front (ZANU-PF) supporters, one month before the presidential elections, allegedly for possessing a copy of the Daily News.

618. On 16 September 2003, the Special Rapporteur, jointly with the Special Rapporteur on torture, sent a communication to the Government of Zimbabwe regarding the following individual cases.

619. David Stevens, an opposition supporter and commercial farmer in Macheke, Mashonaland East Province who was reportedly abducted on 15 April 2000 from the police station in the town of Murehwa by "militia", who allegedly severely beat him before fatally shooting him at point-blank range.

620. John Rutherford, a commercial farmer, his wife and one of their farm workers were reportedly assaulted by members of ZANU-PF on 15 March 2002 in the presence of a constable (whose name is known to the Special Rapporteurs). They were reportedly accused of ordering the destruction of farm workers' housing on the farm and giving a cell phone to a worker to inform MDC about illegal settlers. As a result of the alleged attack, the farm worker reportedly died and John Rutherford was admitted to Marondera Hospital. His wife was allegedly forced to witness the aggression and threatened with death at gunpoint. Two suspects were allegedly arrested and seven more were being sought by the police in connection with this case.

621. Tafireyinyika Gwaze, an MDC polling agent was reportedly abducted on 12 March 2002 and taken to a camp run by ZANU-PF and Zimbabwe National Liberation War Veterans' Association (ZNLWVA) militia, where he was reportedly severely beaten overnight. He was allegedly released the following day, but died as a result of multiple injuries.

Communications received

622. On 30 January 2003, the Government of Zimbabwe responded to an urgent appeal sent by the Special Rapporteur jointly with the Special Rapporteur on torture and the Special Representative of the Secretary-General on human rights defenders. The Government informed the Special Rapporteurs that Amani Trust was not registered in Zimbabwe as a NGO, but as a Trust, and was not entitled to any privileged treatment, emphasizing that, even if it was registered as a NGO, it would still not be entitled to any special treatment besides that which the law accords to all NGOs. The Government stated that the media was therefore free to make any allegations against Amani Trust or any other trust and Amani Trust was in turn free to counter those allegations in any manner it deemed fit. The Government expressed that it found it rather strange that the Special Procedures stated that they would come to the defence of Amani Trust when, according to the State, the Trust was perfectly placed to defend itself. It considered equally strange the request to take action against the planned firebombing “or other form of attack” on the Amani Trust offices. The Government stated that it was unable to take action against would-be, unknown assailants, based on information supplied by Special Rapporteurs and a Special Representative from outside Zimbabwe and suggested that it would be useful if the information would be made available to the police in Zimbabwe to enable the appropriate action to be taken. The Government reported that the police cannot act on the basis of rumours and that if the Special Rapporteurs and the Special Representative were in Zimbabwe, they would be obliged by law to make this information available to the police.

623. Further, the Government expressed concerns that there was no reference in the communication to the bombing of the ZANU-PF offices in Kuwadzana by suspected opposition supporters that led to the destruction of the offices and the death of a ZANU-PF supporter. The Government wondered whether that failure to refer to that incident was deliberate and an indication that the Special Rapporteurs and Special Representative considered only the lives of opposition supporters as worthy of protection and that only the safety of anti-government trusts and organizations was worth ensuring. The Government further noted that it was fully aware of, and fully respected, the applicable international principles whose negotiation and adoption it prides itself as having participated in.

624. The Government of Zimbabwe concluded by expressing, once again, its deep disquiet with the working methods of the Special Procedures, especially the manner in which the communications are sent to the State. It stated that the issue would be raised in the appropriate forums as a systemic issue that needs to be addressed urgently.

625. On 5 November 2003, the Government of Zimbabwe responded to the communication sent on 16 September 2003 by the Special Rapporteur jointly with the Special Rapporteur on torture regarding the following individual cases.

626. Shepherd Ngundu. The Government informed that on 5 February 2003, a misunderstanding arose between Ngundu and ten other people during which he was assaulted and left lying unconscious. A report was made to the Dotito police who attended the scene and since then four accused persons appeared in court to face charges of murder. The Government stated that those accused were Noah Nyaguse, Bernard Charamba, Felix Gavanji and Perence Nyamupira. The Government further reported that the case was pending at court awaiting trial and that the case was investigated under Dotito CR16/02/02.

627. Tonderai Machiridza. The Government stated that on 13 April 2003, two police officers went to Richard Machiridzy’s house in St. Mary’s, Chitungwiza, intending to arrest him. They suspected him of having been involved in the burning of a bus that was carrying children to a local creche and the stoning of a Mhiripiri bus on 18 March 2003 during the mass action called by MDC. On arrival at the house, they found him in the company of three men. On seeing the police officers, he and his three accomplices started to attack the officers, who then called for help. The Government reported that eight members of the Neighbourhood Watch Committee arrived to give assistance. Upon attempting to arrest the accused a scuffle ensued; Tonderai Machiridza and David Chipunza were arrested, whereas the two other persons escaped. Tonderai Machiridza, who had been injured in the scuffle was then taken to Chitungwiza General Hospital and later to Avenues Clinic where he died on 18 April 2003. Finally, the Government stated that a "murder docket" was opened under St. Mary's CR 208/04/03 but that it was closed and a "sudden death docket" was opened as the post-mortem results allegedly revealed that death had been the result of tuberculosis.

Palestinian Authority

Urgent appeal

632. On 6 June 2003, the Special Rapporteur and the Special Rapporteur on the independence of judges and lawyers sent a joint urgent appeal to the Palestinian Authority in connection with information received regarding Sergeant Rani Darwish Khalil Shaqqura, a member of the Palestinian security services from Jabalya refugee camp in the Gaza Strip, who was reportedly sentenced to death by firing squad on 17 May 2003 by a special military court. It was reported that his death sentence had to be ratified by President Yasser Arafat, after which he could be executed at any time. According to the information received, Mr. Shaqqura, who was held in Gaza Central Prison, was found guilty of the murder on 15 April 2003 of another member of the Palestinian security services, Captain Hani 'Atiya al-Madhoun. The killing was allegedly the result of an ongoing feud between their families. The court proceedings allegedly failed to meet international standards for fair trial. Indeed, it appeared that there was no legal basis for convening a military court, since such courts usually hear cases of security service employees in connection with offences committed during, or as part of, their work, which was not the case in the present instance. Additional procedural irregularities were also reported: the charge sheet was not presented to the prosecutor until the court reconvened for the second time on 26 April, and did not bear the signature and stamp of the civilian general prosecutor who had carried out the investigation, making it invalid. The defence lawyer reportedly objected to these and other irregularities. Nevertheless, as the court overruled all the points he raised, the defence lawyer reportedly withdrew from the case in protest. Consequently, the court allegedly appointed two security officers to act as defence lawyers for Mr. Shaqqura. However, although they had law degrees, they were reportedly not registered with the Bar Association and did not practise law. They allegedly received the documents relating to the case only hours before the hearing and did not appear to be entirely familiar with the case. According to reports, no witnesses were called to testify on Shaqqura's behalf.
